The courts may be asked to determine the statutory legality of the present State Industrial Board. The recent Legislature repealed two sections of the law setting up the board and a measure recreating the board was pocket-vetoed by Governor Henry F. Schricker. However, Democrats contend that the board is still operative under the 1937 state labor act. Denial by the board of a recent request for an indefinite continuance of a workmen's compensation claim hearing may result in a Dublin municipal utility taking the matter to court.

Work has been completed on the journal of the House of Representatives for the recent session of the General Assembly. The Senate Journal will be finished soon. Statistics reveal that the House book is 42 per cent larger than two years ago, due chiefly to the numerous vetoes by Governor Henry F. Schricker.

MORTUARY

WHITE

Mrs. Jennie White-Benson was born at Plymouth, Ohio, November 5, 1868. Departed this life at the home of her niece, Mrs. Marie Mann, Boonton, N. J. May 13, 1941, after a long illness at the age of 72 years, 6 months and 8 days. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Amos Ruckman.

For many years, she lived in St. Joe and was engaged, with her husband, in the hotel business, later they moved to Auburn, where her husband died. Mrs. White later moved to Fort Wayne where she again married a Mr. Benson, living on South Calhoun Street for several years, when her health became broken she went to New Jersey where she died.

Her body was returned to St. Joe for burial and services were conducted from the Kinsey funeral home on Friday afternoon by Rev. Frank Stevenson, and burial was beside her former husband in Riverside cemetery.

OLD FRIENDS MAKE SHORT CALL MONDAY

Returning from a week-end trip to Holland, Michigan, George H. Leland, wife and son, Robert, and granddaughter, Constance Mae Kerr, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kerman, of Dayton, Ohio, called at The News office Monday forenoon for a short visit, and then leaving at noon so they would be at home by night. A modern house-trailer, designed by Mr. Leland, accompanied the party, in which everything was carried to make their stay over night at any point a real comfort.

Mr. Leland will be remembered as having taught school here in about 1912 and 1913, and then moved to Dayton where he started manufacturing electric motors. Now a company has been formed of great proportions and Mr. Leland is chaiman of the board of directors. The Dayton plant is doing a three million dollar business a year and have a working force of 800 people, 15% of their production is now defense contracts. The daily production amounts to 1,500 complete motors ranging in size from ⅛ to 3-horse power. The company has expanded recently, by locating a plant at Guleph, Ontario, Canada, and here they are producing 150 motors per day.

To give you an idea of the wide spread use of the Leland motors, 75% of the gas station pumps in America are using Leland motors.

We were particularly interested in the Leland family, as well as their business success, for their family has grown to three boys and three girls. The three daughters are married and among them have five children. They are named Osa Mae, Virginia and Margaret. Harold graduated from Purdue electrical engineering school and will soon start working for the Alyce-Chalmers Corporation at Milwauke. Gerald graduates this year from the Fairview high school in Dayton and Robert, age 8, is just getting a good start in school work.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerman, who were sight seeing guests of the Lelands, were residents of Fort Wayne up to 1929, when they moved to Dayton, where he is now auditor of the Journal-Herald, Dayton's second largest newspaper.

St. Joe Lions are motoring to Hicksville this (Thursday) evening to meet with that club in their evening session, which will take the place of the regular meeting of the St. Joe club which is held on the second and fourth Monday evenings of each month.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

MAKE THEM "DIFFERENT"

Shots such as this—with an individual, "different" touch—lend life to your album. Try some, as a change from ordinary, routine poses.

EVERYBODY has his preferences—in pictures, in reading matter, in victuals, and other things. Abraham Lincoln summed it up neatly when he said, "You will like this story, if this is the kind of story you like."

However, despite differences of taste, most people agree on one point. They feel that something individual—something a little bit out of the ordinary—is better. It is the "different" treatment—the "individual touch"—that counts.

That's especially true in snapshots. A clever idea — a different pose — a little individuality in the lighting or arrangement — these give you pictures that make people sit up and take notice. And they're more interesting to you, too—they give you more satisfaction.

Consider one concrete case—snapshots of children. You know that most of them are "too much alike." As a rule, they tell no story—the child simply stands or sits and looks at the camera. Yet every child has a personality of its own. He—or she—has personal mannerisms, and personal activities. These are picture material, and will lend that necessary touch of truth and individuality to your pictures.

Trouble? None at all. Shots of Junior curled up on the couch in some absurd pose while he reads the Sunday comics—shots of your little girl lecturing her doll on proper behavior — shots of them both trying to teach the puppy to do tricks—these are just as easy to get as the old, routine shots. Easier, sometimes — because children are natural actors, and take readily to an idea if it seems like play.

And this is just one field. The same rule applies to all other snapshots. Seek the individual touch — the "different" flavor — and you'll build an album that is much more interesting.

AUBURN BECAME MILITARY CENTER TUESDAY

The east column of the 5th division from Fort Custer, Michigan, headed for maneuvers at Camp Forest, Tenn., began pouring into Auburn and vicinity about 9 A. M. Tuesday. There were 4,523 soldiers bivouaced in the vicinity of Auburn.

The advanced details reached there Monday to prepare the camp sites. After trucks of the mechanized units unloaded their cargo at the five camp sites in and around the city, they returned north to pick up the marching troops this side of Battle Creek, Mich. The last of the infantry pulled in around 7 P. M. Hundreds of curious civilians lined the edges of the camps to get a glimpse of just what Uncle Sam has up his sleeve.

Headquarters were established at Eckhart Park in South Auburn, with Brig. General Cortlandt Parker in command. Other sites were situated at Madden's field on East Seventh St.; W. T. VanAuken's farm, three miles east of Auburn; John E. Brown's farm, three miles east; Rieke airport, one-half mile northwest, and Ira Williams' farm, one-half mile west of Auburn.

BUTLER WORKMAN FALLS DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT

TWO CARS WRECKED IN AUTO COLLISION

The Reign Schondelmayer car and the Meyrs Coal Co. truck figured in a collision at the Carl Carpenter driveway last week. The truck, driven by Frank Curie, was making a delivery. He signalled his hand that he was about to turn in, looking into the mirror he saw the auto close behind and coming too fast to stop. The truck was turning back into the road just as they struck. Both cars were heavily damaged, and Reign knocked down the mail box and his car traveling sideway, went the full length of the Carpenter yard before stopping. No bodily injuries.

ENJOY OUTSIDE LIVING MORE THIS SUMMER

Let's all of us enjoy the yard more this Summer. How about fixing that outside fireplace that you promised last year? Use old grills and collect stones around the county, mix a little cement and there it is for the pleasure of your friends and family. Have a lot of meals on the porch or if you have rustic benches and tables in the yard or the last word in fancy lawn furniture, take advantage of them and eat out side under the trees. With the market offering you the latest in gliders, porch swings, hammocks, you can do a lot of napping out of doors too.

FRIENDSHIP DeLUXE

There is more than one way of showing your friendship to one another, and when you are asked to sit down to a fine fried chicken dinner with all the trimmings, and that means potatoes, noodles, and pie with whipped cream and the many other good things, then that's what the editor calls "Friendship DeLuxe." The Buckinghams were hosts Tuesday noon to Mrs. J. C. Hull and F. B. Leighty and wife. We all ate our portion and more, so if there should be any errors in The News, we are sure the chicken will take the blame. Anyway we appreciate the fine dinner with our good friends.

BOY INJURED WHEN FALLS ON MANURE SPREADER

Chas. Hartranft, who works at the Widney orchard, was injured Saturday when unloading manure. He was standing on the spreader scattering manure among the trees. The horses were eating grass and he spoke to them to straighten up when they started, they threw the boy into the spreader tongs, lacerating his leg so that several stitches were taken by Dr. DeMuth Saturday evening at his office.

GOing Places

With Republican State Officials at the Hoosier Capitol

Almost daily plaudits are received on the constructive program enacted by the recent Republican-controlled General Assembly. These praises are being received from all sections of the state despite the great efforts of the Democrat press agents to mislead the people who went to the polls last November and voted to end dictatorial government in Indiana.

* * *

Not only did the Legislature return government to the people as they desired but it enacted a model merit system and reduced the state budget approximately $5,500,00 under 1939 expenditures and about 28 million dollars under the recommendations of the state budget committee.

* * *

One example of the proof of popularity with the citizens of the Republican program is the recent meeting of the National League of Women Voters in Kokomo at which a dinner was held to celebrate the passage of the merit bill by the 1941 Legislature.

* * *

Another example is the great demand for Republican speakers throughout the state, from organizations desiring to obtain complete details of the recently enacted legislative program. Lieutenant-Governor Charles Dawson was called to Gary last week to explain the program and the following day he addressed a Republican women's meeting in Indianapolis. State Treasurer James M. Givens spoke at a meeting of the Irvington Republican club Monday. State Auditor Richard T. James has speaking engagements on the Republican program. Apparently the citizens of Indiana are turning "thumbs down" on the wild statements of the Demo press agents and are anxious to learn the truth. Secretary of State James M. Tucker also is filling many speaking engagements.

* * *

The American people, acording to Senator Raymond E. Willis, are in a state of deplorable, almost utter confusion because of a maze of distorted and unreliable information. They need "an honestly conceived summary" of national defense achievements, of the ability of the United States to defend itself, of the necessity of greater American aid to Great Britain, and he calls on President Franklin D. Roosevelt for a "clean, frank and succinct statement of facts."

* * *

Work has been completed on both the House and Senate Journals and they have been filed with the Secretary of State and the Legislative bureau. Statistics show that House expenses were below the 1939 expenditures.

* * *

Lieutenant-Governor Charles M. Dawson represented Indiana at a conference of Governors of seven states held in the Palmer House at Chicago last Saturday. Among those attending the parley, called to discuss transportation problems as they affect national defense, were Wendell L. Willkie, Indiana-born 1940 G. O. P. presidential nominee, and the Governors of Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota and Mr. Dawson.

JUST ONE

A court not far from St. Joe sentences a driver because he was driving while under the influence of drink. The man protested that he had only had one bottle of beer and couldn't have been drunk on just one! This is no excuse in any court. The drink of one beer may do more harm to one man than the same amount affects another. There have been cases of course where a man has been unjustly fined and punished for drinking while driving, when he had the odor of liquor on his breath but was not drunk and had full control of his car and his senses. With the heavy toll of auto accidents mounting and those items of drunken motorists finding their way to the public's notice there aren't going to be many courts that will be lenient with the man or woman who will get behind the wheel after one drink of beer and get mixed up in an auto accident. They will have a hard time proving they weren't drunk and make themselves liable to fines because they carry the odor of the evidence right with them.

PAY IT OFF

With the tremendous amount of money going into defense work, it means a greater demand in farm produce and the probable rise in farm prices. During this past year there was a noticable increase in the farmer's income and with this he has brot down his indebtedness on his land. A note of satisfaction comes with the knowledge that the farm mortgage debt in the U. S. is the smallest today it has been since the year 1919. A farmer near St. Joe thinks that due to the call for increased production and better prices that some farmes are going to run into serious debt to expand their business, figuring that the war will continue long enough for them to clear up these debts. But our friend suggests that the farmer reflect upon the probable increase in the cost of living, of the foreign market being practically nothing, and the wise farmer will continue to pay off the old debts and continue his present policy of reducing his farm mortgages and keeping his surplus for any higher cost of living.

THEY WILL FACE IT

There are many young people who are walking from the campus facing the world with sheepskin and scepticism. The commencement speaker who gets on the platform and tells youth that opportunities galore are running rampant outside the door, knows full well that his listeners don't believe him. They know this world is topsy-turvey and that it is going to require grit and gumption to face it as a beginner. But the youth are prepared to face it and know that if the world is made up of towns like ours, that it is a world worth struggling, fighting and working for. They are still looking to the future, for that is that glory in being young and a graduate. They will ask questions but if you can't answer them they will work it out for themselves. They aren't blind to the present conditions but they are going to try and help to get the world back in shape for living again. They are coming into business with us and are expecting to share with the company in its good and bad times. Business, American business, puts out the welcome mat wherever there is room, and we all must put our heads together and work to create the opportunities for our graduates.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day stands with special emphasis this year as the symbol of gallantry of those soldiers of the past and present who have served this country in the true American spirit of honor and respect for their native land. Whatever was the cause of battle, how many the years since the banner was carried for a principle, Americans pay honor each Spring to a day set aside in commemoration of our soldiers. No greater plea for peace, no more pronounced verdict against war can be uttered than to consider the pupose that brought about the first Memorial observance. While we wave flags and bunting, spread flowers, orate and parade to the day's heroes, we are all wondering why the brave should have had to suffer for the wrongs of the misguided and the selfish, the unjust and the cruel, the power crazed and money mad.

Wars are blights on the pages of history, yet history points out that the daring "have not died in vain," for there comes from the smoke of the battlefield a cleansing of purpose and a new spirit that strives to bring about peace with honor, peace with justice, an armistice for the world. We have pledged to uphold our government, to save her in the name of freedom for the generations to come. Memorial Day is the tribute to those men who have paid with their lives as they march to defend this pledge.

In St. Joe we have not forgotten loyalty, nor overlooked the defense offered this nation and this town. We are dedicating this day to those men of the wars past and are paying tribute to the spirit of the soldiers of the present. There are sacrifices to be made for liberty and we want those from the past and of the present to know that Memorial Day is not an empty symbol to us but a living, breathing, pulsing evidence of a nation's respect and undying gratitude for defense to continue to preserve the great institutions of our homeland.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

To the unanswered questions of history, such as Who was the Man in the Iron Mash? there has lately been added the query: Why did Hess fly to England? The Duke of Hamilton, and Mr. Kirkpartick of the Foreign Office, have Hess under cross examination. They will find out what he is up to, and then make the information public: both "perhaps," especially so far as getting to the root of the matter is concerned. In the meantime, remarks on the subject will have to consist of speculation and random comment.

A Laborite member of the House of Commons hits the nail squarely on the head. He inquires as to the occasion for so much talk. Why not treat Hess like any other invading German, lock him up, and let it go at that? To the member's suggestion can be added the remark that maybe it was a mistake to give any publicity at all to the affair.

If experience is a teacher, one may assume that the high-position Nazi did not make what is commonly known as a getaway. He was sent, and sent for a puprose. Publicity may have been expected, and relied upon to carry out the end in view. Nevertheless, it is unwise to criticize the British censorship. Considering the tenseness of the British public mind, a nation-wide furor over Hess may be exactly the sort of relaxation that is needed.

It is possible that the ancient Borgia family of poisoners may have given someone a mixture of arsenic and ptomaines in a sincere effort to cure him of disease. In collecting material for "Strange As It Seems," Mr. Ripley may have run across a case in which a professional burglar blew open a safe in order to be able to put money in it. Yet until the law of probabilities is cast aside as of no value, it will be best to assume that Nazi parachutists landing on foreign soil are bent on mischief: and that the more benign and reasonable they appear to be, the more closely should they be watched.

The adage runs that politics makes strange bedfellows. The word "war" might well be substituted for "politics." Few Americans who were of thinking age three years ago, to say nothing of those who bear the wounds of Verdun and the Marne, expected to live to see the day when the French slogan would be, not hands across the sea, but hands across the Maginot line. Common sense teaches that the "collaboration" is not entirely a matter of choice, so far as the French are concerned: yet the spectacle presented by a France who is reduced to a condition in which she must swallow bitter German medicine and call it sweet, is almost as distressing as the one that would be offered by a France gone Nazi of her own free will and accord.

There is no use of being too hard on Chief of State Petain. At eighty-five, men incline toward the easiest way. Then, too, an aged person's proverbial hard luck has to be considered. "When thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldest not." Add to these, the circumstance that millions are looking toward General Petain for the means of safe existence, as a child toward a father for keeping, and it will have to be admitted that the venerable warrior's position is trying.

The France-German agreement was doubly distasteful to the White House: primarily because it strengthened the arms of Hitler; secondarily because it was a monkey wrench thrown into the machinery of the current war diplomacy of the United States. President Rosevelt is opressed neither by a burden of years nor the leadership of a people enfeebled to a point where assent alone is possible. His reaction was prompt, vigorous, and alleged to be characterized by indignation. The immediate and practical working out of his views was the seizure of thirteen French ships, including the famous Normandie. Probably the French, certainly those of them who are not polluted, agree with the protest of the President that the recent doings of the Vichy government are a menace to the pace and safety of the Western Hemisphere.

HEALTH HINTS for LIVESTOCK

AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

RABIES A THREAT TO ALL LIVESTOCK

Rabies or hydrophobia is without doubt the most dreaded of all the virus diseases affecting animals and man.

Known since ancient times, all warm blooded animals can contract rabies, and death is the invariable conclusion if infection is positive and symptoms have developed.

Rabies may be of the dumb (paralytic) or the furious (maniacal) type. Cats, foxes, skunks, wolves, coyotes, etc. usually show the furious or biting type, while dogs, the most common sufferers from the disease, may show either the dumb or furious form.

Ever since the immortal Pasteur worked out a rabies vaccine for human beings—the Pasteur treatment—scientists have searched ceaselessly for ways and means of making the vaccine for both man and animals more surely effective, more potent, quicker to act. Their efforts have been richly rewarded, for rabies vaccination has saved countless thousands of human lives, and prevented the disease in untold millions of valued pets.

Very recently another great advance has been accomplished in the manufacture of rabies vaccine. As usual, the vaccine is made from the brains of sheep or goats, processed with glycerine and phenol. However, a method of standardising the protective strength of each lot of vaccine has been devised through use of white mice as test animals.

By this method a group of mice is vaccinated in the same manner as are dogs, but with a dose according to their body-weight. After a period of days the mice then receive an injection of the actual virus or rabies through a hair-fine needle directly beneath the membranes covering the brain. Although the test is extremely severe, all of the vaccinated mice must survive and the unvaccinated mice must die of rabies before government inspectors release the vaccine for commercial use. The method is known as the Habel mouse test.

Deaths from rabies are largely avoidable if everyone bitten by an animal suspected of having rabies will immediately report to the family physician. This is equally true of protecting animal life, as livestock bitten by rabid dogs or wild animals can also be protected if proper doses of preventive vaccine are given by the veterinarian soon after exposure.

THORNE AND PETILLO LONG AND SHORT OF RACE DRIVERS

JOE THORNE
KELLY PETILLO

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The long and short of it among the race drivers are lanky Joe Thorne and dumpy little Kelly Petillo. But long or short, they've both got their hearts set on winning the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Speedway on May 30.

Thorne is a millionaire who is in the game for the sheer love of motors and speed, although he is not averse to hauling down a chunk of prize money when the opportunity offers. A consistent driver himself, Thorne has been finishing better and better every year in the annual motor classic. Last year he finished fifth, his best position to date.

Petillo, despite his size, or maybe because of it, is one of the most colorful figures in the business. Winner of the 1935 Indianapolis race, he has plenty of "foot" when the chips are down. He moves into turns at terrifying speed and scoots down the straightaways like a newly sprung arrow, all of which makes him a great favorite with the rail birds, win or lose.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Congressional mail in opposition to convoying of lease-lend shipments to the European War Zone has increased sharply in the last few days, indicating that the danger of such a course of action is being brought home forcibly to the American people.

The increase is particularly evident in the office of Rep. George W Gillie, sponsor of an anti-convoy resolution in the House. Judging from these letters, residents of Northeastern Indiana are at least 20 to 1 against convoys and against Americn involvment in the war.

OVERWHELMING sentiment against convoys in Indiana also was revealed in a poll of readers conducted by an Indianapolis newspaper. The poll showed 92 per cent against convoys, with only 8 per cent favoring them.

A VOTE on this question in Congress today would find both U. S. Senators from Indiana opposing convoys, and at least nine of the 12 Representatives in the anti-convoy camp. Senator Willis and Van Nuys are openly unfriendly to the proposal, as are all eight Republican Congressmen and Rep. Louis Ludlow, Indianapolis Democrat.

REPRESENTATIVE Ludlow recently voiced his opposition to convoys in a speech before Congress. In the course of his remarks he said:

"In this solemn hour, when war fever along the seaboard is running high and many of our citizens in those sections are thinking and acting irrationally, it seems to me, from all I can see and hear, that Indiana is about the sanest spot in America. Our Indiana people despise Hitlerism and all the hateful reactionary policies it stands for, but they wonder what we would be getting into if we take over and try to fight a war against three, and possibly four, of the most highly mechanized military powers of the world—a war we did not start."

MRS. GEORGE W. GILLIE, wife of the Representative from Indiana, presided over a luncheon this week at which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a guest of honor. The luncheon for the First Lady was given by the Seventy-Six Club, an organization of Congressional wives of which Mrs. Gillie is president. Mrs. Roosevelt, addressing the group, discussed proposed changes in the Selective Service Act, suggesting among other things that there should be uniform application of the law, especially as it effects the deferment of married men.

CAPITOL QUIZ. What are the qualifications of a Member of the House of Representatives?

Answer. A Representative must be at least 25 years of age, must have been a United States citizen for at least 7 years, and must reside in the State—and usually, although not necessarily, in the District—from which he is sent to Congress.

Answer. Members accumulate little, if anything, by reason of their service. Congressmen every two years are usually called upon to spend quite sizeable sums for campaign expense. In addition, living expenses in Washington are high. Besides a home usually is maintained in the District from which a Member is elected.

QUESTION. Can Members of Congress be impeached?

Answer. No; they are not subject to impeachment, but each House can expel a Member by a two-thirds vote.

QUESTION. Are eating places provided in the Capitol for Members and their guests?

Answer. Yes: in both the Senate and House wings of the Capitol meals are served at prevailing prices. Meals are not served free to anyone.

QUESTION. Is smoking permitted in Congress?

Answer. By the rules of the Senate and the House, Members are not permitted to smoke while on the floor.

QUESTION. Is there a bar in the Capitol?

Answer. No; the last saloon bar was taken out of the Capitol in 1903.

QUESTION. Are Members provided with offices in which to conduct their business?

Answer. The 435 Members of the House have offices in two buildings about 150 yards south of the Capitol. When the weather is bad, they can reach the Capitol Building through a subway.

The 96 Senators are provided offices in a building about 150 yards northeast of the Capitol. The Senators are provided with a one-rail electric train in a subway for quick transportation from their building to the Senate floor.

(These questions and answers are taken from a booklet, "Our American Government. What is it? How does it function?" which may be obtained without cost by writing to: Hon. George W. Gillie, 1522 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.)

LOG of the UNITED STATES MARINES

BASEBALL FOLLOWS FLAG

Baseball, long called our national game, is familiar to many nations beyond our borders. The fact that the game is popular in other countries is largely due to the travels of our soldiers, sailors and marines who have carried their baseball gloves and bats with them when they have gone abroad.

Whenever the Marines have landed and have established themselves, they have played baseball. In China, the Philippines, Guam, Cuba, or Nicaragua, baseball diamonds were laid out as soon as the immediate objectives of the various expeditions to those countries had been achieved.

Japanese teams have played the U. S. Marines in the United States, in Japan, and elsewhere in the Orient. When the sea soldiers introduced base ball to Nicaragua it caught on like wildfire, and soon native teams played baseball with the same enthusiasm and with almost as much skill as their American tutors.

Few races have taken to the pastime with more zest than the Filipinos, who promptly adopted the sport as their own after watching our doughboys or marines on the diamond. In less than ten years after the American occupation of the Philippines many native teams were expert players.

Cubans have long been proficient in our national game and some of them have won places with our big league teams. From time to time postseason games, played by American professionals have attracted fans in Europe or in countries as far distant as Ceylon and Egypt.

Baseball appears to interest spectators of all races, but it is generally in those countries where our Marines or doughboys have remained for long periods that the game has taken firm root and won new nationals to its ranks.

RENE LE BEGUE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—If the vicissitudes of war permit, Rene LeBegue, the French speed star, will offer hot competition to the American drivers in this year's 500-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway race. In Vichy, France, LeBegue is trying desperately to get clearance through the British blockade for his two French cars. If he succeeds in unwinding the red tape he will add a lot of color to the racing scene. For LeBegue drove in last year's race amidst dramatic circumstances and finished tenth—in the money. He and a colleague, Rene Dreyfus, were released from the French Army for the purpose. He qualified but Dreyfus, driving the same kind of car, failed. Two days before the race LeBegue's car developed motor trouble and mechanics worked ceaselessly night and day switching the motors of the two cars. LeBegue rolled up to the starting line just in time for the gun.

THE TOWNSEND PLAN MEETS EVERY TEST

(By Ivan Tornowsky)

The writers of The Townsend Bill made every effort to meet all possible contingencies. Curtain clauses may seem totally unnecessary to some people, but the student of the measure may rest assured that every clause meets a definite need.

On page 12, lines 19-24 (H. R. 1036) "Any annuitant may waive all or any part of his right to an annuity under this title by filing a notice thereof with the Secretary of the Treasuary in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury shall proscribe, any such waiver shall not affect the right of any person to apply for an annuity at any time thereafter."

Only Know Poverty

Impossible as it may seem to residents of large cities there are certain smaller rural communities in the United States where, due to generations of privations, the people have no concepts beyond those of absolute and dire poverty. It is natural that the occasion to spend in these communities is very limited and an annuitant may be able to spend not more than $30 out of his $50 pension.

The clause quoted above permits him to waive the difference, $20, in order not to violate the law. It is hoped, of course, that as more persons become educated to greater enjoyments that all will easily keep pace in their spending with rapidly advancing pensions.

Moves Idle Funds

The Townsend gross income tax of 2 per cent assessed against incomes of $250 per month merely brings hitherto idle funds into use and circulation. The spending of the pension money, as it passes through many hands, engenders an increased gross income which, in turn, makes it possible for the Federal Government to pay larger sums to those past 60, or indeed, if power-age necessity should dictate, slightly lower the age of retirement.

On page 12 of the Townsend Act, we read: "Any sum received by an annuitant which represents the proceeds of a sale of any real property acquired through the use of money received as an annuity under this title shall be expended by the annuitant within six months after the receipt of such proceeds of such a sale."

Must Pay Part

This means that if pension money is used, let us say, to make monthly installment payments on a $5,000 home, and if, after two years, the pensionier sells his home, he will be requierd to spend any part representing pension money received from the sale for goods and services, or for another home within six months. The intent here is to keep the money circulating and prevent the pensioner from using the pension money for investment.

On page 13 of the bill this paragraph occurs: "An annuitant shall not pay to any person any salary, wages, or other compensations in disproportion to the services rendered."

Under Section 304 (E) page 12, lines 12 and 13, it is indicated that no annuitant shall support an able bodied person in idleness except a spouse. The intent of this last paragraph is to enforce this essential provision. Opponents of our program often assert that pensioning the elders would result in making loafers out of our sons and daughters. The error of this argument is apparent.

While the St. Joe Club has been inactive for a few months, an effort is being made by the officers to have a representative speaker appear at St. Joe in the near future to address the public. Official notice will appear later.

BARN BURNS COMPLETELY MONDAY EVENING

The Stemen barn, east of Spencerville, burned to the ground Monday evening, and the origin of the blaze is a mystery. Besides the barn and some hay, 4,000 pounds of wool was consumed, which was a $1,600 loss. The St. Joe fire department answered the late call but were only able to protect nearby buildings. When discovered by Mrs. Stemen, the barn was in flames.

It is said that a person who admires flowers, really has a heart, and if that be true, most people are guilty of having a heart. In The News office window we have a Gloxinia now in full bloom and nearly every passerby stops and remarks concerning its beauty. We have had many opportunities of disposing of the plant for cash, but we deisre the plant more than the money. This week we received a card from H. R. Smith, a candy salesman from Lansing, Michigan, on which he wrote: "I may be down your way before long, to Hicksville on a visit, and if so will come over and see the plant. Mrs. Smith wants to see it too."

WEEDS AND GRASS CUT ALONG STATE HIGHWAYS

Mowing of more than nine thousand miles of right-of-way along Indiana state highways is being completed as a step in having the system in readiness for the heavy traffic this weekend.

The cutting of weeds and grass along the state roads has been in progress for several days, being done by highway maintenance workers and by farmers employed for that purpose.

Approximately three-quarters of a million dollars is spent annually in cutting weeds and grass along the state highways and in cleaning the roadsides. During the year hundreds of loads of paper, old cans, bottles and other debris are collected by highway maintenance crews, keeping roadsides attractive.

This mowing and cleaning of rights-of-way along the state highway system is one of the activities which win commendation from visiting motorists and tourists. Frequently they write to the Highway Commission that the Indiana highways are the best kept that they have encountered in their travels.

Traffic on the state highway system this weekend is expected to set a new record with thousands of motorists taking advantage of the three-day holiday for family outings.

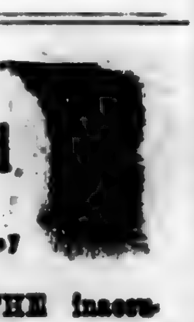
REVISED FISHING LAW FOLDERS DISTRIBUTED

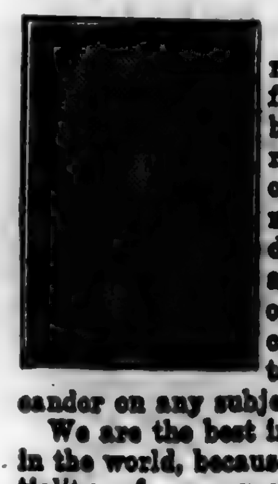
Revised summaries of Indiana laws on fishing, hunting and trapping are now available at the St. Joe News Office. The new summaries contain changes in fishing, hunting and trapping laws enacted by the General Assembly.

No change was made in laws on licenses, closed seasons or bag limits for fish. The only change in the laws affecting fishing was a provision making it illegal to take channel catfish which are less than 10 inches in lenth. Contrary to an impression prevalent in some areas, no restriction was placed on the number of poles which any one angler could use.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hartranft and daughter, Mary Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hartranft and daughter Carroll, all of Elkhart were Sunday guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hartranft and family just east of town.

Doctor Townsend Says . . . . . .





THE inaccuracies of the foreign press brings into bold relief the value of our American newspaper industry, for in all the world only the American press is free to speak with candor on any subject.

We are the best informed people in the world, because of the impartiality of our newspaper correspondents and editors. Foreign propaganda of the vicious type has not penetrated our press. We want to see both sides of an issue so that we ourselves may judge its merits.

Let us hope that we can remain open-minded and make our own decisions on domestic issues as well as those from abroad. Only in this way may we hope to chart the course of government correctly.

PRESIDENT ORDERS NEW REGISTRATION

President Roosevelt proclaimed July 1 as selective service registration day for all men who have become 21 since the first draft registration was held on October 16, 1940.

The new registration will bring to selective service lists the names of thousands of youths who have attained their majority since the last registration day.

Subject to the enrollment are the following:

1. "Such person who on or before July 1, 1941, and subsequent to October 16, 1940, has attained the 21st anniversary of the day of his birth, and has not heretofore been registered under the selective training and service act of 1940.

2. "Such person who on October 16, 1940, had attained the 21st aniversary of the day of his birth, and has not heretofore been registered under the selective training and service act of 1940; provided that the duty of any to present himself for and submit to registration in accordance with any previous proclamation issued under the said act shall not be affected by this proclamation."

An estimated 1,250,000 to 1,300,000 young men are expected to register.

START EARLY—TAKE IT EASY—PLAY IT SAFE

Honor the dead, but protect the living!

The National Safety Council thus called on all drivers and pedestrians today to unite in a concerted effort to hold down what threatens to be the greatest Memorial Day traffic in the nation's history.

On the basis of information now available for the first time, the Council predicts that 400 persons—an all-time high—will meet death in the holiday traffic jam unless every driver and every pedestrian accepts a personal responsibilty to use more skill and caution than in previous years.

Last year, the Council reported, 100 persons were killed in Memorial Day traffic, with only a one-day holiday. This year there will be a three-day holiday, since Memorial Day falls on Friday. Furthermore, the national traffic toll is running 16 per cent ahead of last year.

"It is ironic," said Col. John Stilwell, president of the Council, "that even as America honors its dead on Memorial Day, it piles up a huge toll of dead and injured through traffic crashes. The soldier heroes whose graves we visit gave their lives for a cause, but the hundreds who are killed in holiday triffic die needlessly."

The Council offers this suggestion for holiday safety: start early, take it easy, play it safe!

The S. Joe Agricultural 4-H Club will meet Monday night, June 2, at 8 o'clock, D. S. T., at St. Joe Gym.

Miss Martha Young, of Huntington, spent Monday and Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Chasey, of Fort Wayne, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker, Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Killiam, of near Newville, were evening callers.

Garth Shull cut four acres of alfalfa Monday and you know the quality of this hay is A-1. While the first cutting was light he anticipates rain soon and that will put the field in shape for a bumper second cutting. A. M. Baker is helping with the work.

Symbolic of scenes throughout the nation on Memorial day is this bugler of America's 1941 army. Against a back-drop of the thinned ranks of the Blue and the Gray and the marching feet of the parading veterans of the Spanish-American war and the World war of 1917-18, he sounds "Taps" over the graves of America's war dead. Memorial day is annually the day for decorating the graves of the warrior dead. Established originally in memory of those who lost their lives in the Civil war it has since been made the occasion for recalling those who died in other wars.

THREE WEEKS UNTIL '41 FISHING SEASON OPENS FOR HOOSIERS

While Indiana's fishing season for bass, bluegills and other game species does not open until June 16, three weeks from Monday of this week, anglers in all parts of the state are speculating upon the season's possibilities.

The effect of dry weather with practically all streams at abnormally low stages during the spawing season is being discussed by thousands of anglers in parts of the state where they do not have access to lake fishing. Without the normal rainfall during the Spring, many streams did not receive their usual cleaning with the result that at many points the water has become unsatisfactory for fish life.

Anglers in the lake region are also looking forward to the opening of the season with unusual interest, due in part to the low lake levels. They are anticipating that unless there is considerable rainfall before the opening of the season, most of the fish will be congregated in the deeper holes and that fishing will be concentrated in these areas.

If there should be heavy rains before June 16, anglers who depend upon the streams for their sport fear that the high waters may destroy the nests or carry the young fish away.

Regardless of the weather conditions, Indiana's army of over a half-million anglers is going ahead with its preparations for the opening of the season.

Plans are already under way in several communities for their annual parties and entertainment celebrating the opening of the fishing season. During recent years these events have become community holidays with special programs and other activities attracting anglers from all parts of the state.

Regardless of the fact that some parts of Indiana are operating on Daylight Time and others on Standard Time, the fishing season does not officially open until midnight, June 15, Central Standard Time.

MORTUARY

WASSON

Wallace M., son of Lewis R., and Elizabeth Valentine Wasson, was born November 19, 1875 near Spencerville, Indiana, and departed this life on May 24, 1941, at his home in Stafford Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, being at the time of his death 65 years, 6 months, and 5 days of age.

He grew to manhood in the community where he was born and on July 4, 1902, he was united in marriage with Eva G. Steele, of Butler, Indiana. To this union were born five sons and four daughters: Lewis, Kenneth, Russell, D. O., Richard, Pauline, Harriet, Dorothy, and Frances. Frances died in infancy.

He had followed farming all his life and never had lived very far from the place of his birth. He was a good neighbor and friend, and will be greatly missed in the community, as well as in the home. He was the last of his parent's family having been preceded in death by his parents, four brothers, one sister and one half-brother.

Left to mourn their loss are the wife, Eva; five sons, Lewis of Bucyrus, Ohio, Kenneth of Burlington, Indiana, Russell, D. O. and Richard at home; three daughters, Mrs. Pauline Green of West Reading, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Harriet Oberlin, St. Joe, Indiana, and Mrs. Dorothy Baron, of Fort Wayne, Indiana; and five grandchildren, besides other relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral services were conducted from the home Monday afternoon, with burial in Rievrside cemetery at St. Joe.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend to all our most grateful thanks for the kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement.—Eva Wasson and Children

Children's Day exercises will be held at Hopewell U. B. Church in Jackson Township on June 1 at 8 o'clock., D. S. T.

Before the heat of Summer sits too heavily, jot down a few notes on drinking. Be sure and drink plenty of water during hot weather. We need it for the body's good for our digestive system demands extra amounts of water during hot days. Drink lots of fruit juices and have them ready for the family just before each meal, especially breakfast. If you use carbonated drinks with your juice preparation, be sure that it is properly chilled before adding to the drink.

GOing Places With Republican State Officials at the Hoosier Capitol

Sunday, June 1st will mark the effective date of the Stout law regulating the sale of alcoholic beverages in Indiana. On that date tenure of office of all employees of the Alcoholic Beverage Commission ends. And on the succeeding day all employment in the commission will be on a fifty-fifty basis politically The Stout bill provides bi-partisan control and regulation of the sale of alcoholic beverages in Indiana.

The four members of the commission were appointed effective May 1st. Divided equally politically members of the commission are Harry C. Fenton, former secretary of the Republican State Committee and Lowell H. Patterson, Republicans, and Hugh A. Barnhart and Bernard Doyle, Democrats. Under terms of the Stout Law the commission is supreme in its own authority and all expenses of the commission are paid from special taxes levied on the industry. Taxpayers of Indiana contributed nothing through property tax for maintenance of the commission.

• • •

All employees of the commission will begin their tenure as of June 1st. The law specifies that an equal number of Democrats and Republicans be employed in all capacities in connection with the commission's duties. Under the old system, excepting only members of the commission themselves, there were extremely few Republicans on the ABC payroll.

Many provisions of the Stout Law became effective May 1st. Particularly so was the enforcement provision made effective and if the past thirty days' actions are an indication Indiana will see strict enforcement of what has been termed a model liquor regulation act. In recent days a large number of private clubs and individual tavern operators have been cited to appear before the commission to show cause why their permits should not be revoked because of various law violations. In several instances licenses have been revoked, others have been suspended and a number of other operators have been assessed fines.

• • •

This strict enforcement of the law is being welcomed by legitimate permit holders. Officials of various organizations within the industry have asserted they favor heartily enforcement of the spirit and letter of the law.

• • •

Mrs. Marjorie Roemler Kinnaird, reporter of the Supreme and Appellate courts has returned from Washington, D. C. where she was signally honored last Monday by admission to the practice of law before the United States Supreme Court. Mrs. Kinnaird's admission to the Supreme Court bar was moved by Representative Raymond S. Springer of Connersville, Representative in Congress from the Tenth Indiana District and former Republican nominee for Governor of Indiana. Mrs. Kinnaird is one of very few women in Indiana who are permitted to practice before the highest court in the United States.

• • •

Republican orators are continuing their work on the stump in Indiana. Lieutenant Governor Charles M. Dawson was the principal speaker at a Memorial Day observance at Muncie last Sunday. State Treasurer James M. Givens and other state officials also are carrying the Republican gospel to all corners of the state.

Reports from the sick list: Neil D. McCallum, popular secretary of the State Committee and of the Indiana Republican Editorial, Association is improving rapidly after a serious operation at the Methodist hospital in Indianapolis a few weeks ago.

FLAG DAY

The approach of another Flag Day, June 14, for Americans, finds us still basking in the stars and stripes. We count these stars with satisfaction and recall the early history of the struggle of each state as it found its way to place the star into the upper left corner of Old Glory. It keeps our government busy taking care of its forty-eight, to rule them wisely and well is our country's aim. There are many foreign powers who have under their wing many nationalities with each its different flags and codes. This one of ours which flies in the breeze that blows o'er the land of the brave, covers the forty-eight states as one. There is union here, and strength in union has been quoted as surviving the longest.

The original flag that represented our nation was not the one which graces the flag-poles today. It started into being as a white banner with the red cross of St. George on it and was used by the early colonies. Since then the American flags have had different colors, inscribed with mottoes and many devices as symbols of liberty. A beaver, pine tree, crescent and coiled rattlesnake have each had their place on the early American flags. It took a Continental Congress back in 1777 to put an end to the many flags and settle upon one banner to be the symbol and standard for this people.

We are proud of our flag, honor and respect it, what it means and what it covers. Long may the soft winds of hope, the fresh breezes of freedom and the eddying of courage waft the stripes and the stars aloft to swing in harmony and sweet peace over our heads.

CUT THIS OUT

With all the discussion of finding money to pay for defense works, we worry about how it will affect us in St. Joe. We figure on how the government could cut out certain expenses that are seemingly useless. All folks who run homes know that there are a number of small things that can be eliminated that will save money and not inflict hardship on any of its members. This comes to mind when a subscriber asked why, except for votes and some sentiment, did our representatives want to appropriate so much money for the erection of memorials. We do not believe we should forget the honored dead but we agree that these have waited this long for recognition in marble that they might wait longer until we can nationally afford the tribute. Our representatives have asked for over six million dollars for a memorial list which includes Revolutionary generals, inventors, governors, and explorers and this amount of money doesn't cover the complete list even yet. Six million dollars may be a small sum to the government but in our house we were taught that the pennies made the nickles that go to make the dimes that count into the dollars.

MORE OF THE ARMY

Many have been the reasons given for men and their families feeling they should be exempt from service, just reasons and others no reasons at all! A psychiatrist who spoke recently regarding those men unfit for service gives us a new slant and a new excuse. He feels that we should first of all reject the man who is more than morally shy, the type who dislikes crowds and wants to be alone. He who feels inferior to his fellows doesn't make a good soldier, nor does the chap who is temperamental and who flares up and grows moody. The soldier who is not cooperative and is antagonistic, refuses to make friends and is suspicious of others will not do for army duty either. Maybe the psychiatrist is right, but to eliminate all such types would find us with such a small army we might not be able to withstand a pigmy invasion from Rhode Island. With all of us so full of phobias we might each have such an excuse for not fitting into the army, but again we might find that army life would cure us of these phobias. Perhaps regulation army life might make over the man with the temperament, who is shy, suspicious, feels inferior and dislikes crowds.

TROUBLE WITH THE RAILS

The Railroad Brotherhoods have demanded a 30 per cent increase in all basic rates of pay and they will proceed along the lines provided in the Railway Labor Act to enforce their claim. The Brotherhoods represent 350,000 operating trainmen. Railroad spokesmen declare that it will be financially impossible to increase railway wage $168,000,000 a year. The railroads have been using alibis like this for the past 30 or 40 years, but whenever their stocks and securities struck bottom they have usually pulled themselves out of the hole by their bootstraps with the help of the United States Government.

Any time the Government looks at the record the fact will be disclosed that it is cheaper to finance the railroads than to experiment with Government ownership.

In recent years the railroads have been doing pretty well in caring for their end of transportation. But they are always afraid of getting another bump in the slats. The Big Five Railroad Brotherhoods include an exceptionally high grade of employes, and they have demanded increases in pay on account of "soaring prices and the general increase in cost of living.

This is a serious matter that may call for action by some Federal authority—among which the Mediation Board seems to be the most competent.

TELEGRAPH COMPANIES

The rich old Western Union and the prosperous Postal Telegraph Company aren't doing very well financially and the Federal Communications Commission is trying to help them out of a hole. The chairman of the commission has urged Congress to authorize a merger of two wire companies. He says that these companies cannot live through another prolonged depression, or recession in the general business level because another widespread disturbance of that kind in the United States would "drive both companies to the wall and I don't mean just financial bankruptcy. I mean discontinuance of service."

WHO'S GAME COMES FIRST

Labor strikes have been more frequent and have involved a larger number of workers during the past two months than at any time since the sit-down strikes in Detroit. There has been no end of criticism of the National Administration because of its continued defense of "labor's gains," as a reason for not cracking down on big strikes that have interfered with national defense. The present agitation of the question favors greater power to the Mediation Board for settling labor strikes. But it does not seem probable that anything will be done in that direction or through the passage of new laws by Congress. It is common talk in Washington that the politicians are all afraid of the aggressive CIO and its affiliated unions.

STATIC IN THE STATIONS

The existing method of radio broadcasting has been built up very expertly during the past 15 or 20 years. All the consumer contributes to the broadcast is the price of a radio set which he may use indefinitely. Radio is supported by advertising, and the only objection to that is it takes a good many million dollars worth of revenue away from newspapers and publications. But it's too late to cry about that, because it can't be helped.

To what extent radio broadcasting is a monoply doesn't fuss the public. But everybody knows that radio is so clean that children can listen to it. You never have to apologize to a radio—just turn the darn thing off.

The serious side of present-day radio is that the broadcasting stations and the Federal Communications Commission are at loggerheads. The Commission is attempting to reorganize matters in a way that upsets the calculations of the concerns that have put their fortunes into the business and built it up. If radio broadcasting is a giant trust it certainly is as good as the telephone company, which monopolizes both sides of the street; and it is quite as efficient as the telegraph companies.

HOW IS OUR WAR GOING?

The program for building up National Defense is progressing very well, and industries and business firms are "delivering the goods" according to agreements, to the Government. The biggest slow-down has resulted from strikes, and there are no indications that we have seen the last of these.

The testimony of high Naval officers is that there have been only about a dozen ships lost that carried American goods. Planes have been flown across the Atlantic to England with practically no loss in transit.

In the meantime the American Treasury has been giving all-aid to Britain, by and with the consent of the Administration and Congress. The number of our own ships has been supplemented by reason of the "capture" of vessels of many nations that sought refuge in our harbors, and by new merchant and war vessels being built in our own shipbuilding plants.

The European War isn't going just exactly the way official Washington helped plan it. That may partially explain the increase of propaganda by private organizations and groups that are trying to bring pressure on the National Administration to drop "neutrality," and use the American Navy and our Merchant marine for out-and-out participation in the war.

But the war mongers are not supported by public opinion, as has been shown by the Gallup Poll, which has the reputation of being thoroughly reliable. The same condition reported from private investigations is sustained in the flood of letters to Senators and Congressmen whose mail shows overwhelming opposition to all proposals that would send the young men of this country to war.

ONLY THREE-TIME WINNERS STILL RIVALS ON TRACK

LOUIS MEYER
WILBUR SHAW

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—When racing men sit down to gab about the greats of the game the names of Shaw and Meyer are mentioned with awe. Wilbur Shaw and Louis Meyer are the only three-time winners of the Indianapolis 500-mile race and both will be seeking victory again on May 30. But Shaw will be there in the role of driver and Meyer's interest is now that of the owner-engineer.

Louis Meyer was one of the most skillful drivers that ever zoomed a car around the Hoosier oval. The cool Californian whizzed to victory in 1928, 1933 and again in 1936. He retired from competitive driving in 1939 after his car pinwheeled out of the race when he was within grasp of victory.

So now Meyer has turned to other aspects of the business—engineering and building of race cars. He is now associated with owner Robert Bowes of Indianapolis and this year will again put on the track the motored comet with which Rex Mays set last year's qualifying record. Meyer master-minded Mays into second place last year and many race fans believe he would have been first but for a rain that slowed the field down.

Although Meyer has retired from the driving end of the game, there is nothing to prevent him from coming out of retirement and driving for a fourth victory, just as Shaw will do this year. Shaw, the Dapper Dan of racing, is one of the brainiest drivers in the business. A first rate athlete, natty dresser and excellent after-dinner speaker, he is one of the highest type champions in the sports world. As a driver he is known for that enviable combination of daring and good judgment. Should he succeed in winning again this year, as he did in 1937, 1939 and 1940, he will certainly be entitled to a special niche in Sports' Hall of Fame.

PREPARED BY AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

VACCINATION VS. BANG'S DISEASE

Bang's disease (Brucellosis), probably the most costly of all livestock diseases, is doubly important because the germ also causes Undulent Fever of human beings. It is estimated that farmers lose more than a hundred million dollars annually because of Bang's disease in cattle.

For many years control of Bang's disease in cattle has centered around a blood test very similar to that used in detection of human typhoid. Several thousands herds in the United States have been entirely freed from the disease by this so-called test and slaughter method.

After many years of research, government veterinary scientists have perfected a method of vaccinating young calves with a living culture of the Bang's disease germ.

Over a period of six years, 17,000 calves between the ages of 5 and 7 months were given this vaccine. They were from 260 herds where Bangs' disease was proved to exist. By 1940 some 8,000 of these vaccinated calves had given birth to three calves with a calving efficiency of 96.2 per cent. Checked by blood tests only 128 or 1.6 per cent of the premature births of calves that occurred among these 8,000 vaccinated animals were due to the Bang germ.

Eminent veterinary authorities point out, however, that calfhood vaccination must not be considered the sole answer to nationwide control of Bang's disease or so-called contagious abortion. In fact, indiscriminate use of the vaccine by those who are unskilled may actually hinder ultimate control of the plague. Farmers considering such vaccination should do so only after consultation with their veterinarian.

Most veterinarians believe that the ideal way to approach the Bang's disease problem on the average farm is to combine the best features of both blood testing of mature cows, and protective vaccination of young calves. Plans are being made in many states where federal and state authorities will supervise the elimination of the disease from herds by a combination of vaccination and testing.

Dan M. Link, of Auburn, former judge, of the DeKalb Circuit Court, has been chosen as special judge to preside in the case of Edmund A. Bittler, receiver of the Harlan State bank against Noah Amstutz, a suit for $4,900 on a note, in the Allen Circuit Court at Fort Wayne. Judge Harry H. Hilgemann had disqualified himself as judge because he had at one time served as counsel for Amstutz.

The court house in Auburn will soon have a new 65-foot flag pole gracing its front lawn. The pole will be set at the south side of the west entrance, and it will be implanted in a concrete base five feet deep. As the pole will screw into a fitting in the base, it may be removed without tearing up the concrete. Welding of the pole was done gratis by the Warner Automotive Parts division in Auburn.

The Government needs money and that's the reason why special bonds and stamps have been placed on the market. But the Treasury Department seems to be more enthusiastic over the bond program than the American public because sales of these National Defense Securities are below expectations. If you don't help the Government out on bonds that will pay you interest on your investment you are quite sure to "pay through the nose" in higher taxes. So, there is more than one way to figure out that bonds are a good buy.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

HINTS FOR SUCCESSFUL POULTRY RAISING

Pullets that will produce eggs well next fall and winter need to be fed well to obtain in them early maturity and satisfactory development, says C. E. Baker, county agricultural agent.

Here are six suggestions on how to produce better pullets so that this county may help do its share in the Food for Defense Program.

1. Feed a well balanced growing ration—not just grain and water.
2. Provide an adequate supply of fresh clean water.
3. Provide enough roosts in a well ventilated house or range shelter.
4. See that the pullets have a desirable range.
5. Provide some shade for the hot weather.
6. Guard against thieving.

That growing pullets need less detailed care than chicks, does not mean they should be neglected during the summer, states Baker. Neglecting a few items this summer may mean late maturity and low egg production this fall.

There should be enough perches for all of the pullets. When warm weather arrives open the brooder house to provide all of the fresh air possible. Try to avoid overcrowding.

A well balanced growing ration consisting of 350 pounds of whole yellow corn fed as scratch grain with a mash mixture of 100 pounds of ground yellow corn, 100 pounds wheat bran, 100 pounds of wheat middlings and 50 pounds of meat scraps has proved to be highly satisfactory for hundreds of Indiana poultry raisers under average farm conditions. If skim milk is plentiful on the farm, it may be fed and the meat scraps reduced to 10 pounds in the foregoing ration.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.,—Washington is now one of the boomingest "boom towns" in the Union and probably the world. Hotels are jammed to overflowing. Night clubs and restaurants are doing a record business. Rents are rising. Prices are zooming. Homes and Government buildings are going up in every section of the city.

With new workers pouring into Washington by the thousands, it is little wonder that the matter of adequate housing is getting to be a real problem. Many young people have arrived in the Capital recently from Indiana to take Government positions and some of these are disappointed with the rooms they have to take to keep within their budgets.

Instead of the large sunny rooms they can rent in Indiana for 10 to 15 dollars per month, they are frequently forced to pay 25 or 30 dollars for a small dingy room which is not too well ventilated. Even rooms of this kind are hard to get now, and unless building speeds up very rapidly, Washington will become an open-air city of residents sleeping in the parks.

DO YOU KNOW—That the flag flies over the White House only when the President is at home? That the District of Columbia houses 10,870 people per square mile and is the most densely populated area in the world? That there is a law limiting the height of buildings in Washington to 160 feet to prevent Government buildings from being dwarfed? That there is also a law providing that bean soup must always appear on the menu of the Capitol restaurant? That the flag flies over the Capitol Building day and night? That a light shines in the dome of the Capitol when Congress is in session after sundown?

SIDELIGHTS: Paul V. McNutt has a habit of taking care of his political friends. . . . Surrounding him now in Washington are many Hoosier Democrats— Wayne Coy, Clifford Townsend and Virgil Simmons to mention a few. . . . Even "Shay" Minton is comfortably situated in a Federal judgeship. . . Those rumors about a Congressional recess can be traced directly to the heat wave which hit the Capital last week. . . Washington is one of the hottest spots on the globe in Summertime. . . . Fortunately, however, Congressional office buildings are air-conditioned. . . Make a mighty nice place to sleep on sweltering nights.

CAPITOL QUIZ: Today's quiz questions are being presented in a slightly different form for the convenience of readers who may wish to test their knowledge of American Government, perhaps in competition with their friends. First we will present ten questions. See how many you can answer and score yourself on a basis of 10 points per question. The answers are given below. A score of 50 is average, 60 good and 70 excellent.

Here are the questions:

(1) What are the qualifications for the office of President? (2) What President served the shortest length of time. (3) How many Presidents have served two terms? (4) How many Presidents have died in office? (5) How many Presidents have been assassinated? (6) What is the oldest Federal Building in Washington? (7) What is the salary of the President? (8. What allowances does a President receive? (9) Has the White House ever been destroyed? (10) Which President was drafted for military service?

FREE PUBLICATIONS: Are you interested in raising goats? Eradicating fleas? Buying a farm? Producing dairy products? Beautifying your home? Growing a garden? Becoming better acquainted with the functions of your Government? If you are, drop a postcard to Rep. George W. Gillie, Washington, D. C., for a list of free Government bulletins on these subjects and scores of others. The most popular current booklet is "Our American Government" which contains 252 questions and answers similar to those listed in "Capitol Quiz." Send in today for your copy of this interesting booklet.

ANSWERS TO QUIZ QUESTIONS:

(1) He must be a natural-born resident, at least 35 years old, and have lived in the United States for at least 14 years. (2) William Henry Harrisn, who died exactly one month after taking office. (3) Nine.—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Grant, Cleveland, Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt. (4) Six—Harrison, Taylor, Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Harding. (5) Three—Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. (6) The White House. (7) Seventy-five thousand dollars per year. (8) Use of the White House and $25,000 a year for traveling and entertainment. (9) Yes—it was burned by the British in President Madison's administration. (10) Grover Cleveland was drafted for service in the Civil War, but availed himself of his legal right of hiring a substitute to serve in his place.

The last questionnaires to registrants who enrolled under the selective service law in DeKalb County last October were mailed out Monday by the county board. The number of questionnaires sent Monday was thirteen.

BOY CHOIR AT NEWVILLE BROTHERHOOD MEET

The June meeting of the Wittenberg Brotherhood will be held at the Newville United Brethren Church on Wednesday evening of next week, June 11, and as a special attraction for the strawberry festival meeting will be the Fred Church Boy Choir of Fort Wayne.

The Fred Church Boy Choir is an organization of thirty-three years standing, for Mr. Church has had constantly under his training boys of soprano age. Of course this does not mean that the same boys are in the choir, as when boys arrive at the voice changing time they are temporarily dropped.

Most of the men of the Scottish Rite Choir-men of middle age were boy sopranos in Mr. Church's choir many years ago. The Scottish Rite Choir appeared at Newville last year.

The Boy Choir will present a mixed concert. The entire choir will be vested. There will be chorus work—boy soloists—boy pianists—girl soloists—girl pianists and a mixed program that will be a delight to all and the oldest child will be fifteen years of age—the average age being twelve years.

This choir has for many years given concerts throughout northern Indiana and all who attend this entertainment will go away very well pleased.

These boys are trained every week—two nights. The organization is not a money-making choir. The boys receiving their training free, but are given an outing each year at Pretty Lake and what little money received during the year is used for that purpose. At the Newville strawberry festival there will be no charge for this special program, but there will be a free will offering taken in courtesy of the boys' efforts to please the audience. The collection received will be used exclusively toward defraying the expenses of the annual camping outing that is furnished the boys each year. The choir is made up of orphan boys who have no means of enjoying an outing except that provided through these free will offerings.

All men, young and old, are invited to attend the Newville meeting. The strawberry supper will be served in the church basement, beginning at 7:30 E. S. T.

BUTLER CHURCH WINS ATTENDANCE CONTEST

The three-month Sunday School contest between the Butler, Coburn Corners, Newville and St. Joe Churches of Christ closed last Sunday with the following results:

First, Butler, with a final percentage of 125 plus; Newville second with 125 plus; Coburn Corners, third, with 123 plus, and St. Joe, fourth, with 115 plus. Butler was in the lead throughout the entire contest. At one time they were ahead 28 per cent of the next nearest, but at the end they were very small fraction of one per cent ahead. So the contest ended just in time for them. This was a most interesting and fair contest, each of the Bible Schools having great gains in attendance. Butler and Newville are to be entertained by the losing two schools, Coburn Corners and St. Joe.

UNITED STATES
MARINES

OUR FLAG GIRDLES THE GLOBE

Old Glory, proud symbol of our country, will celebrate its 164th anniversary on June 14, the date of its official adoption in 1777. Like the British Empire, which takes pride in the fact that the sun never sets on its flag, we Americans may also claim that in some part of the world our National Flag is always floating in the breeze.

We may have fewer far-flung possessions than some of the older nations, yet Old Glory is known in every clime and place. For example, it is the custom of the U. S. Marines to raise our flag every morning at eight o'clock. It remains flying until sunset.

Three hours after the Marines at naval stations along our eastern seaboard have raised the flag, their comrades at other posts along the West coast salute the colors as they are hauled briskly to the top of the flagstaff.

About two and a half hours later the ceremony is repeated in the Hawaiian Islands. More than five hours will have elapsed before the flag is raised by the sea soldiers in the Philippines. At virtually the same hour, the Marines hoist the flag in China, at Peiping, Tientsin or Shanghai.

Several hours later the westward march of daylight catches the fluttering folds of the Star-Spangled Banner flying over American Consulates and Embassies in Europe, and soon after the sun has passed its zenith in the Old World it is again flung to the breeze on the Atlantic seaboard.

Thus the Stars and Stripes, beloved standard of a free nation, makes its appearance in the early morning hours and remains flying until the sun disappears over the horizon.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Beth Walter, 30, wife of former county clerk Carl Walter, who died Thursday night at the Irene Byron sanatorium near Huntertown following a prolonged illness of tuberculosis, were held Monday morning at the Auburn Church of the Immaculate Conception. Burial in Lindenwood cemetery at Ft. Wayne. Mrs. Walter lived in Auburn previous to entering the sanatorium three years ago. She was the daughter of a Dr. Corn, practicing dentist in St Joe of years past.

HOW FARMERS VOTED ON WHEAT QUOTA

A final and complete report of the national wheat marketing quota election held in DeKalb County last Saturday was made Tuesday by Arthur Lautzenhiser, county chairman of the AAA, and shows approval by 59.1 per cent and those who took part.

Of 653 farmers eligible to take part in the referendum, 398 voted and the tabulation shows 235 for and 163 against. Mr. Lautzenhiser and C. Brooks Trenary, vice chairman, made an inspection Monday of challenged fields, as a result of 28 votes having been challenged. Their check-up resulted in 12 of the 28 being found ineligible to vote and the others were counted, 8 being for and 8 against.

The highest affirmative vote was that of Union township, the figures being 11 to 1, or a percentage of 91.7. Wilmington township had the greatest vote against, the figures being 16 to 25, or only 39 percent in favor. Fairfield also opposed 16 to 19, or only 45.7 percent approval. One other township was against the proposal. This was Jackson, which voted 12 for and 15 against, or an approval percentage of 44.4.

Other township records follow:

Butler—10 for, 9 against, 52.6 percent.

Concord—10 for, 8 against, 57.9 percent.

Franklin—26 for, 23 against, 53.1 percent.

Grant—21 for, 4 against, 84 percent.

Keyser—22 for, 3 against, 88 percent.

Newville—11 for, 8 against, 57.9 percent.

Richland—20 for, 3 against, 87 percent.

Smithfield—22 for, 17 against, 56.4 percent.

Spencer—6 for, 3 against, 66.7 percent.

Stafford—13 for, 12 against, 52 percent.

Troy—12 for, 12 against, 50 percent.

To be eligible to vote, it was necessary for a farmer to be engaged in the production of wheat for harvest in 1941 on a farm on which the normal production of the acreage planted in wheat would be 200 bushels or more and not less than 15 acres planted to wheat.

The Central Grocery building is now being torn down by Milo Frane, and he is salvaging everything possible to use in the remodeling of a home at Orangeville, purchased of Merle Crouse. The house was partly destroyed by fire a few years ago, and was never repaired.

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Waltz had as guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waltz, of Garrett, and Mr. H. D. Waltz, of Chicago. Friends and relatives who called in the afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Claron Hilbert, of Hicksville, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hilbert, of Chicago, Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. K. T. Buss and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grimm, of Garrett and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hart, of St. Joe.

Fred Parker, Mayor of Michigan City, headed a committee of be-whiskered Michigan City Gay Nineties citizens which moved in at the capitol office of Governor Henry F. Schricker as Miss Betty Beahan, 18 and demure, handed the governor and other state officials an invitation to Michigan City's three day Summer fun carnival June 20, 21, and 22. The Mayor and his invitation committee, and Miss Beahan, who was clad in authentic clothing of the Gay 90's, received the governor's assurance that he would attend the Governor's ball in Michigan City's big civic auditorium on Friday, June 20. The committee arrived at the State House wearing linen dusters and caps typical of the traveling costumes worn in the Gay 90's. One wore button shoes. All were well supplied with sideburns, mustaches, or mutton chops.

Mr. and Mrs. Indiana Taxpayer, who hardly have recovered from their payments of Federal income tax, state gross income tax and May installment of property taxes, were wondering today just who is the "forgotten man" as they perused the calendar of additional dates in the month of June having to do with taxes. According to the calendar prepared by a state-wide non-political organization, June is to be remembered for its tax dates as well as being the month of brides.

* * *

While Dad and Mother are financing graduations or weddings, they also must keep in mind during June the following dates:

June 1 — Taxes under Federal carriers taxing act for first quarter of 1941 are due.

June 2—First day's session of the county board of review, sessions in various counties last 28 to 45 days, where review is made, if requested, of 1941 assessment.

June 15—Second installment of Federal income tax due.

June 15 — Dog tax penalty becomes operative and dogs subject to be killed if without state tag.

June 30—Special Federal tax on narcotics and marihuana due.

* * *

Those, Mr. Taxpayer, are only the special ones for the month of June. Every month of the year there are these little tax items to keep on the calendar:

First — Producers' return of taxes on bituminous coal sales.

Fifth—Railroads' alcoholic beverage tax report for preceding month.

Fifth and twentieth—Last days, by-monthly, for Indiana breweries to pay beer gallonage tax for half-month periods closing five days previously.

Fifteenth — Monthly due date for filing of banks and building and loan reports with county auditors.

Fifteenth—Imitation condensed milk tax due.

Twentieth—Banks and building and loan tax payments to county treasurers due.

Twenty-fifth — Oil inspection fees due.

George W. Gillie, Indiana Congressman, has been appointed to membership on the executive committee of the Republican Farm Study Committee of which Representative Clifford R. Hope, of Kansas, is chairman. Indiana has occupied a prominent place in the national agricultural picture, with a virile state organization working with State Chairman Arch N. Bobbitt.

* * *

The executive committee will determine what sections of the country the committee or sub-committee thereof will visit in the next nine months to hold hearings and get the opinions and assistance from the farmers themselves on farm problems.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.,—Following are excerpts from a Memorial Day address delivered by Rep. George W. Gillie over Radio Station WOWO, Fort Wayne:

AMERICA'S DUTY: "On this Memorial Day of 1941 I say to you that America's place is in America. America's duty is not to make the world safe for democracy. America's duty is to save democracy for the world. America's task is not the destruction of nazi-ism, fascism nor communism in other parts of the world. America's destiny is the preservation of Americanism in America.

"Close as Europe's wars have touched many of our lives, hate as we must the aggression of the dictators, I can see no reason for another A. E. F."

CONGRESS UNITED: "Congress, since the fall of France a year ago, has been engaged in appropriating billions of dollars for the rebuilding of our national defeness. . . But let us not follow any illusions. Adequate national defense is not going to be accomplished by the passage of some bills by Congress and the ordering of more airplanes, more guns and more explosives.

"Adequate national defense can only be achieved if we stamp out and forget those class hatreds and intolerances which have been too much in evidence.

"Adequate national defense can be had only by the sacrifice of each of us—of every man and woman in every walk of life—by industry and by labor—by farmer and mechanic—by teacher and pupil.

"America cannot be defended by pitting industry against labor—rich against poor—isolationist against interventionist. America can only be defended when we all realize that we are Americans—working and living for the same high ideal."

ARMED STRENGTH. "America is not totally unprepared. We have in our Navy 323 warships—including 15 battleships, 6 aircraft carriers, 37 cruisers, 160 destroyers and 105 submarines. They are manned by 210,000 officers and men pus 40,000 officers and men of the Marine Corps.

"Our Army today consists of some 1,240,000 enlisted men, including draftees, and 82,000 officers. This is being steadily strengthened and will reach a peak of 1,400,000 men by early Summer.

"The present strength of the Air Corps is 6,600 officers and 121,000 enlisted men. Of these, approximately 2,000 are rated as pilots.

"The Air Corps has on hand 6,000 planes, consisting of about 3,500 training planes and 2,500 combat ships."

DEFENSE COST: "Armaments cost money. One giant long-distance bomber alone costs in the neighborhood of $350,000. A great battleship costs millions. Unless America is willing to sacrifice or to go without other things to pay for it, we will have no adequate defense.

"Today our national debt is the highest figure in history. The debt limit in the last year has been raised from 45 billion to 65 billion dollars. We can tax ourselves to pay for it, or we can continue to raise our debt limit and pass on the cost to our children and our children's children.

"But the delusion that we can continue to borrow huge sums of money with no thought of repayment is as dangerous to this country's safety as a lack of guns or warships or planes. Financial bankruptcy is no less a danger to our democracy than invasion.

"We need billions for national defense. Let some of these billions come through a reduction in the luxurious and unnecessary expenses of Government itself. Americans will gladly share the burden of defense expenditures if they are assured that the money they pay in taxes is not wasted and squandered on non-essential, nondefense frills."

FIFTH COLUMN: "And now may I mention another phase of our defense which in my opinion is just as important as a strong force on land or sea or air. I refer to a defense against those 'fifth column' and Trojanhorse tactics which already are among us, preaching and teaching the substitution of alien 'isms' for the American way of life.

"These alien agitators and propagandists are a more real and immediate danger to our democracy than any foreign invader.

America today has no place for any ism' but Americanism. Let those among us who do not like our way of life—whose hearts do not thrill at the sight of the Stars and Stripes—who are not ready and willing to make any sacrifice for our ideals—I say let's send them back to the dictators they love. We need and want none of them!"

AMERICA'S NEED: "America today needs a great spiritual revival. We need to rekindle our belief in the fundamentals upon which our Government was founded. We need to again rededicate ourselves to our ideals, to reaffirm our faith in God and His teachings. We need pride in the things for which we stand.

"As this Memorial Day draws to a close. America could make no better resolve than to carry on the ideals for which these loved ones gave their lives—to willingly and eagerly make any sacrifice necessary for the preservation of our noble heritage—to keep America as a bright light of freedom and happiness, shining as a beacon to all the world in America, peace and democracy and freedom shall live forevermore."

THE 1941 SLEEPING SICKNESS THREAT

Owners of America's billion dollars worth of horses and mules are wondering just what to expect this year from the virus of dreaded sleeping sickness or encephalomyelitis.

Starting in California some ten years ago the disease gradually spread Eastward until in 1938 it resulted in some 300,000 cases with a 25 per cent death loss. Quick, cooperative campaigns by horse owners and veterinarians, using the newly developed vaccine made from chick embryos, held the disease in 1940 to some 8,000 cases.

All virus diseases tend to occur in cycles and there is no reason to believe that the virus of horse sleeping sickness is an exception. Weather conditions also influence this disease. It was especially prevalent in dry years when summer heat was severe.

To date, proper vaccination with two spaced doses of chick embryo vaccine is the only known safe and sure way to avoid fatal sleeping sickness. Horses and mules should be vaccinated at least a month before summer outbreaks of the disease are liable to occur.

Very recently, veterinary scientists have vastly improved the already efficient chick embryo vaccine. By proper refining methods, a large quantity of the chick embryo tissue which has no immunizing value is now removed. The vaccine this year will be for injection into the layers of the skin, and not under the skin as in the former product. The method is called "intradermal vaccination" and almost completely eliminates risk of unexpected swellings or aftermaths due to hypodermic punctures. Tests made on live horses show that the new intradermal method is even more efficient than the latest refined methods of last year.

While no one knows just what the disease will do this summer, all livestock authorities advise that the safest, best and cheapest thing to do is to have all work animals and riding stock properly vaccinated before the outbreak season. All horses and mules of the United States Army have received the new intradermal method this spring.

PHEASANT DELIVERY UNDER WAY BY CONSERVATION DEPT.

Delivery of approximately two hundred thousand quail and pheasant chicks to conservation clubs for rearing and liberation is now in progress, C. R. Gutermuth, acting director of the Division of Fish and Game, reported today.

The chicks are being hatched in electric incubators at the Jasper-Pulaski and Wells County State Game Preserves and are delivered to clubs in specially designed trucks which maintain a high temperature. There are 921 electrically heated brooders being operated this year by the conservation clubs under contract with the Division of Fish and Game.

This game bird propagation program, extended rapidly in recent years through the participation of the conservation clubs, is a major factor in the better quail and pheasant hunting which Hoosier nimrods have been enjoying. Since 1938 there has been a continual increase in the number of clubs operating brooders and a corresponding increase in the number of birds liberated. In 1940 the clubs reared and liberated 142,000 quail and pheasants.

The hatching of 200,000 game bird chicks and their delivery to clubs in every county of the state, along with the reimbursement of the clubs for each bird reared and liberated, is one of the operations of the Division of Fish and Game which is financed exclusively by funds secured through the issuance of hunting and fishing licenses.

The local club released 171 pheasants last year and the brooding this year will be in the hands of Mrs. Ada Messenger, who lives two miles west of St. Joe.

HORSE SENSE

Do you buy fence posts? A rough acre or two planted in black locust trees will provide ample supplies of good posts.

Buttons, snaps, hooks, and similar small articles used in sewing are easier to find when needed if kept in small glass jars and placed where you can see at a glance what you want, suggest Purdue University extension home economists.

On the basis of the 1935 agricultural census, it was estimated that 75 per cent of the cropland of the United States was in need of conservation practices.

The feeding value of the first cutting of alfalfa may be saved by placing the crop in a silo immediately after cutting. About 80 pounds (seven gallons) of molasses should be added to each ton of green material to preserve the crop.

The official Indiana state feed tag should be on every sack of feed sold in the Hoosier state. This tag provides the feed buyer with an authentic report and guarantee of the analysis of the feed contained in the sack.

By cutting Canada thistles now you will not only help prevent its spread on your farm, but may help to control the spread of the weed in your neighborhood.

Keep market eggs in a cool, well ventilated room, free from undesirable odors.

Purdue veterinarians say that indigestion, due to swallowing of wires and nails, is one of the principle causes of death in cows.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1941 NUMBER 24

HOSIER ANGLERS AWAIT OPENING OF SEASON MONDAY

If Dad doesn't show up at the office Monday morning and mother is late getting the wash on the line just charge it up to the opening of the fishing season which has become an unofficial Hoosier holiday for the entire family.

Approximately a half-million Indiana residents possess fishing licenses and as many of them as can get away will be on the lakes and along the streams for the opening day, C. R. Gutermuth, acting director of the Divilson of Fish and Game, perdicted. In addition to the Hoosier anglers, hundreds of fishermen from neighboring states will be in Indiana for the opening of the fishing season.

Officially the fishing season opens on the stroke of midnight, Sunday night. The season will open on Daylight Saving Time in counties where the leading cities have adopted "fast" time but will open on Central Standard Time in all counties where the leading cities are not using "fast" time. Conservation Officers are being instructed to follow this method of determining the time for legal fishing.

Familiar Opening Day Scene Along Many Indiana Streams

The Conservation Officers will be on the move constantly over the week end to see that over-anxious anglers do not open the season too soon and to see that every angler over 18 years of age has a license. There are two licenses issued to Indiana residents—the combination license that is good for fishing, hunting and trappig during the calendar year, issued at a fee of $1.50, and the special female license which is good for fishing only during the calendar year and is issued at a fee of fifty (50) cents. These licenses may be obtained from county clerks and their agents in all parts of the state.

Species	bag limit	minimum length
Bluegill (Bream)	25*	5 in.
Red-Eared Sunfish...	25*	5 in.
Crappie (both kinds)	25*	5 in
Rock Bass (goggle-eye)	25*	5 in.
Silver or Yellow Bass	6	10 in.
Smallmouth Black Bass	6	10 in.
Largemouth Black Bass	6	10 in.
Kentucky Bass	6	10 in.
White or Striped Bass	6	10 in.
Pike-Perch (Wall-Eye)	6	none
Pike or Pickerel	6	none
Yellow Perch	none	none
Channel Catfish ...	none	none

bag limit of 6 in aggregate of largemouth, smallmouth, Kentucky, silver or yellow, white or striped bass combined.

Possession limit on all species—two days' lawful catch.

PAVEMENT "BLOW-UPS" REPORTED IN MAY

Unusually high temperatures prevailing during the last part of May and resulting in approximately twenty-five pavement "blow-ups" added several hundred dollars to state highway maintenance costs, it was pointed out by James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission.

Most of the damage to pavement was on highways in the northwest quarter of the state with four breaks on U. S. 24 west of Logansport, two on Road 34 near Covington, and two on Road 39 south of Delphi. Breaks also were reported on Road 27 near Garrett; one on Road 31 north of Edinburg and three near Garden City on Road 31, and two on Road 41 near Sullivan, with others in various parts of the state.

Such breaks in highway pavement are not unusual in July and August when heated pavements are affected by sudden rains but rarely occur in May. With few exceptions the blow-ups are in pavement which has been laid for a number of years. Present construction methods, using expansion joints and steel mesh reinforcements in the pavement, practically eliminate serious pavement breaks due to temperature changes.

"The heart bowed down by weight of woe,
To weakest hopes will cling;
To thought and impulse while they flow,
That can no comfort bring.
The mind, will, in it's worst despair,
Still ponder o'er the past,
On moments of delight, that were Too beautiful to last.
To long departed years extend
Its visions with them flown
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own."

—Balfe.

U. S. Flag Day Has Great Significance

Flag Day takes on a deep significance for these new American citizens as the Stars and Stripes wave protectingly over them. They have just completed their oath of allegiance and raised their hands in salute to the red, white and blue emblem, that to them, symbolizes a precious new freedom. A freedom that is sometimes not fully appreciated by native born citizens, whose ancestors sacrificed their lives on the battlefield to preserve "Old Glory," and the traditions of America, "The Land of the Free, and the Home of the Brave."

Father's Day

Fathers throughout the nation will receive special recognition on Father's Day, June 15, for the many sacrifices they make to raise their families. Being men, and men being what they are, Father will say he doesn't want to be thanked; but there's a general suspicion that they really like a little recognition despite their crusty exterior. Two fathers who deserve special recognition for their accomplishments are pictured below.

1. The Honorary "D.D.T." This fellow has completed a special course offered to prospective fathers by a New York hospital to prepare them for jobs to come and has been awarded the degree of "D.D.T."—Doctor of Diaper Technique. Intricacies of bathing or diapering Baby without dropping it or breaking any bones hold none of the terrors for this foresighted father.

2. The Typical Father. Awarded special recognition by the National Father's Day Committee for his portrayal of a father in the movie short, "The Forgotten Man," Robert Benchley is pictured experiencing an inconvenience of a typical father. He has deserted the favorite chair in the living room for another in the basement while Daughter entertains her beau.

Old Glory Celebrates Birthday, Saturday, June 14
Pride of Nation for 164 Years

Citizens of every State will join together in the celebration of Flag Day, June 14. On that date the Stars and Stripes will pass a new milestone on its long march through the years which began in the dark days of the Revolution.

When a thoughtful nation pauses to remember the birthday of Old Glory, beloved emblem of our country for 164 years, it will also recall that it was in 1777 that the Stars and Stripes first waved "o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Long before Old Glory became the flag of our country, there were scores of banners representing the hopes and aspirations of the colonists. Some of them displayed beavers, anchors, pine trees and other insignia, often the words, "Liberty," "An Appeal to Heaven," or some similar slogan.

The so-called "rattlesnake flag" appeared in several designs. Sometimes the rattler was displayed on either a plain white or yellow banner; sometimes it was shown undulating across the thirteen red and white stripes, or coiled at the foot of a pine tree. Often it bore the slogan, "Don't tread on me!"

The first flag to show a unity of purpose on the part of the colonists was the Grand Union Flag, or Navy ensign, sometimes called the Congress Colors. It had thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and it bore the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew where the white stars in a blue field now appear.

This flag was flown at Cambridge, Mass., in January, 1776, when the Continental Army came into existence. It was carried ashore by bluejackets and marines in the Bahamas that year and it figured in many stirring eposides, but it was never officially recognized by Congress as the flag of the United States.

There is a certain mystery regarding the origin of our flag which has never been solved. Historians fail to agree as to who designed the flag or as to the origin of its chief symbolism, the stars and stripes, although a number of ingenious theories have been advanced.

Many persons believe that Betsy Ross, a Philadelphia needlewoman, made the first sample of the Stars and Stripes, but the fate of that original banner is unknown. Soon after it was authorized by Congress the flag was flown at a number of locations, and its popularity was assured.

Scores of highlights serve to brighten our flag's history. One or them occurred on February 14, 1778, when it received a salute from the French Fleet in Quiberon Bay, the first salute to the Stars and Stripes from a foreign power.

During our war with the Barbary pirates, Lieutenant Presley N. O'Bannon, of the U. S. Marines, hoisted the flag at Derne, Tripoli, on April 27, 1805, after the stronghold had been stormed and captured by American bluejackets and marines. It was the first time the Stars and Stripes had ever been flown over a fortress of the Old World.

Our flag also served to inspire the writing of our national anthem when Francis Scott Key saw "by the dawn's early light" the Star-Spangled Banner floating over Fort McHenry on September 14, 1814.

From time to time changes in the number of stars and stripes have been authorized and both the flags flown at Tripoli and at Fort McHenry had fifteen stars and stripes.

Yet today, save for forty-eight instead of thirteen stars which now appear in a blue field, the flag is much the same as it was 164 years ago.

Floating from the lofty pinnacle of American idealism, our flag is a beacon of enduring hope, like the famous Bartholdi Statue of Liberty enlightening the world to the oppressed of all lands. It floats over an assemblage of free people from every racial stock on earth.

Old Glory embodies the essence of patriotism. Its spirit is the spirit of the American nation. Its history is the history of the American people. Emblazoned upon its folds in letters of living light are the names and fame of our heroic dead, the Fathers of the Republic who pledged upon its altars their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor.

Our flag bears witness to the immense expansion of our national boundaries, the development of our natural resources, and the splendid structure of our mutually helpful social system. It prophesies the triumph of popular government, of civic and religious liberty and national righteousness throughout the world.

In recent years it has been the custom to observe June 14, the anniversary of our flag's adoption, as Flag Day. It is also an opportune time for all Americans to renew this solemn vow: "I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

LOG of the UNITED STATES MARINES

MARINES' JUNE DIARY LISTS LIVELY EVENTS

Stirring events of historic interest so crowd the Marine Corps calendar for June that it has often been called a "red letter" month by that branch of the service. Each of the thirty days marks an anniversary of some importance to the Marines or to the nation.

While nothing in the all-time history of the sea soldiers appears to be more noteworthy than the critical days of June, 1918, when, as members of the 2nd Division, they aided in seizing and holding Belleau Wood in France against all enemy attacks, many other episodes point to the versatility of the Corps.

A fight with natives of Formosa in 1867, a similar action against Korean natives in 1871, and the landing of a battalion in Cuba during the Spanish-American War in 1898 were typical June events.

Other June entries recount a lively sea fight during the War of 1812, the pursuit and destruction of a pirate ship in Mexican waters in 1870, an expedition to China in 1900, and the surrender of the island of Guam by the Spaniards in 1898.

The June diary also reveals that the Marines performed a humanitarian mission when they fought a fire which had broken out on an Italian vessel in the harbor of Callao, Peru, in June, 1873, and that later they received the thanks of the Italian Minister of Foreign affairs.

Even a brief recital of outstanding June events fills several pages of Marine Corps history. The day-by-day accounts begin with a thrilling sea battle fought with an enemy vessel at pistol range on June 1, 1780, and conclude with the renaming of Belleau Wood, "Bois de la Brigade de Marine" on June 30, 1918, a signal honor paid by the French nation to the sea soldiers.

GILT OFF THE DOME
By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—This week's quiz questions have been given a local touch—they all are connected in some way with the Fourth Congressional District of Indiana. Rep. George W. Gillie and Sen. Raymond E. Willis both received perfect scores on the quiz. But this was to be expected. A score of 50 is average, 60 good, and 70 excellent. Here are the questions. The answers appear at the end of the column.

CAPITOL QUIZ: (1) What famous Hoosier once remarked: "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar." (2) What is the approximate population of the Fourth Indiana District? (3) Name the counties comprising the Fourth District. (4) What counties were added to the District following the 1930 Census? The 1940 Census? (5) How did Former Senator Minton once describe the Northeast section of Indiana? (6) What is the most distinguishing characteristic of the present Congressman from the Fourth District? (7) What record did he establish in winning election to his first term in 1938? (8) Name three Fourth District residents now holding State or Federal elective offices. (9) Who is the present Junior Senator from Indiana? (10) What business was he in prior to his election?

TRAGIC DRAMA: Death enacted its drama in the House last week. The first part of each day's business includes a period of one-minute speeches by members desiring to get in some hard-hitting punch words before regular debate begins.

Congressman Rankin of Mississippi had just charged "Wall Street and a little group of our Jewish brethren are still attempting to harass tne President and the Congress into plunging us into the European war unprepared," when Congressman Edelstein of New York, himself a respected Jew, rose to defend his people.

Congressman Edelstein, in an impassioned address, declared: "I deplore the idea that anytime anything happens, whether it be for a war policy or against a war policy, men in this House and outside this House attempt to use the Jews as their scrapegoat."

In an obvious state of agitation, Congressman Edelstein concluded his talk, walked to the cloakroom about twenty feet from where he had spoken, reeled over and dropped dead of a heart attack.

It came as a tragic shock and served as a reminder to Congress and the country that America must retain its tolerance, its good temper, is sound judgment in these trying times.

Witnesses to the tragedy included Barry Tolan, of Fort Wayne, city weights and measures inspector; Mrs. Tolan, and Mr. and Mrs. William Louthan, also of Fort Wayne, who were in the House gallery as guests of Congressman Gillie.

HOOSIERS HONORED: Hoosiers apparently make good Congressional Secretaries. A year ago a former Fort Wayne newspaper reporter who is now Secretary to Congressman Crawford of Michigan, was named "most valuable Secretary" by the Congressional Secretaries' Club. This year the award went to Tom Bath, of South Bend, Secretary to Congressman Grant. The ex-Fort Wayne reporter is William Hackett, who will be remembered as a crack police and City Hall writer.

CAPITOL QUIZ ANSWERS: (1) The late Thomas R. Marshall, of Columbia City, former Indiana Governor and Vice President under Woodrow Wilson. (2) According to the 1940 Census, 288,000. (3) Allen, Adams, DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble, Steuben, Wells and Whitley counties. (4) Adams and Wells counties were added to the District in 1930. The District was not changed in the recent Reapportionment Act. (5) As "the dark corner of Indiana." (6) Congressman Gillie's most distinguishing physical characteristic is his height. He is 6 feet, 4 inches tall. (7) Congressman Gillie established two records in the 1938 election. His majority (over 20,000) was the largest ever received by a Congressional candidate. And he was the first Republicn ever to carry every county in the District. (8) Senator Willis, Congressman Gillie, and Appellate Court Judge Dan C. Flanagn, of Fort Wayne. (9) Senator Willis. (10) Publisher of the Steuben Republican, of Angola.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

Seventy-nine years is a long period but it was filled with useful effort, and varied experience, in the instance of Chief Justice Hughes. Thirty-five years ago found him a vigorous, black-bearded contender for the governorship of New York. Age did not temper the force of his unsuccessful campaign for the Presidency in 1916. Eleven years on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States added lustre to his fame. Mr. Hughes will carry with him into private life, the respect of the legal profession and the warm regard which the laity have for a man whose sole concern is recognized to be the bringing home of justice to every door.

Almost contemporaneously with the going of Mr. Hughes, Kaiser Wilhelm passed to a retirement more profound than that immediately awaiting the American jurist. It cannot be said that he departed in trailing clouds of glory. Germans think of him as the promoter of most of their woes. From the view point of many others, he was no more than a willing but impotent Hitler. Recent pictures of Kaiser Wilhelm show a grandfatherly old gentleman, looking nowhere in particular through earth-tired eyes. Perhaps he softened in spirit as well as in appearance, toward the end. Adverse American criticism of the late Kaiser may well be tempered, but candor compels the statement that few tears are being shed on his behalf.

When the House took up consideration of the ten billion dollar army bill, the lower legislative body had on its hands the largest peacetime appropriation of that sort which history records. Changes in the methods of carrying on war make it natural that a liberal amount of the large sum desired should be spent on aviation. It is expected that by July of 1942, plane production will reach 3300 per month. The authority which set that figure was quick to assure his hearers that it would by no means put the United States on Easy Street, so far as defense is concerned. Calculations indicate that by another summer, the Nazis will be able to produce 3000 planes each thirty days. As one foreign plane factory after another falls into the hands of the Reich, it becomes a feeder. While the United States must build shops first, and create the product later, Germany is in a position to start at once with the product.

A Washington curio dealer makes a window display of a certificate of stock in an early "horseless carriage" company. No doubt the original investor was reminded often that a fool and his money are soon parted. The funny poem about Darius Green and his flying machine used to be a favorite for school recitation. Green and the person to whom the certificate was issued, would have the last and best laugh if they could see the present-day world basing its safety mainly on flying machines and horseless carriages.

Allegedly originting in the War Department, a bill before Congress provides that the Government may take over property of any kind or character, real or personal, tangible or intangible, under conditions specified. The measure is hazy, to say the least, on the question as to when and how payment is to be made for the property requisitioned. Considering that the land is at peace, the bill lays it on pretty thick. Since the power of acquisition seems to be unlimited, Congress is inclined to pause and consider. The possibilities of the proposed legislation are many, so far as the individual is concerned. They are equally important insofar as they touch group activities. Congress scans the bill thoughtfully, wondering if there resides in it a basis for widespread government ownership.

Philip Murray, President of the C. I. O., reverses the ruling of one of his lieutenants and calls upon 12,000 Pacific coast lumbermen to obey a suggestion of the Mediation Board, and go back to work. Next to the Hitler menace, the public is most disturbed by strikes at a time when increased production seems to be of vital importance.

GOing Places
With Republican State Officials at the Hoosier Capitol

Appointment of Ralph Howard, nationally known penologist, as superintendent of the state excise police force, marks the beginning of the excise department's operation on a bi-partisan basis established by act of the 1941 Republican-controlled Legislature.

* * *

His appointment as excise police chief has received praise from all sections of the state. Mr. Howard has spent about 30 years in penal institution work, most of that time in executive capacities. He formerly was superintendent of the Indiana state farm and the Indiana reformatory. He also held positions at the Indiana Boys' School at Plainfield and the state prison at Michigan City.

* * *

The present chief worry of Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator and former Governor of Indiana, is whether he is to have a cheaper automobile than are some of the other New Deal department heads in Washington, Robert H. Loring, of Indianapolis, Indiana Young Republican national committeeman and YRO regional director, said in addressing a recent state conference of Ohio Young Republicans at Columbus.

* * *

Mr. Loring referred to dispatches from the national capital in which it was revealed protest has been made that Mr. McNutt is being given an appropriation of only $1,500 for an automobile while heads of two other departments are being allotted $1,800 each for new cars.

* * *

"Too bad a $1,500 automobile isn't good enough for Paul to ride around in while hundreds of thousands of the nation's young men are trudging up and down parade grounds in training camps, carrying 60-pound packs on their backs at $21 a month," Mr. Loring told the Ohio convention.

* * *

Maurice "Red" Robinson, Indiana securities commissioner, has been honored with appointment as a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Securities Commissioners. He attended a meeting of the committee at Chicago during the week-end.

* * *

State Auditor Richard James is making arrangements for the sale of automobiles turned back to the state by Republican officials. Many Democrats operated state-owned cars during the past eight years but their Republican successors said they were not necessary in the transaction of state business. They are now stored in the state highway garage and are to be sold by the auditor in accordance with a 1941 law.

* * *

A number of Indiana state officials and Republican members of the Indiana General Assembly were in Chicago over the past week-end where they participated in conferences with members of the Council of State Governments from a number of midwestern states. Included in the Indiana group were Lieutenant Governor Charles M. Dawson, Senator William E. Jenner of Shoals, Senator Thurman A. Biddinger of Marion, Representative Frank T. Millis of Campbellsburg, and Hewitt Carpenter of Marion, secretary of the Indiana division of the Council.

* * *

Plans are being completed by Republican women of Vanderburgh county for the entertainment of a large group of women when Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee and director of the women's division of the national committee, will be the principal speaker. Miss Martin will be in Evansville June 18, including Indiana on her itinerary of a nation-wide tour visiting women's Republican organizations, going to the "pocket" from Lansing, Mich. The Evansville meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Male Stone, Vanderburgh county vice-chairman, assisted by Mrs. Virginia Southard, second vice-president of the Indiana Federation of Women's Republican clubs, and Mrs. W. A. Wood, president of the Vanderburgh county women's club. Among those who will attend are Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, Indiana national vice-committeeman, and Mrs. Eleanor Barker Snodgrass, vice-chairman of the state central committee.

Justly or unjustly, many look askance at the C. I. O. as a patriotic organization. Mr. Murray is doing much to remove the stigma. It will be more completely removed if the West Coast strikers see fit to follow the instructions of their chief and take advantage of the Federal means that has been established for the promotion of industrial tranquility.

Makes Fire Run To Grist Mill

The fire company made a run Friday afternoon to the grist mill where it was thought the engine room roof was on fire. The exhaust was throwing out sparks of soot and the shed roof was covered with burning pieces. By the time the company arrived, every thing was safe. It seemed that the engine became hot, probably caused by the clogging of the exhaust.

Friday the 13th; —It's Here Again!

FRIDAY the 13th—America's No. 1 jinx day—has arrived. And, while people walk around raised ladders, avoid spilling salt, tighten their hold on rabbit foot charms, and keep an alert eye "peeled" for coal-complexioned cats, conversations take on an air of uneasiness—

"Me sleep on the 13th floor? No, suh!" . "We can't be married then—it's Friday!" . "Lissen, Gus, we ain't pullin' no job tonight — it's the 13th, see!" . . .

Why these superstitions? Well, it's an old, old story, and we do mean old. The number 13 was blackballed by the ancient Babylonians, and in the Christian era has been associated with the 13 who partook of the tragic Last Supper. The unpopularity of Friday is analogous to the primitive conviction that Friday was taboo—it was spoiled by bad magical conditions.

And so, despite the advance of science and free-for-all education, people cling to these myths. Friday the 13th annually costs this country a large sum of time and money. People postpone trips; business men defer decisions; Wall Street patronizers "forget" the stock exchange; race track enthusiasts place small bets, or none at all; and society folk leave the 13th guest uninvited!

And, ironically enough, we continue to laugh at voodooism!

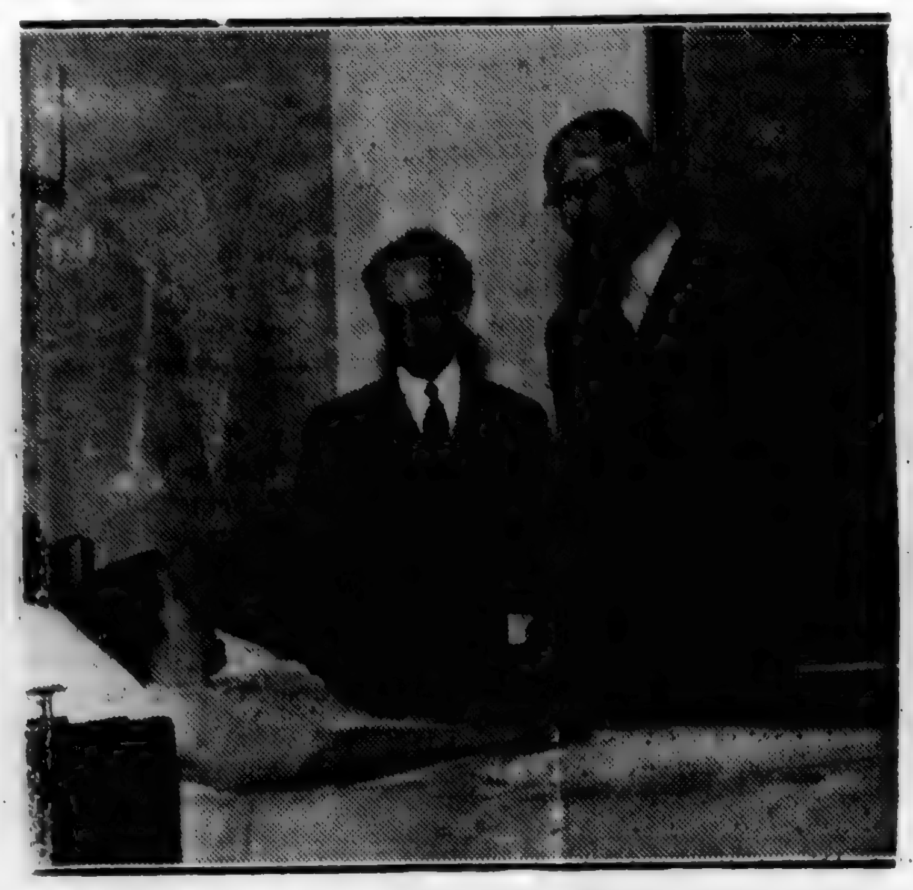
Indiana Dedicates Tuberculosis Sanatorium

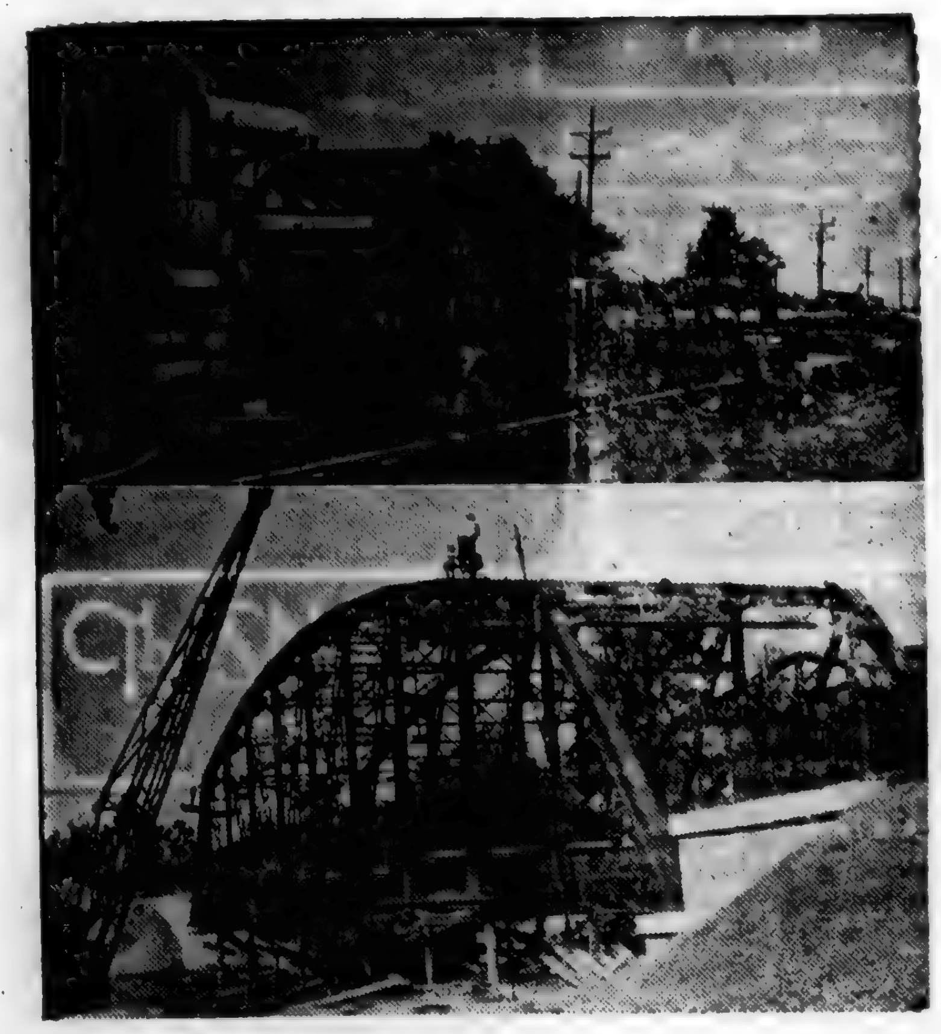


Indiana's newest addition to her family of 21 state institution is Silvercrest, the Southern Indiana Tuberculosis Hospital recentl dicated at New Albany, Indiana, by Governor Henry F. Schricke

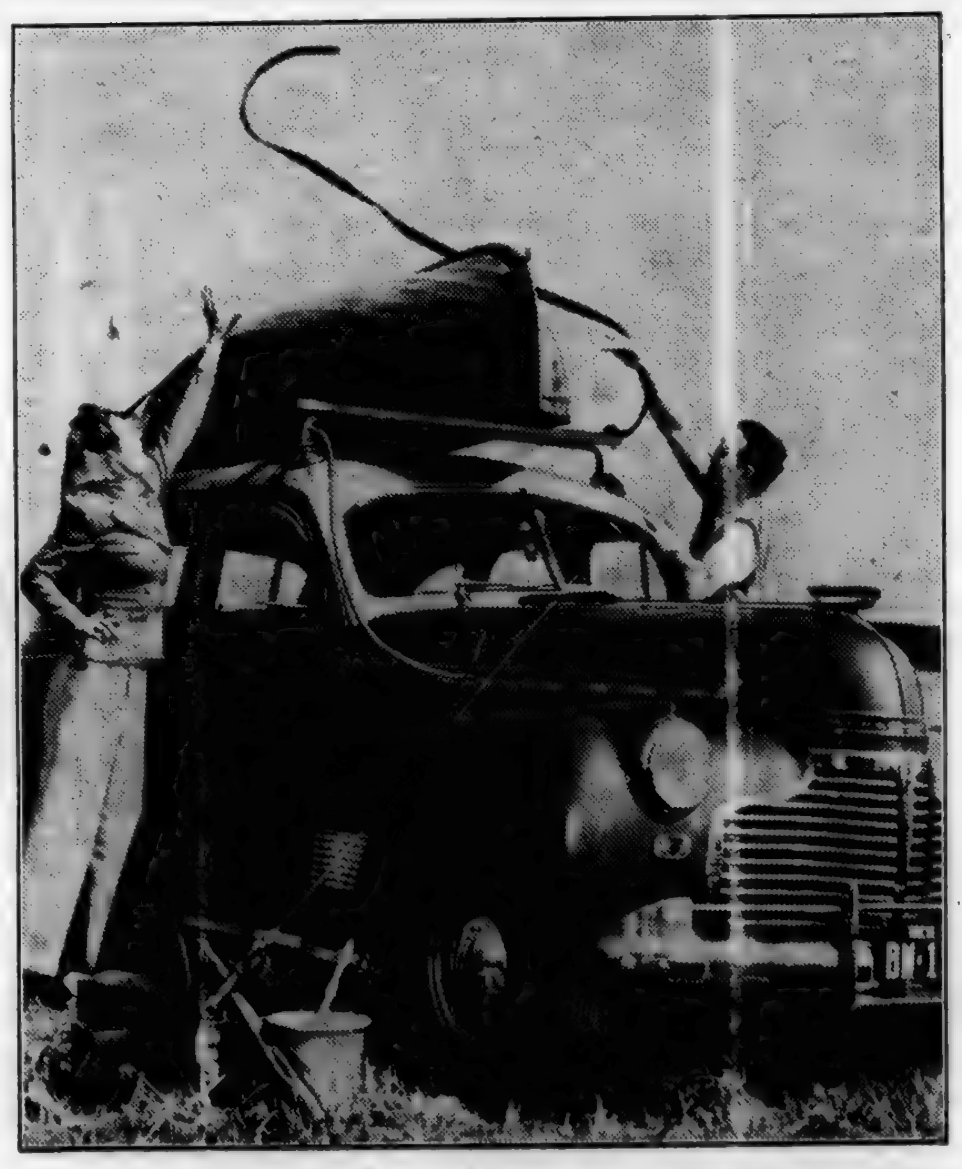
The picture on the left shows the front entrance of the nev -bed hospital which receives patients from 40 southern Indian counties. In the picture at the right is Governor Schricker (left) and Thurman A. Gottschalk (right), state welfare administrator, king to a hospital patient.

The Southern Indiana Tuberculosis Hospital was established by n act of the 1938 General Assembly and was built at a cost of $650,000. Of this total, $292,000 was provided by the Public Works Administration.

Familiar Indiana Road Construction Scenes of Year

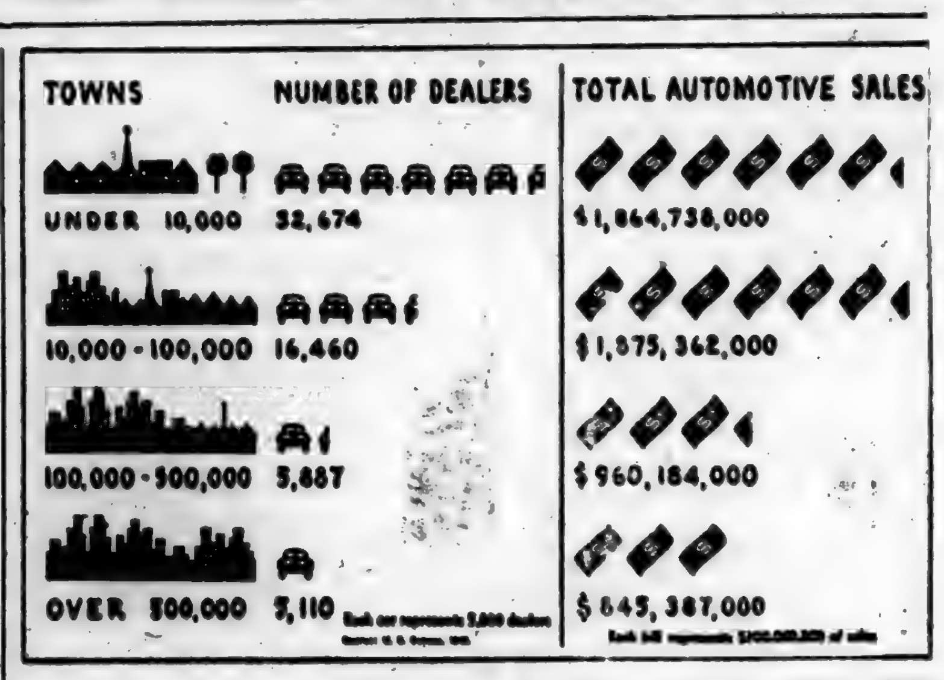


Auto Vacuum Aids Anglers



To many the call of the open road also means the call of the open water. The automobile and good roads have brought thousands of beautiful lakes and streams within reach of the vacationist or the week-ender. Fishing seasons throughout the country are opening, and these young people were among the first to seek their favorite stream. They carry their own boat, lashed to the top of their Chevrolet, and held securely with a new vacuum-grip holding device actuated by vacuum power from the motor. Note the tube connecting boat rack with motor vacuum.

COUNTRY TOWNS ARE BIGGEST AUTOMOBILE MARKET



Mr. and Mrs. John Doe, Small Town, U.S.A., last year bought more than twice as many automobiles as did their "big city" cousins, according to the new U.S. Census of Business.

In an analysis of the census figures The American Press finds that rural America—"under 10,000 areas"—is now the prize market of the nation's No. 1 mass production industry.

Automotive sales in rural areas last year reached the gargantuan total of $1,864,738,000, more than double the sales in metropolitan cities of 500,000 population and over.

Motor car manufacturers have been more conscious of the intrinsic value of the rural market than any other large industry and have provided the basis for establishment of profitable retail businesses by many individuals living in small towns.

Ford and Chevrolet have over 80 per cent of their dealer representation in rural America, and others in the low price field are reported to be redoubling their efforts to extend dealer coverage. Some are doing it in cooperation with Packard, Buick, Chrysler and other dealers in medium and high priced cars.

Perhaps most aggressive at present is Willys-Overland, which now that it has developed a car that recently proved its endurance in an actual road test by traveling 1,000 miles a day for a month without any tire or mechanical trouble, is rapidly forging ahead in the low-price field.

With tests proving the Willys capable of going up to 35 miles on a gallon of gas, Joseph W. Fraser, president, says he figures it a "natural" for use in farm communities re gasoline prices often average higher than in larger cities. Accordingly, he is instructing his sales staff to make special efforts to find capable men living in farm areas who would be interested in opening Willys' dealerships.

This effort is being backed by a new institutional ad campaign, one of the latest in the series being addressed to "every person in America who works for a living."

Pointing out that the car is "designed by workers, built by workers, made for the great majority of American people," the company declares that "in building and selling the Willys Americar, it has not forgotten that 73 per cent of the more than 40,000,000 families and individuals who work for a living, have incomes of less than $30 a week."

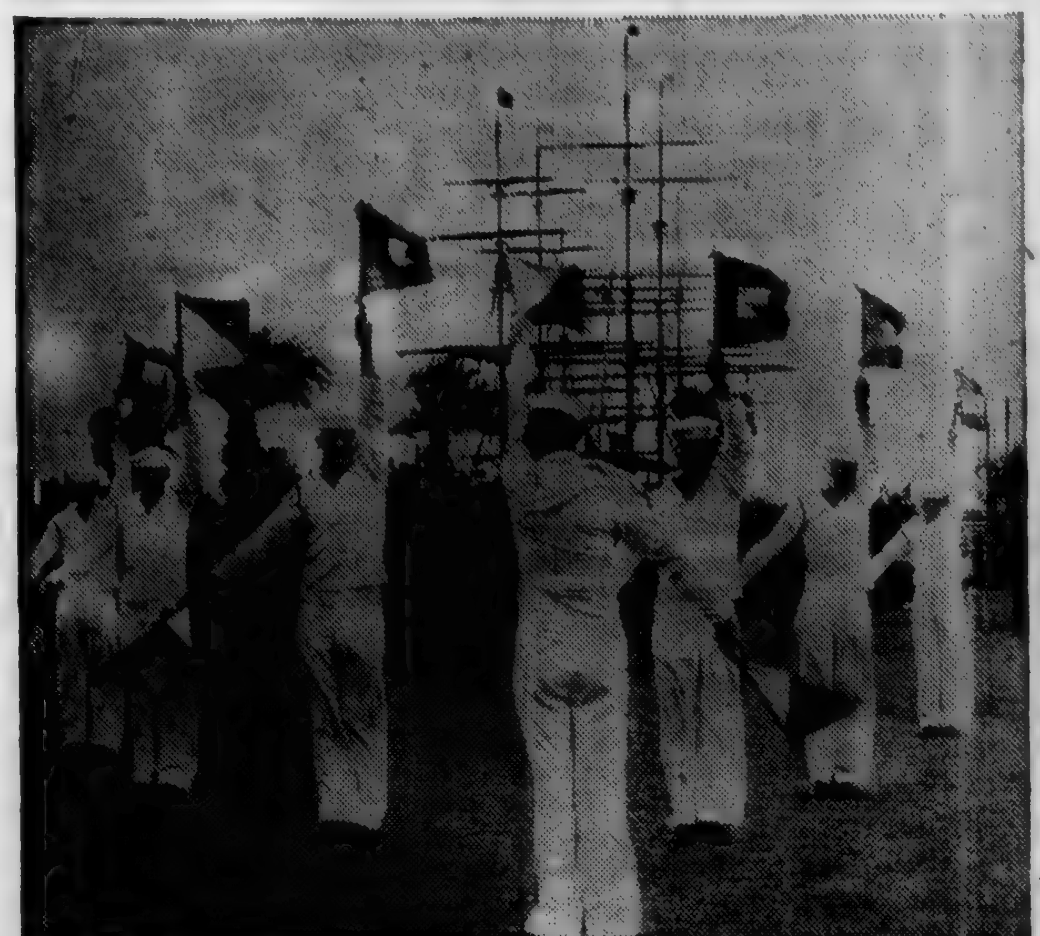
Expansion of demand in rural areas for automobiles has brought the number of dealers who gain their livelihood selling cars in towns under 10,000 population to 32,674. These dealers last year sold 52.7 per cent of the cars sold in the entire country. This percentage was maintained without taking into consideration tractor sales which are mostly in farm communities, The American Press points out.

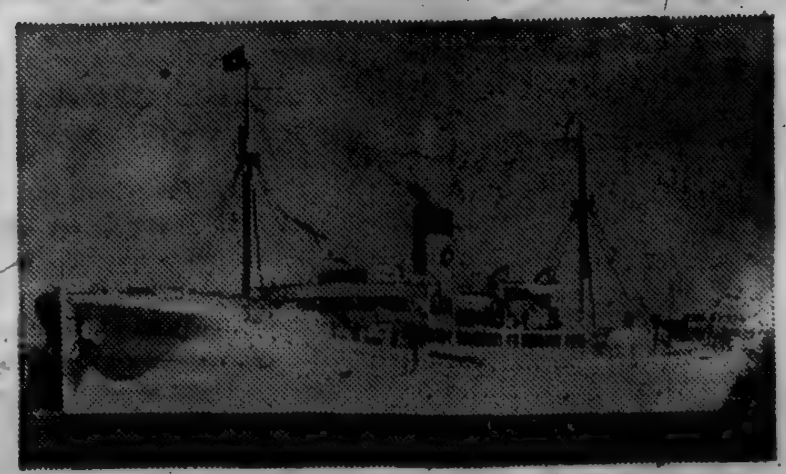
The increasing growth of the rural market is adequately demonstrated by a 1938 Census Bureau survey of three thousand typical farm families. It showed a startling increase of 100 per cent during an eight-year period in the proportion of farms having tractors, and those having passenger cars had increased from 64 to 71 per cent.

Importance of a car in the lives of country-dwelling families is emphasized in surveys by the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, which found that one-third of all rural families could not get to the stores without a car. And four-fifths of all towns under ten thousand population have no local mass transportation system — no buses, no trolleys, it is pointed out.

No wonder 53 per cent of all automobiles registered now in the United States are in towns of under 10,000 population.

U. S. TRAINS YOUTHS FOR SEA





The United States Maritime Service is meeting the threatened shortage of skilled merchant seamen by training youths who have had no previous seagoing experience.

Young American citizens in good physical condition 18 to 23 years of age are being enrolled for a seven months' course of instruction in the duties of the deck, engineers, and stewards departments. Enrollees are paid $21.00 monthly; clothing, food, and quarters are furnished by the Government.

The training course qualifies these young men for jobs on American merchant vessels where pay starts at $72.50 a month with food and quarters furnished.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1941 NUMBER 25

DRAFT BOARDS TO CONSIDER FARM HELP

As a result of a request from Secretary of Agriculture, Claude R. Wickard, Selective Service boards throughout the nation will give serious consideration to individual claims of men engaged in agriculture for occupational deferment, Arthur Lautzenhiser, chairman of the DeKalb County AAA committee, said yesterday.

According to information received in the county office, Mr. Lautzenhiser said, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Deputy Director of Selective Service, has sent a message to all state Selective Service directors cautioning that "the importance of agriculture in the national defense program cannot be overestimated," and has enclosed a letter from Secretary Wickard relating to the shortage of agricultural wokers.

Mr. Wickard asserted that the national defense program has drawn heavily upon the supply of available farm labor and that maintaining an adequate supply of farm workers for production of essential foods for national defense is becoming a serious problem.

General Hershey's memorandum which will be distributed to local boards for guidance in considering claims for deferment on grounds of agricultural occupation, states that the most serious consideration will be given to the information contained in the letter from the Secretary of Agriculture by all local boards in examining claims for occupational deferment by those engaged in agriculture.

In touching on the reduced labor supply available for farmers, the Secretary's letter stated that the labor supply for the United States as a whole has shrunk nearly 18 per cent and in some sections it has decreased as much as 26 per cent. In the section including Indiana, the supply is below last year's by nearly 22 per cent. Assurance of adequate food supplies not only for the United States but also for Great Britain and other democracies under the Lend-Lease Act makes it necessary to increase the production of pork, dairy products, eggs poultry, dried beans and vegetables the Secretary wrote, adding that maintaining sufficient labor to produce these foods is becoming increasingly serious.

The Secretary is asking that the Selective Service System give very careful consideration to the workers urgently needed for production of food vital to defense, so the agricultural industries producing food for defense will have an adequate supply of labor.

June 6, 1897, Mr. Wilder and Miss Dora Shriver wer united in marriage. To this union was born one son—Lehr. After forty-four years together the complete family circle composes Mrs. Wilder, the widow, Lehr, Berniece, daughter-in-law, Billy, Mary, and Bobby, grandchildren.

The deceased was the oldest of ten children, seven sons and three daughters. The parents, one sister and two brothers preceded him in death.

By profession Mr. Wilder was a teacher. Beginning at the early age of fifteen, first in Kentucky and later in Ohio, he taught forty-five years. He studied two years in Kentucky State College, Lexington, Ky., and was graduated from Normal University, Lebanon, Ohio.

Mr. Wilder was a devout Christian. His membership was with the Methodist Church, of Antwerp, Ohio. And in the church, as in the public schools, he was a teacher. He taught classes in the church for a long period, and was active and efficient in the county Sunday School work.

The funeral service was from the Wilder home in Spencer Township, at two o'clock Sunday afternoon, with burial in Alton Cemetery, and was conducted by the Rev. J. N. Scholes.

RUN AWAY GIRLS RETURNED TO THEIR HOMES

Such headlines as "Three Girls Missing, Believed To Have Run Away" are not unusual in our newspapers today. People read them and think little of it. What would YOU do if you were to find these girls or rather if these girls were to find you?

A local rural family east of town found themselves in such a position about 9 o'clock Saturday night when three young girls of ages about 11, 13 and 15 came to the door saying that their parents had recently moved from Avilla to Sherwood, Ohio, and that they had been working in St. Joe, but were through and decided to walk home and surprise their parents.

One girl said she had sprained her ankle when she stepped on a stone on the railroad track. First aid was administered and other questions asked. The girls were advised to return to their friends in St. Joe.

When they left, doubt as to the truth of their story arose, there was also some worry about allowing girls so young to walk the roads and railroad late at night. Telephoned inquiries revealed that the people and places referred to in St. Joe failed to exist, so when the girls returned, soaking wet from the rain, an hour later, their hosts were better prepared to meet the situation.

One girl pretended to become indignant at their story being questioned, but all said their parents couldn't be contacted by phone, and ran when they were offered a ride to their friends in St. Joe providing their hosts talk to these friends and find out that they were welcome and would be cared for over night.

At this point, advice was asked as to the proper authorities to notify. A local business man came to the rescue by contacting the Sheriff and State Police whom he knew to be in town.

Before the officers arrived, the girls returned and asked that the State Police at Kendallville be notified to come after them, and that they would tell him everything.

It was revealed that the girls were from Avilla, two sitsers, one of whom didn't want to go home, and the other, their cousin, the victim of a recent divorce.

The officers took the girls, with the intention of contacting the Kendallville officer, who would be expected to asume the responsibility for them.

Where are the girls now? What kind of homes did they leave? Are their parents good parents? If not, in what way had they failed? Or were the girls misguided and did they feel imposed upon because of small tasks? Suppose these girls, apparently nice girls, too, had fallen into the wrong hands, what tragedies might have befallen them? These and dozens more are the questions flashing through the minds of those who befriended them, and to whom the story is still incomplete.

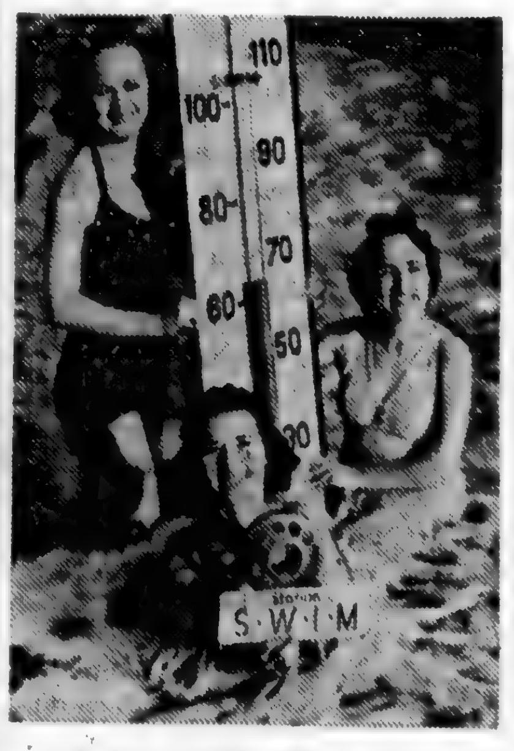
Keep Cool This Summer— It's Easy if You Know How

Keeping cool during the hot summer months is an important problem. Whether you're at home, at work, or enjoying yourself on your vacation, heat can go a far way toward making life uncomfortable. There's nothing you can do to make the temperature go down, but the pictures below illustrate some tips that will help you be more comfortable. If they don't work, we recommend a week-end in Little America.

There's nothing like sitting on a cake of ice when the temperature rises. Of course, not all of us can follow this little fellow's example, but he's certainly got the right idea. Doctors advise heat sufferers to find as cool a spot as possible, and then take it easy.

This fellow seems as cool as a lake breeze as he licks a rapidly melting ice cream cone. Ice cream, cold water or cold (soft) drinks will go a long way toward giving you comfort. You will help your body stand the heat better if you put a pinch of salt in your drinking water occasionally.

Necessity is the mother of invention, or so they say. If you have an irresistible urge to cut grass or work off a little excess energy, better rig up an automatic cooling device like the one used by this practical woman. However, it's advisable not to do any more work than necessary in hot weather, especially not in direct sunshine.



And now here's just about the best way of all. When the mercury starts to boil, there's nothing more pleasant than swimming in cool water, especially when one can have such delightful company as this. Swimmers are warned that they are especially susceptible to sunstroke because the water reflects the sun's rays, thus increasing their effect.

KAGEY-HART NUPTIALS

The Rev. Harold Dunson, of Garrett Church of Christ, officiated at the marriage ceremony of Miss Alice Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Hart, of Coburn's Corners, and Mr. Harold Kagey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kagey, of Garrett, on Wednesday evening, June eleventh in the Coburn's Corners Church.

Tall beauty-baskets of stately delphinium and ferns graced the altar, while bouquets of pale pink peonies and ferns lined the aisle.

To the strains of Mendelsohn's Wedding March the bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage.

The bride was preceded down the aisle by her little niece, Mary Corinne Wilder and her nephew, Thomas Loy Hart, as ring bearers. The double ring ceremony being used.

The bride wore a beautiful powder blue dress of graceful design, with white pumps, and a corsage of white gardenias and stiffenosis tied with white satin ribbon. Miss Dorothy Everett, of Noblesville, Indiana, who attended her, wore a lace dress in rose-ash shade.

The groom wore a smart business suit and was attended by Mr. Fred Stemen, of Spencerville.

Karl Hart, brother of the bride, William Kagey, brother of the groom, Charles Washler, of Spencerville and Kendrick Gooch, of Portland, Maine, served as ushers.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the basement of the church. The decorations here were also of peonies, roses and delphiniums.

The bride's table was centered with a beautiful wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom and flanked on either side with flowers, ferns, and tall tapers in crystal holders. The Mesdames Washler, Lay, and Laub served refreshments at long tables, spread in the main dining room, to the more than one hundred guests.

The happy couple left late that evening for a short honey moon trip in Michigan. They will make their home in Angola the remainder of the year where the room is taking an electrical course at Tri-State Engineering College. Both the bride and groom graduated from the Spencerville high school in 1937. Miss Hart attended Ball State Teachers College for two years and has been employed as teacher in the DeKalb County schools.

The best wishes of the community go with this worthy young couple as they venture out in life together.

GRAPE-NUTS

Oh, I'm sitting pretty,
And I'm getting fat and slick
Since I came up here to Garrett
To take the Night Clerk Trick.
I go on in the evening
And I while the hours away
Calling Railroad men to duty,
As they start their working day.

Then I go out in the dining-room:
I loosen up my belt
To be sure I've plenty room
For all the good things I have smelt
There's good old-fashioned flap-jacks,
With thick "larrup" for the top;
And I eat my ham and eggs until
I'y simply got to stop!

Oh, yes, and there is Mary!
Boy, she makes me loop-the-loop!
She brings my cakes at breakfast time,
And, at dinner, brings my soup!
She's builded up my waistline
Till I haven't any slack!
She's taken all the hollows
From the middle of my back!

Yea, I'm getting fat and "Sassy,"
With a dimple in my chin;
My cheeks are filling out,
And I am learning how to grin.
But I'm feeling so contented that
I'm making no excuse;
For a person never feels right
When his belt is hanging loose.

And when Old Gabriel blows his horn
And tells me, "Fall in line,"
I'll tell him; "Nothin' doin', Gabe,
This place just suits me fine!"
And when he starts to sputter, then
I'll wave at him and shout:
"I'm going to stick at this Hotel Until I'm driven out!"

CERTIFICATES OF BIRTH WILL BE ISSUED BY COURT

Inquiries are being made at the office of County Clerk Murray A. Steele with reference to a new law passed by the recent legislature to provide for establishment of time and place of persons who are without a recorded birth certificate. However, no petitions are now being accepted, but may be filed when the necessary forms are on hand, which is expected to be soon.

The law sets out that such applications may be filled in writing by any person who has been a bona fide resident of the county for more than one year. Applications will not be accepted from persons residing in any other county or state, nor from former residents of this county. Such applications must be filed in the county and state where the person now resides and by the applicant himself.

Upon the filing of such application, the clerk gives notice by publication in a newspaper for one issue. After proof of publication is filed with the county clerk, it will be necessary for two householders of the county to testify that the applicant has been a bona fide resident of the county for at least one year prior to the filing of the application. Upon a showing to the satisfaction of the court of the time and place of the applicant's birth, the court will enter a judgment accordingly and this will be accepted as prima facie evidence in any court or board in this state.

The clerk will keep an index record of the judgments. The costs of the proceedings will be paid by the applicant. However, the costs will be small.

It is stated that before filing such application, a person should contact his local or county health officer to determine if he may thus obtain the necessary proof of time and place of birth.

The court in hearing a case will take into consideration baptismal, cradle roll or other church record; family Bible record; physician's or hospital record; birth certificate of the registrant's child; record from a local, state or federal census; school record; insurance policy; record of military service or employment; marriage or other license; voting registration record; naturalization papers, immigration record or passport; or record of hospitalization. Affidavits filed by persons giving reasons why they know the date of birth of the applicant will also be considered.

THE CONCORDIERS ARE ENTERTAINED

A group of our young musicians, The Concordiers, under the direction of Leslie Wilbern, have made a number of appearances during the last year and have been appreciated and highly commended by the general public.

This "Swing Orchestra" as they so proudly term themselves) has developed rapidly and successfully through the efforts of these young people, all of whom have worked zealously because of their mutual love of music and the interest and respect each one has for their respective musical instrument.

But—without the "potter"—"clay" would still be—"clay"—and The Concordiers were "moulded" by the competence of their conductor and his keen understanding of each individual musician.

Saturday afteroon, June 14th the orchestra were the theatre guests of their conductor Leslie Wilbern. They attended "Horace Heidt and His Musical Knights" stage performance at the Emboyd Theatre in Fort Wayne.

After the theatre party—April Bowser became hostess and they were served an informal dinner at her home. The brilliant comments, during the dinner hour—on all the features of the stage show they had seen—was indeed an entertainment in itself and an appropriate "finis" to their afternoon.

GROWTH OF THE LABOR UNIONS

Six years ago there were four million labor union members in the United States. Today there are nine million. and leaders of principal unions predict that they will eventually have twenty-five million members. This remarkable growth of the unions is credited to official recognition and backing of "collective bargaining" by the United States government.

The unions frequently ignore the National Labor Relations Board and take short cuts in making demands, threatening strikes, and picketing employers. The Government has maintained a systematic policy of "hands off" in such cases, beginning with the sitdown strikes in the automobile industry and continuing up to the present time. During the past few weeks there have been many strikes that have closed down industries engaged in the production of materials for national defense and aid to Britain.

The primary purpose of the National Labor Board as stated in the Act is to prevent unfair labor practices "when they affect commerce," and the Board has the responsibility "to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of the Act." The general public is entirely familiar with the disputes in recent months and has been disturbed over the way in which the rights of employers have been trampled under, and the National Defense program interrupted. In pactically every instance no measures, or laws, were employed to protect anybody, except the CIO and the AF of L. The spirit of the laws, and the emergency of war measures and administration have been entirely ignored. A half dozen branches of the Federal Goverment have been active in proceedings and prosecutions against large and small businesses while at the same time the unions, puffed up by their mushroom growth, have been unchecked and been permitted to run wild.

It is perfectly obvious that official regulation and control should be kept on the behavior of all kinds of organizations, industries, unions, lodges. While millions of new members have been added to the unions some of these groups have unlawfully seized private property and defied the public interests.

The question is: What is going to be done about it? The official record up to date is almost Nothing. The Labor Board hasn't even tried to protect the employers. The Department of Labor's record is Zero. Even the War, Navy and National Defense officials and the Mediation Board have appealed against strikes, with very little success.

If we are going to defend this country why not begin by establishing peace in industry at home? These millions of workers are good, loyal Americans, who have gone into the unions to improve their own welfare. Evidently, in the events of whirlwind membership drives large numbers of union folks have not been able to protect themselves against domineering and unscrupulous leaders. In such cases the duty of the Government is obvious to enforce justice and re-establish the spirit of fair play so that these millions of new members of labor unions and their employers may get together on friendly terms at all times. That is what is usually understood as the basis of the kind of Democracy that Thomas Jefferson said should provide "equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion."

HAVING A PORT

The man today who feels the most confident that there is such a thing as security, is that man who owns a bit of land that he can farm and provide for his family by living from its yield. This is the opinion of many in St. Joe and you will hear more mention of it than you have for a good many years. We think they are probably right for surely security, at least as close as we can come to possessing it, must be obtained through a mental refuge and a physical sanctuary. There is certainly a satisfaction in eating corn off the cob that you tended yourself, scrambling eggs that were laid by your own chickens, digging potatoes that you hoed with your two hands. To produce through one's own efforts comes a feeling of contentment. To the housewife who cans carrots, corn, tomatoes, peas and beans, puts up fruit, lines shelves with arrays of pickles and spreads, packs chickens and pork, stores turnips, potatoes, onions, pears and apples, there surely comes a feeling of security and being able to weather the storm, come what may. Such a glorified array that lines the storage closet in the cool dark cellar is enough to cause envy in the man whose opportunity was not backed by foresight or perspiring endeavor. As security goes today, the man with his tract of ground, his peace derived from open country, his anchorage to the soil, his shelter from want, is the closest to obtaining it.

WE'RE HELPING HITLER

We aren't one to argue that what has been accomplished by Hitler is all just plain luck. We realize that perhaps the majority of thinkers are right when they say that Hitler has built up the most efficient war machine in the history of all the world. That part is Hitler's. But he has been greatly aided in his self-styled clean-up campaign by a number of people who have gone into other countries, spread doctrines, undermined unity and betrayed their associates, all in order to pave the way for their leader, who when the time seemed ripe came forth to invade and conquer. This action of betrayal was called fifth column activity. America felt safe enough for she had everything to gain by remaining intact and who would risk loss of freedom by fighting against each other within the country? America was so solid that treachery couldn't break through the ranks. But too often we learn nowadays of sabotage connected with present disasters. There too is our slowness in producing defense equipment. Everywhere there seems to be unrest among the workers who refuse to carry on unless their demands are met. What is all of it and what is back of all of it? We should recall that after the smoke of battle cleared away facts came out to show how certain countries had fallen to Hitler with the undermining of unity within the country. This was a break for Hitler. With strikes, walk-outs, government big-wigs arguing, disagreements over authority, employers disputing, perhaps if we would settle down to some common sense figuring we might see that we are helping to give Hitler a break.

NOTHING NEW HERE

Into the midst of June, the month of brides, old shoes and rice! There is nothing recent in naming June the bride's month for long ago, before the Christian era, and even before we had those Roman myths to teach us, June was considered the lucky month for a most successful marriage. Certain days were chosen as favorable, by the position of the sun and moon. Many superstitions have been handed down through the years regarding the month of brides and we cling to them as a necessary part of the ceremony. In the very early days if the villagers did not like the union they would follow the wedding procession and beat upon pans and ring bells to show their disapproval of the affair. The church ended this by a decree considering it a display that desecrated a solemn occasion. Today we throw rice and old shoes and tie tin cans on the back of the automobile but not as an act of disapproval. This is just for fun. Having a bachelor party before the ceremony is a very old custom, too. So again we haven't altered the old fashions too much except the one where HE chased HER with a club, caught up and tapped her on the head and from then on proclaimed himself the boss!

BETTY KEES BRIDE OF RICHARD DELUCENAY

Miss Betty Kees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kees, of two miles south of Garrett, and Richard Delucenay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Delucenay, of Ashley, were married on June 5th at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Garrett, the pastor, the Rev. John G. Bennett, officiating.

The bride's attendants were sisters of the bride and groom, Miss Nelda Kees, and Mrs. Nial Goebel of Bryan, Ohio. Herman Delucenay, of Ashley, served his brother as best man. The ushers were Willard Kees of south of Garrett, and Harold Delucenay, of Ashley.

White taffeta was chosen by the bride for her wedding dress. The bodice was tight fitted with short puffed sleeves and a square neckline and the tiered skirt was gathered to the waistline and fell in soft folds. The veil of bridal illusion was fingertip length and was caught to the head in cap effect. She wore white satin slippers and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern. The bride's attendants wore floor length dresses, Mrs. Goebel in rose colored lace and Miss Nelda Kees in aqua blue satin. The flowers were roses and their accessories were white.

Members of the immediate family numbering 30 attended a dinner at the Kees home. The bride's cake centered the table. It was made of two tiers and was square. At one end it was decorated with a miniature bride and groom and on the other end the names and date, "Betty and Dick, June 5" was incribed in icing.

The bride was graduated from the St. Joe high school in 1939 and the groom from Ashley high school in 1935. He is engaged in carpenter work with his father and for the present the couple will reside with the groom's parents.

ALL AUTO LICENSE RECORDS BROKEN IN HOOSIER STATE

Practically all records of the state automobile license department have fallen in recent months, Edward H. Stein, license commissioner has stated.

He released figures showing 1,034,029 sets of auto license plates sold since December 5, last year, and 1,276,087 drivers and chauffeurs licenses.

A total of 60,370 more passenger automobile plates has been issued so far this year than a year ago. The total so far in 1941 is 833,094. Truck licenses have jumped from 110,938 to 116,601 this year.

Drivers' licenses jumped 63,009 to 1,080,736 as of June 1 and chauffeurs' license rose by 7,560 to 127,593.

Reflecting motor vehicle sales, 118,340 license transfers (usually from an old to a new car) have been made so far this year. That nearly doubled the 67,496 which had been made at the same date last year.

New car title issues totaled 90,428 June 1, as against 74,741 at the same date in 1940. Used car title issues now stand at 174,602, a 19,780 increase over last year.

A GREAT MAN

Charles Evans Hughes resigned recently as Chief Justice, as he is now 79 years of age. President Roosevelt in accepting the resignation wrote to the Chief Justice: "This comes to me, as I know it will to the whole nation, as a great shock for all of us have counted on your continuing your splendid service for many years to come. My every inclination is to beg you to remain; but my deep concern for your health and strength must be paramount." Mr. Hughes served New York State as Governor. He was Secretary of State in the Administration of Harding and Coolidge, and the Republican nominee for President in 1916.

There has not been a man in public life in Washington during the twentieth century who has served his country better than the retiring Chief Justice. He ranks with John Marshall as one of the greatest of all American jurists.

When one thinks of how a Justice of the United States Supreme Court should look the answer is: like Charles Evans Hughes.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

During the month of May, 1915, the American steamship Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine off Head of Kinsale, Ireland. More than a thousand lives were lost, of which 124 were American. The submarine was the U-20, commanded by Capt. Schweiger. Berlin claimed that the identity of the vessel was not known to those aboard the submarine. One torpedo did the work. A host of young men, now of voting age, were unborn when the Lusitania went down, and on that account, the foregoing short journey into history may be excused by those whose memories cover the span of 26 years.

The chronicles of May, 1941 include the sinking of the United States freighter Robin Moor, in the South Atlantic, by a submarine alleged with considerable assurance to be of German registery. Compared with the Lusitania disaster, the loss of life was not large, since the entire ship's company amounted to no more than 46, of whom 35 are missing.

In the present instance, the German alibi differs somewhat from the one offered more than a quarter-century ago. Berlin has "no proof" that the sinking of the Robin Moor was of German doing. Otherwise, there is a strong parallelism between the cases. The externals are strangely similar.

The motives, too, have a marked resemblance. The sinking of the Moor followed closely the President's declaration that the ocean was on open means of travel. Germany thumbed her nose at the freedom of the seas doctrine in 1915. She has confirmed her stand in 1941. The torpedo that put down the Lusitania sent Kaiser Wilhelm into Holland. Is it possible that Hitler has laid the cornerstone of an exile's home whereof he will be the tenant?

The Federal government has made it clear that the drastic steps taken or proposed in regard to strikes, are not a slap at organized labor. The view, rather, is that union labor, as a whole, is loyal, but that shuttled through it is a trouble-making thread, which labor cannot pull out unaided. Patriotic leaders among the workers share with Washington the view that a housecleaning is absolutely necessary.

It may seem that with such a concord, the elbowing out of undesirables should be an easy matter; yet each of the allies will have to be fortified with a good deal of moral courage. The labor chiefs who believe that this is no time for strikes, cannot overlook the possibility of inter-organization conflict even more bitter than that arising out of the rival claims of the American Federation and the C. I. O. The President and Congress will have their troubles too, since the less thoughtful or less perfectly informed will see in strike control nothing more than an effort to break the back of unionism.

Straw votes and Congressional debate and enactment show a rising reaction against the view that the situation is one about which nothing can or should be done. The remedy is binary. Employers may need a firm hand. A decent wage must be guaranteed. the making of new millionaires, through war profits, should not be countenanced. Upon the other hand, employes must come to realize that in the present emergency, production must not be hampered by too rigid an enforcement of technical union rules. Both sides should appreciate the fact that no onslaught on legitimate group activity is intended.

As a general statement, the world has war enough, yet most persons in their hearts, and the English openly, would be glad to see more war, if rightly carried on. The rumors of a Nazi-Soviet disagreement fell on eager ears. It is alleged that German demands upon Russia have worn out the patience of Petrograd. The nature of the demands is as uncertain as is the reality of their existence. It may be that Germany needs a more liberal supply of Russian wheat, furnished by the Ukraine. Present reports about the massing of troops on both sides of the Soviet border, if true, discredit the stories of a week ago regarding a Hitler-Stalin love feast. About all that can be done is to wait and hope. When rogues fall out, honest men have a chance of receiving their due.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Today's quiz questions deal entirely with Indiana and should prove easy for observers of Hoosier politics. Rep. George W. Gillie received a score of 90 per cent, mising question number four. The average reader should be able to answer at least half of the questions. A score of 60 is good, 70 excellent. Check your replies with the proper answers at the end of the column.

INDIANA QUIZ : (1) How many Congressional districts are there in the state of Indiana? (2) How many are served by Republican Congressmen? (3) Name the two incumbent Indiana Senators. (4) What is the approximate population of Indiana? (5) Name five Hoosiers who have won fame in the literary world. (6) Two former Indiana Governors are now with the New Deal in Washington. Who are they and what do they do? (7) What was the so-called "Little New Deal?" (8) Who is the present Governor of Indiana? Who did he defeat for election? (9) Name two Hoosiers who have served as Vice President. (10) Name the strongest Republican Congressional District in Indiana.

NOT A PLEASURE: The threat of gasless Sundays is causing considerable concern among church-goers in Adams County. One of them wants to know if it would prevent people from driving to church.

"The people in the country cannot walk or ride bicycles to church when they have several miles to go, as the city people can. Going to church on Sundays cannot be classified as a pleasure.

"Freedom of religion is absolutely necessary to keep up the morals of the nation. If the people are kept from going to church because of this plan, these United States of America are no better than the government of Germany or Russia."

Secretary Ickes, the new oil czar, has assured us that the ban on gasoline, if it becomes necessary, will not be extended to church-goers.

REPRESENTATIVE GILLIE still has on hand a supply of booklets, "Our American Government, What Is It? How Does It Function?" They contain 252 questions and answers on the Federal Government and will be sent to any constituent on request. Send for your copy now.

MOUNT VERNON: Nearly all visitors to Washington pay their respects to the Father of Our Country by taking a trip to beautiful Mount Vernon, an enduring monument to the best in early American home planning and architecture. Few who pass through the spacious old mansion can help but be amazed at the comfort and charm that typifies the home of General Washington. The house itself and the numerous outbuildings that comprise the plantation are built of solid wooden planks covered with a white sand substance that keeps the structures in a remarkable state of preservation.

However, Mount Vernon was not always in the splendid condition that it enjoys today. In 1840 the famous estate was in a sad state of disrepair. Since Washington's death in 1799, the estate had passed from relative to relative until John Augustine Washington Jr., received it as a wedding gift in 1843. He attempted to have either the United States or the State of Virginia take it over as a memorial, but failed.

It remained for a frail woman, Ann Cunningham of South Carolina, to save Washington's home for posterity. Miss Cunninghom arose from a sick bed and raised by private subscription the $200,000 to purchase the house and grounds. She organized the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association in 1856, and this same organization still retains possession of Mount Vernon.

QUIZ ANSWERS: (1) There are twelve Cogressional Districts. The number will be reduced to eleven in 1942, under the new Reapportionment Act. (2) Eight Districts—the Second (Halleck.) Third (Grant), Fourth (Gillie.) Fifth (Harness,) Sixth (Johnson,) Seventh (Landis,) Ninth (Wilson,) and Tenth (Springer.) (3) Senators Raymond E. Willis and Frederick Van Nuys. (4) According to the 1940 Census, the population of Indiana is 3,427,000. Any reply within 100,000 can be considered correct. (5) Lew Wallace, James Whitcomb Riley, Booth Tarkington, Gene Stratton Porter, Meredith Nicholson, Theodore Dreiser, George Ade, Claude Bowers, to mention only a few. (6) Paul V. McNutt is Social Security Administrator, and M. Clifford Townsend is an O. P. M. agricultural expert. (7) The regime of Governor McNutt, 1932-36. (8) Henry F. Schricker. He defeated Glenn R. Hillis, (9) Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indianapolis, Vice President under Theodore Roosevelt, and Thomas R. Marshall, of Columbia City, Vice President under Woodrow Wilson. (12) The Fourth District, represented by George W. Gillie, and the Second District, represented by Charles A. Halleck, are of about equal strength. Republican majorities of over 20,000 have been returned in both districts in the past two elections.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM PRIVATE DALE COLLINS

The News welcomes the second letter from Dale Collins, who is located at Camp Shelby, Miss., and we are pleased to pass it along to our readers as follows:

"June 11, 1941.

"Hello Mr. and Mrs. Leighty:

"Thanks for letting so many of my friends know my address, I received several letters, DeVere Woodcox wrote me from Norfolk, Virginia, Mrs. Cleota Crick from Anderson, and Marjorie Ramsey wrote me a very nice letter from Fort Wayne, her doctor is Major Glock, who is here in Shelby in the medical detachment.

"Today has been a nice day, not so hot, it is back down to 90 degrees or so and quite a relief.

"We are through our basic training, which consists of learning to march, methods of attack, nomenclature of our weapons, uses of compasses and methods of concealment for troops, in fact everything that we should know for welfare of ourselves and friendly troops.

"We are going on short maneuvers of a day or so duration, we leave tonight at 1:00 A. M. for a hike and a river crossing, we were through a practice gas chamber and that is something, I made the very sad mistake of shaving this morning and that tear gas made me hot under the collar, it gets warm even though our shirts which are pretty thin, these guys aren't so tough, they all cried, the biggest tears, all in fun of course.

We are all pretty well equipped now and pretty well settled into our routine and respective spots.

"I'm writing this to you Fred, but I'm hoping the folks around town might read it for I can't possibly write to all. I'd like to but by the time I do my daily dozen with the boys on the march, on the field, in the river, or wherever the action is and do my washing and knitting for the week, I've just about run out of time. I'll never get used to being so busy, more to do every time I turn around so I have been looking directly front lately.

UCATION ACTS MARK MILESTONE SCHOOLMEN SAY

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of a series of articles on legislation enacted by the 1941 Republican-controlled General Assembly. The second will appear in an early issue.)

INDIANAPOLIS — Educational legislation enacted by the Republican controlled 1941 General Assembly marked a milestone and placed Indiana in the front ranks of the states of the Union in progressive school standards, leading Hoosier educators were agreed here today.

Teachers and school officials and organizations identified with education pointed to four specific pieces of legislation benefitting instructors, pupils and raising educational standards generally. These acts will become effective with promulgation of the laws of the 1941 session within the next few weeks.

The four laws which were selected for special praise by those in the teaching profession were:

Increase in the minimum salary schedule for teachers.

Assurance that the state's contribution (increased at the insistence of Republican legislators) toward teachers' salary payments will be spent for that purpose only.

Compulsory medical examination of instructors, school bus drivers and others who come in contact with pupils, cost of the examination to be borne by the township.

Protection of male teachers who are called to military service in the national defense program.

Commendation of these laws has come not only from those identified with education in Indiana, but leading educators throughout the country have pointed to the 1941 laws in Indiana as marking one of "the greatest steps in education taken by any state."

The "Indiana Teacher," in its March issue, referred to the 1941 Republican-controlled Legislature as a "good session." That issue of the official publication of the Indiana State Teachers Association listed the beneficial legislation enacted by the recent Assembly.

Educators pointed particularly to the amendment to the teachers' minimum salary law which will mean an aggregate increase in salaries to teachers approximating $240,000 annually.

Similarly the salaries of the teachers were protected by the provisions of the medical examination act which provide that the township bear the examination cost unless the teacher chooses his or her own physician. Cost of the examination is limited to $10.

THE ROAD

Up a little path by a winding way,
She carefully kept to the highest place,
As she sauntered along at her easy pace.

She avoided the trees and the swampy 'goo,'
And her calf followed on to her gentle moo.
Then later a man with weary feet
Was glad of the path that the cow had beat.

Anon came a rider with spur and whip,
And he followed the cow every curve and dip.
Then a wagon and team with a heavy load
Went by, and the path became a road.

Then a highway followed the path of the cow,
It was smooth and paved, and it curved—and How!
It had Mae West out-curved by a span—
And that's some curving I'll say, Yea Man!

And now as WE go to our County Seat,
We travel the path that the old cow beat
We put on our brakes, and our old car swerves,
And we hold our breath as we take those curves.

The old cow's dead—may she rest in peace
While we take our curves that are slick as grease.
We fondly remember this cow so great,
As we follow her path on Road Number Eight.

UNITED STATES
MARINES

FOURTH OF JULY PRESENT

Prompt and decisive action in an emergency has always been the policy of the U. S. Navy and its leaders, while our bluejackets and marines have shared honors in countless enterprises, both afloat and ashore.

There was need for prompt action on the morning of July 3, 1898. The Spanish fleet was bottled up in the harbor of Santiago, Cuba. Upon receiving a command from his chief to take his squadron out of the harbor immediately, Admiral Cervera endeavored to run through the blockade of American warships, regardless of the consequences.

When the purpose of the Spaniards became evident, Commodore Schley brought his squadron into action by hoisting the flag signal, "Close in and engage."

The deadly fire of American bluejackets and marines resulted in the destruction of all six of the Spanish vessels as they passed through the mouth of the harbor in an effort to reach the open sea. Out of a personel of 2,200 the enemy lost 323 killed and 151 wounded, most of the remainder being taken as prisoners.

American losses were negligible, with only one killed and one wounded. They had won a complete victory over an equally gallant, though less fortunate, foe.

Rear Admiral Sampson was the commander-in-chief of the naval forces in the West Indies. On the morning of July 4th, when the last Spanish vessel was a smoldering wreck, he sent home this message: "I make the American Nation a Fourth of July present of the whole of Cervera's fleet."

MARINES NEW BASE HAS SIMILAR NAME

Washington, June—Much of Uncle Sam's mail has been going to the U. S. Marines at Marines. By mere coincidence the names of these military men and that of a post office, which lies within their newly acquired base along the New River in North Carolina, are identical.

Named after two brothers who settled there more than fifty years ago, the village has a number of other namesakes elsewhere in the United States. There is a Marine in Illinois, another Marine in Kentucky and a Marine City in Michigan.

Adding to the seagoing nomenclature of the nation one may find a Mariner in Maine, a Mariners Harbor in New York and a Sailor Springs in Illinois, not to mention a Bluejacket far from the sea in Oklahoma.

Naval branches of the service, however, have no monopoly in the postal directory. Towns named Soldier flourish in Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky and Pennsylvania and there is a Warrior in Alabama.

Further evidence that Uncle Sam is not especially pacifistic is shown by the fact that there are at least three Fifes, two Drums, a Rifle and two Cannon in the United States.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

The St. Joe Dramatic Club has selected a play to be given at the Newville Chautauqua in August. The play is a comedy by Eugene Hafer and is entitled "Kidnapping Betty." Rehearsals will start after July 4th. The club will be accompanied by "The Concordiers" orchestra.

Mrs. Anna Baker, of Fort Wayne, was a Sunday dinner guest of Mrs. William Randall, and Mr. and Mrs. William Randall, of Fort Wayne were supper guests. Mrs. Randall was jubilant over their visit and besides she was able to prepare both meals. She states she is rapidly gaining in health and of course that is real good news to her many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Crick and son, Bobby, of Anderson, spent from Wednesday night until Sunday in the Charles Morr and Robert Morr homes, going fishing a part of the time, with good luck, catching a nice lot of fish. Miss Doris Doswell and Mr. and Mrs. William Crick, and son, Robert and lady friend, of Fort Wayne, were also Sunday dinner guests of the Morrs. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morr, sons, Larry and Dicky, of Auburn, were afternoon callers.

WASHINGTON LOCALS

The War Department has gone on a 44-hour a week work basis.

Staggered pay days for Government employes will be on four days a month instead of twice a month.

The different Departments have arranged stagger-hours from eight o'clock in the morning until late at night.

A rent commission will likely be created for the District of Coumbia.

New Government employes are coming from everywhere, thus multiplying the forces in the Departments and in war defense activities.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION

The U. S. is not overlooking the importance of the mosquito to the army and navy trainees in their camps, especially in the southern states where the danger of malaria is greater. Such protective means are as necessary to a soldier's welfare as being properly clothed and fed. A million dollars is being spent to prevent disease such as this malaria fever from running through our army camps. It will also cover attention to the other types of mosquitoes that are listed as annoying pests. We can carry on a local war against feeding grounds and breeding places for flies and mosquitoes here in St. Joe. Through precaution we can eliminate a chance for illness for every town has spots that delight insects. It is up to us to clean up these places and protect our own army right here at home.

JUST IN CASE

Last year at this time we had on our desk a bit of literature put out by the U. S. Forest Service, rules of behavior for those who might be going into the state and national forests for vacations. We may be smart in finding our way through traffic but the Forest Service finds that many of us aren't so smart in the woods. People who become lost from their party generally become panic stricken and they lose their heads through fear. The foresters of experience suggest that before you start wandering aimlessly around in circles, sit down and try to figure out sensibly just what about directions. Don't roam and if you happen to be caught by night or fog or storm, stop and camp in a sheltered spot. Gather plenty of fuel and build a fire in a safe place. If injured, find an open spot to make a smoke signal. Travel only down hill. Most important of all, don't run, yell, worry yourself into a panic. Don't give up. When lost in the woods we are our own worst enemy in seeking safety.

MARINES PROUD OF NICKNAME

Some persons think that the U. S. Marines are called Leathernecks because their skin has been tanned and toughened by the heat and sun in the tropics. But this deep brown color has nothing to do with their nickname.

They are called Leathernecks because years ago their uniforms included stiff leather collars, or stocks. These stocks were of heavy leather about three inches in height, which encircled the neck and were fastened at the back by a buckle.

For many years the stocks compelled the sea soldiers to hold their heads erect, although there was no more need to tell the Leathernecks to "keep their chins up" in those days than there is today.

It is known that the stocks were a part of the uniform in 1798 and that they remained in vogue until about 1880, when they were abandoned. They were very uncomfortable and the Marines were not sorry to see them disappear.

Up until a few years ago there were a number of retired sea soldiers who could remember the time the stocks were worn during all military formations. Today their memory survives only in a nickname of which most of the Marines are rather proud.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

After a term of Congressional deliberation and debate, dating back to the time when Winter was merging into Spring, the Ways and Means Committee of the House has spoken tentatively upon the subject of taxation. Although not so drastic in some respects as the system offered by the Treasury, the House plan points to a rough and rugged road for the middle bracket tax payer to travel.

Those having incomes that range from $1,000 to $5,000 per year, will be asked to part with three times as much at the next collection as they did at the last, it is alleged. When the $10,000 figure is reached, the tax will be about twice what it was formerly. The top-notchers will have to put up with an increase of from 15 to 75%. There will be a lowering of the surtax limit, which will affect practically everyone. Each will have a chance to do his "bit," though the contribution in most instances will be regarded as a "bite," and a good sized one at that.

When neighbors begin to run the lawn mower early Sunday morning, in retaliation for a late and loud operation of the radio the night before, friendly relations may be said to have become strained. Diplomatic connections between the United States and the Axis powers have reached that stage. The suppression of the German consulates in this country was put off with noteworthy forbearance. The United States is not at war, but Mr. Hitler himself is good support for the rule that it is unwise to wait for attack before getting ready to ward off attack.

A nation is entitled to prepare for defense, and to do so in secrecy. It is unnecessary, yet a logical step in the argument, to remark that the German consulates have been a source of information for the Nazi organization little less effective than sending carbon copies of American State and War Department papers directly from the writers to Berlin. The expulsion of the German consuls is good riddance to bad rubbish. The Italian and Nazi governments have ordered the consulates of the United States out of nine European countries, as might have been expected, but the feeling here is that we have the best of the deal.

During a fifty year old conversation, an overseas visitor remarked that "Russia is a great nation," to which a statesman of that country replied: "Sir, Russia is not a nation; she is a world." Accepting the definition, the "world" is in a bad way. Hitler is demanding, and Stalin is said to be ready with liberal concessions. Although the Russian face is diplomatically saved by calling the arrangement a mutual understanding, or something of the sort, the screws undoubtedly have been put on Russia. How far she will be content to eat humble pie, is a matter of surmise. To even the peace-loving, reports of massing along the Soviet border have a pleasing sound.

The Director of the Japanese Information Bureau is quoted as saying that it is almost certain that the United States will enter the war as Britain's associate; that Japan is playing an important part as a deterent to the entry of the United States into the conflict; and that Japan must remain dominant on her side of the Pacific. As to the first proposition, the certainty is not apparent. Regarding the second, it is probably true. Considering the third, the Japanese ought to be smart enough to know that when anyone expresses a desire to be dominant anywhere, Hitler, if unchecked, will see about that sooner or later.

Those of us who are particularly alert at arithmetic, and the class is large, have to go softly, ever conscious of the fact that the adding machine may overtake us in our intellectual sin and weakness. Who has not sneaked abashed out of the side door, after trying to convince a grocer that 67 plus 26, minus 19 for the bottles turned in, equals 64? For all such, a star of hope has appeared in the firmament, and self-respect is returning slowly. The War Department announces that, through a clerical error, a project defense plant will cost eight million dollars, rather than approximately seventeen million as originally stated.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Direct and immediate Government action to meet the problem created by a shortage of farm labor, which is growing more serious every day, has been recommended by Rep. George W. Gillie, of Indiana, a member of the House Committee on Agriculture.

In a letter to editors of the Indiana Farmers' Guide, commenting on a recent article describing the agricultural labor shortage in Indiana and other farm states, Representative Gillie declared:

"There is no denying the fact that the shortage of farm labor is a serious 'bottleneck' in the defense program—one which should be dealt with promptly and effectively if the Government program calling for increased production of farm commodities is to be successful.

"What is the answer? Your article suggests a partial solution through the utilization of C. C. C. and W. P. A. labor. I believe you are on the right track, and that a practical plan along these lines could be developed.

"Supplementing this, however, should be the general deferment of young men engaged in agricultural pursuits by local draft boards. Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft executive, is aware of this problem and has recommended a more liberal interpretation of the draft law as it effects registrants employed on farms.

"As a further suggestion, I have in mind the possible establishment of farm employment agencies in rural counties, through which farmers could fill their part-time and seasonal employment requirements. A plan similar to this has operated successfully for generations in my native Scotland.

"These agencies could operate in co-operation with representatives of local branches of the W. P. A., the C. C. C., and township relief organizations. Registration should be compulsory and relief should be withheld from those unwilling to accept farm employment at a reasonable wage.

"I feel confident that with the full co-opereation of the Government, and of the above-named agencies, such a plan could be made to work.

"Certainly something must be done to meet this problem if national defense food requirements are to be met. We cannot afford to drift along as we have, with conditions growing more critical by the day.

"You may count on my full support of any constructive program for the solution of this very serious problem.

MUHLENBERG STAMP: Representative Gillie sent a petition to the Postmaster General this week, signed by more than thirty Members of Congress, urging the issuance of a special stamp in 1942, commemorating the 200th anniversary of the arrival of the famous Muhlenberg family in America.

The stamp would jointly honor Henry Muhlenberg, the circuit-riding, church-founding patriarch of the Lutheran Church in America, and his three sons—Peter, aide de camp to General Washington; Frederick, the first Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Ernest, a noted botanist. All were ordained clergymen of the Lutheran Church.

The petition, prepared by Representative Gillie, pointed out that "these men gave valued leadership to the cause of independence, swinging their followers solidly to the support of the Revolution, the Constitution and the founding of the United States. This proposed stamp would be an inspiration to patriotism, in these days when patriotism is needed."

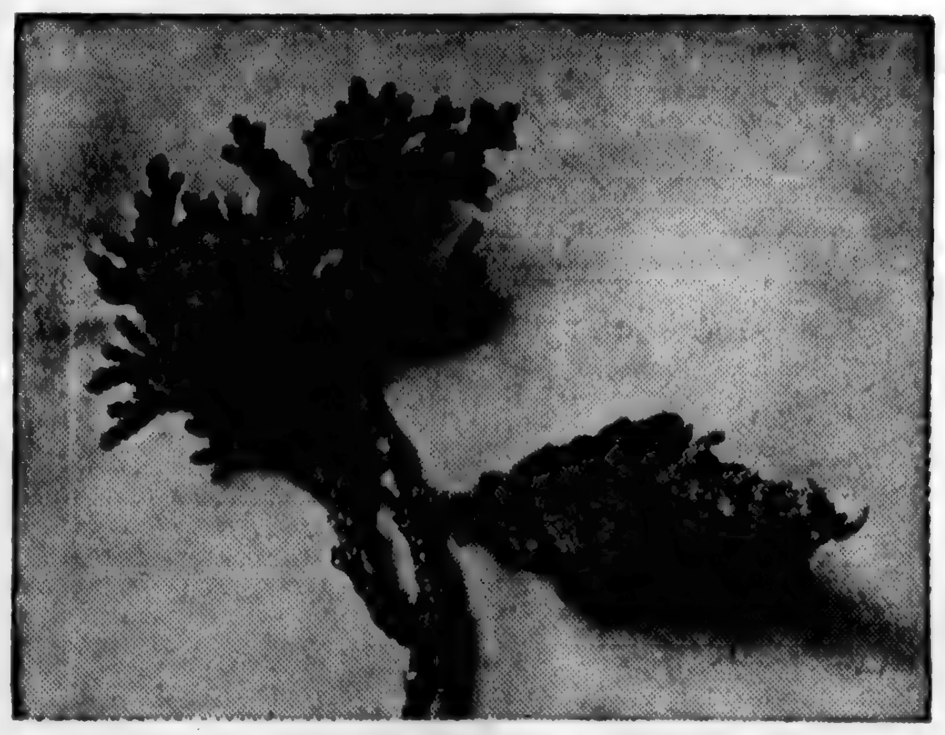
The Allen County department of public welfare has no right to enforce a lien on a decendent's estate to satisfy old age assistance advancements, according to a ruling by Judge George H. Leonard in court at Fort Wayne. The judge's finding was made in connection with a $313 claim filed by the welfare department against the David L. Trisch estate. The administrator of the estate, Fred Pothoff, resisted the claim. The judge's ruling was made in view of an enactment by the 1941 legislature providing that after March 12, 1941, the holdings of old age recipients were not subject to a lien for repayment of assistance.

SPRAY NOW TO CONTROL BAGWORM DAMAGE TO FOLIAGE



Bagworm Case on an Evergreen

An arsenate of lead spray for evergreens, trees and shrubbery provides an effective control for bagworms if applied at this season of the year when the young worms are hatching, Paul T. Ulman, assistant state entomologist, pointed out today.

Application of this control treatment kills the young worms as they begin to feed upon leaves and other foliage and start the formation of the cases such as are pictured above. These cases or bags, are formed from bits of leaves and are carried by the worm as it moves from one feeding place to another. The female worms spend their lives in these cases, laying from 200 to 250 eggs which winter over in the case and hatch out in the Spring. The male of the species develop wings.

The bag or case in which the worm lives and travels is enlarged as the worm grows, reaching a length of one and a half to two inches when the worm is mature.

The bagworm is found chiefly in the southern part of the state, rarely in the extreme northern part, and when present in numbers can defoliage trees and shrubbry if no control measures are taken.

If Swimmin' Holes Could Talk . . . They Might Say:

It's been some parade, what with swimming suit styles changing each year. From the percale "longies" of the 1800s, we've watched women's suits get smaller and smaller . . . and the designs and fabrics prettier and prettier.

"Back in '66 were the days! Young ladies sure had fun dabbling in the water. Swimming? Oh, some of them tried it, but of course their percale suits were a bit cumbersome—they weighed 75 pounds when wet—and then, too, their frilly bathing hats weren't at all waterproof!"

"Jersey suits? Well, they were the vogue about the turn of the century when modest misses still insisted on sleeves, collars, full skirts, and all the trimmings. Active swimming was still out of the question."

"'Twas 1910, or thereabouts, that women donned real knit swim suits. And what pace setters those models were—gone were the sleeves, the high necklines . . . and the skirts actually ended above the knees."

—Jantzen Photos.

"Now you're talking," one swimmin' hole said, watching 1941 swim suit versions marching toward the water's edge. "Yep, believe you've got something there!"

'Anyone Can Sing National Anthem'

You don't need a perfect voice to sing our National Anthem correctly, according to Miss Lucy Monroe, famous singer of stage, radio and opera. Miss Monroe ought to know, too, because she is considered the foremost exponent of the National Anthem today.

"There has been a lot of talk from various quarters," she says, that the National Anthem is much too difficult to be sung by the average American, that its register is so high it is a vehicle for opera stars. This is a lot of bosh.

"There's only one way of singing the National Anthem, and that's to sing it as you would at a patriotic gathering."

Miss Monroe has sung this stirring song so many times that she has been honored with the title of "Star Spangled Soprano." Her fame as an interpreter of the National Anthem has made her the official soloist of the American Legion and the Gold Star Mothers. As star of the "American Jubilee" at the World's fair last summer, she sang the song more than 700 times to over 2,000,000 people.

LUCY MONROE
"Star Spangled Soprano"

This spring Miss Monroe made what she considers "an all-American recording" of the "Star Spangled Banner." With the accompaniment of the National Symphony orchestra, she sang the song from the authentic first edition in the Library of Congress.

The disc was recorded at Constitution Hall in Washington on the tenth anniversary of the congressional act which made the "Star-Spangled Banner" our National Anthem.

Because of her heritage and training Miss Monroe is considered an all-American artist. Her family came to America in 1610, and seven of her ancestors fought in the battle of Bunker Hill. She is a member of the family which gave the White House President James Monroe.

In addition to being featured in more than 500 coast-to-coast broadcasts in four years, Miss Monroe has sung with four of America's outstanding opera companies—the Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and the Metropolitan. Yet for all the "glamour" there is to an opera star, she prefers to be known as "the girl who sings the Star-Spangled Banner."

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

CANNING IS IMPORTANT FOR HOME PREPAREDNESS

With all America defense-minded, home canning is taking on new importance this year. Millions of quarts of good food stored away in home pantries are important to both family and national preparedness.

So the home canner who plans to can this season will want to check her equipment before she gets into the full swing of the busy Summer season. Here are some of the main points to check:

First, if you plan to can non-acid vegetables, you'll need a steam-pressure canner—and one in tip-top condition. Only in such a canner is it possible to get temperatures above boiling. And higher-than-boiling temperatures are necessary to kill the organisms that cause spoilage in practically all vegetables except tomatoes.

Steam-pressure canners need to be rechecked each year to see that the pressure gage registers correctly. This gage may be taken off and sent to the factory where it was made, for the manufacturers to check and adjust.

The best way to can acid foods—fruits and tomatoes—is to use a water-bath for processing. See that all parts of this are assembled. All you need is a wash boiler, a bucket, or a similar vessel that has a tight-fitting lid, and a rack for the bottom. This canner needs to be high enough to permit covering the cans or jars with 1 to 2 inches of water.

As for containers—take stock of your supply of glass jars or tin cans. Buy new rubber rings for glass jars. Good rings will stretch to twice their length. Discard any jars or caps that show cracks, chips or dents. Throw away porcelain-lined metal lids if the lining is the least bit loose. Tighten loose wire clamps on lightning-type jars by bending the wire down in the middle on top, and inward at the sides.

If you use tin cans, be sure you have the right kind of tin for the kind of food you intend to can. You'll need C-eamel lined cans for corn, lima beans, kidney beans, and succotash. C-enamel lined cans have a dull finish and are light gold color. You'll need the deeper gold, bright R-enamel for beets, all kinds of berries, cherries, cranberries, plums, pumpkins and squash. Plain tin is satisfactoy for all other fruits and vegetables.

AN EXTRA PINT OF MILK FROM HOOSIER COWS

"An extra pint a day will go all the way!"

Indiana's share of the increase requested for the National Food for Defense Program can easily be produced by the present cow population if every cow increases production as little as one pound or one pint of milk per day.

Last year, 794,000 Hoosier cows produced 263,993,575 gallons of milk. If 750,000 cows maintain this slightly enlarged production throughout the year, the increase would amount to 26,162,790 gallons or appoximately 10 per cent of our annual production.

This increase of one glass of milk at each milking may easily be accomplished in any one of the following ways:

1. More careful and complete milking.
2. Provision of sufficient supplementary pasture.
3. Grain should be ground ration, balanced, and fed according to individual needs of each cow.
4. Provide 20 to 30 pounds of high quality legume hay per cow.
5. Provide abundant supply of fresh, clean water.
6. Have salt available at all times.
7. Keep cows comfortable, Winter and Summer.
8. Control the fly nuisance.
9. Regularity in milking and gentle treatment.
10. Use silage to suppliment dry roughage.
11. Condition and rest each dry cow six to eight weeks.
12. Feed calves limited amounts of milk, substituting with suitable grains and then market the maximum production.

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, JULY 3, 1941 NUMBER27

THE CHURCH IN THE WORLD TODAY

The following is the address delivered in the Spencerville Lutheran Church, Sunday evening, June 29, by the Rev. Prof. E. E. Flack, Th. D., D. D., Dean of Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio, to an almost capacity audience. Special music was furnished by the Auburn Lutheran choir.

The message is as follows:

Text: 2 Cor. 10: 4-5. "For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds; casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ."

In St. Paul's Cathedral, London, which was recently struck by a bomb, there stands near the crypt where the artist Holman Hunt lies buried a life size painting of Christ "The Light of the World." The face divine is beaming with light and the crown of thorns upon His brow is green with leaves "for the healing of the nations." The scene is symbolic. On the one hand appear diabolic forces operative in a world of iniquity to destroy the very citadels of our civilisation; on the other, the light of the Christ shining through His Church to save distracted humanity. What is wrong with the world? Is it under the curse of sin? What can restore order? The love of God in Jesus Christ made manifest through the Gospel.

DEAN E.E FLACK, TH.D., D.D.

The New Testament gives us, first of all, a true view of the world. Briefly, it is this: God created this universe perfect and saw "everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good." But sin entered the world. The mass of humanity constituting the world today is led astray by vain imaginations. "Why do the heathen rage and the people imagine vain things?" asks the psalmist. It is because their foolish heart is darkened. "Imagination," says Napoleon, "rules the world." Nations, which otherwise should live in peace have become suspicious of each other, envious, jealous, and at variance. Their propaganda ministries feed the minds of men with lies intended to deceive. The world is a cauldron seething with suspicion. The human family, made of one blood by the mighty hand of the Creator, is torn asunder by the imaginations and machinations of men, and it hastens on toward destruction. "Now is the judgment of this world...." declared the Master.

The history of mankind in the world may be delineated in terms of four recurring stages. First came the nomadic stage, when men were wanderers in the wildernesses. Then came the agricultural, when they settled down in communities to till the soil. Then came the industrial age, which found seething and suffering masses crowded in urban confines. With industrialism came economic complexities leading to a period of disintegration. These four stages are observable in every great civilisation, in Babylon, Greece, Rome, European, and even now in America. We are in the crisis of the world disintegration. How true it is, "imagination rules the world."

The question before us is: What can "cast down imaginations" and reconstitute the world in a saving order? There have been five historic attempts that have failed.

The first of these methods is that of conquest. Men historically designated as the Great, such as Nebuchadnezzar, Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, etc., have sought to conquer the world. Imagining themselves world monarchs, they have in their own way sought to bring the nations together by the power of the sword. In a period of 3,357 years the world experienced 3,130 years of war and only 227 of peace.

War has alwys failed as a method of crystallising human brotherhood. It always will fail. It is a false method. It proceeds from vain imaginations; it is not the result of sane, deliberate, prayerful thought and action. This nation of ours is now under solemn obligation not to go to war.

A second method that has failed to rebuild the world has been that of a hierarchial system. It is true, this kind of a system has been promoted in practically all parts of the world, but wherever it has held the field ignorance, superstition, and formalism have prevailed, with disintegration as the consequence. Look at Russia, or at Spain. Such nations have rebelled against the externalism that dominated their peoples.

A third method is described by Sherwood Eddy as "The Kingdom of God and the American Dream." Our forefathers who came to these shores sought in the New World a Utopia which came to be equated with the Kingdom of God. But the very identification of Christianity with democracy has led to sinister consequences. In our own America millions of people exist in disillusionment and despair. Beware of the man who equates America or the Western Hemisphere or any part of the world with the Kingdom of God.

A fourth method of establishing human brotherhood in the world has been through economic processes. World trade, international postal regulations, and similar endeavors have tremendously affected human understanding for good. But today the world is in the clutches of an economic war. Nations are fighting for the balance of trade, for primacy in the markets of the world.

A fifth method which looms large today is that of socialism, the submergence of the individual in the life of the State. It is this theory, whether under the guise of Faciam, Nazism, of Communism, that threatens the world today. Under the sway of the might of the masses democracy has all but vanished from the face of the earth. Rugged individualism is practically a thing of the past. The world today is governed by social forces that can never create a true brotherhood of man. "Imagination rules the world." The masses in every land are torn by fears and carried away by follies and fancies.

What method, then, is adequate to bring together the nations of the earth? What are the weapons that "are mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds and the casting down of imaginations?"

Briefly, it is the method of a "kingdom that is not of this world," the use of "weapons that are not carnal." It is the building of a kingdom of love, forgiveness, mercy, and peace in the hearts of men through the Gospel. It is a spiritual process. It is the establishing of an ecumenical Christendom, a worldwide faith in Christ and the principles of the Gospel of love. It is the building of a brotherhood of men who "bring into captivity every thought of the obedienec of Christ." "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus," and you will become a part of the spiritual Kingdom that shall ultimately bring "healing to the nations."

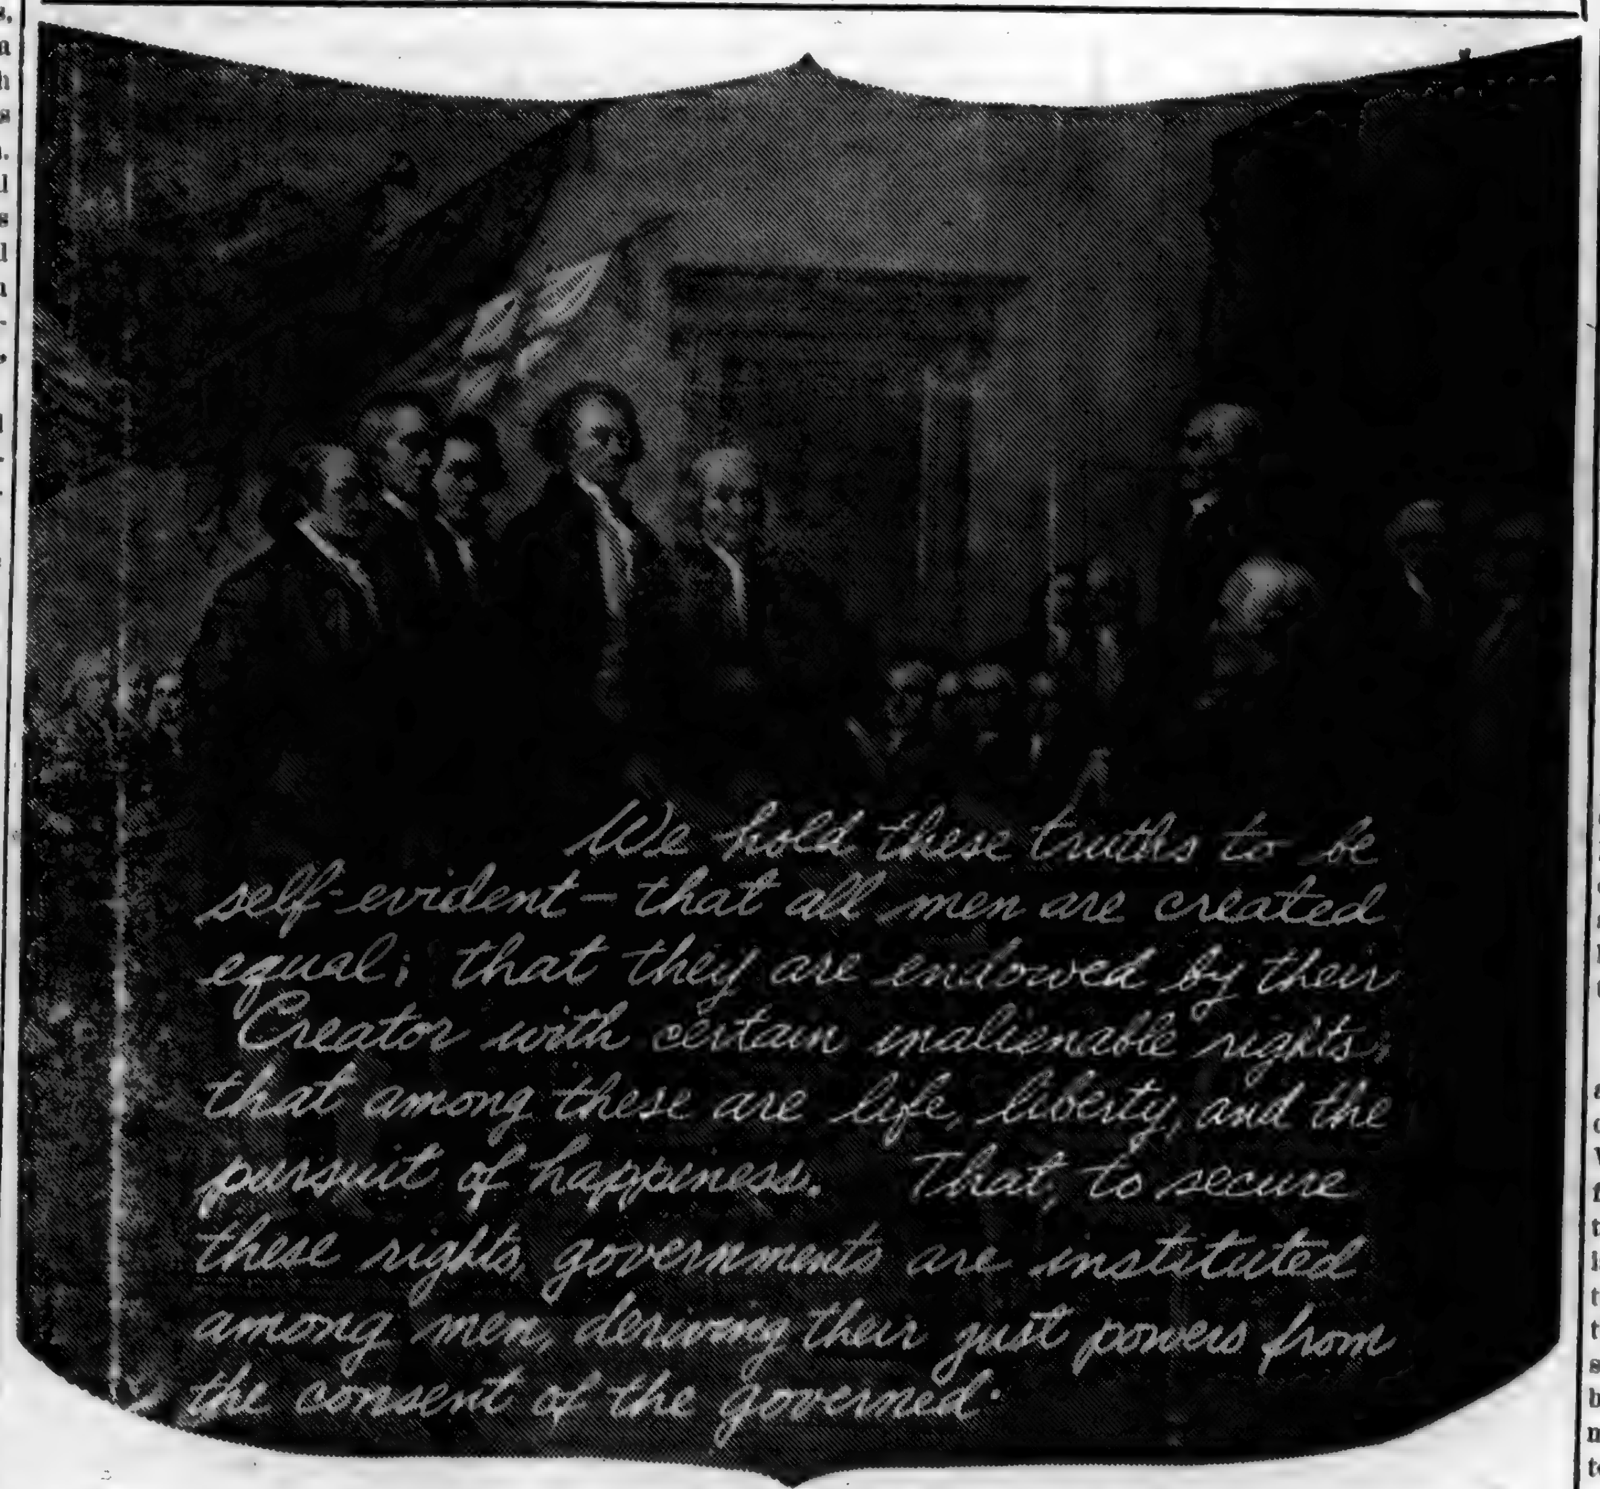
July 4, 1776—Declaration of Independence—July 4, 1941



We hold these truths to be self-evident—that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

When Thomas Jefferson and his colleagues wrote the Declaration of Independence, they set forth for all time the basic principles of true democracy. They are just as true today as they were when they were adopted on July 4, 1776.

Almost insurmountable problems faced the tiny republic when it decided to tear itself loose from the powerful British empire. The battles of Lexington and Concord had been fought, and the colonies were actually at war with England, but many persons hesitated to take the irrevocable step of demanding independence. To explain and justify the decision to establish a new, democratic nation, the Founding Fathers wrote the Declaration of Independence.

WILLIAM E. MOUDY DIES AT WATERLOO AT AGE 66 YEARS

William E. Moudy, Waterloo resident, passed away at 3:10 o'clock Friday morning at his home, age 66. Death followed a two years illness from paralysis.

Mr. Moudy was born in DeKalb County February 7, 1875, and had lived in Waterloo for the last year and a half. He moved to that town from Churubusco, where he had lived for the previous thirty years. He formerly taught school and was in the monument business in Churubusco.

Surviving are the widow, Alta; two sons, Lloyd Moudy, of Indianapolis, and Frank Moudy, of Waterloo; three brothers, Alfred, of Indianapolis, Walter, of LaOtto, and David, of Butler, and one sister, Mrs. William Hathaway, of Butler. Mr. Moudy's parents were the late William and Ellen Moudy, who lived six miles east of Auburn.

Funeral services were held at 2 P. M. Sunday at the Ulrey funeral home in Waterloo, with the Krider funeral home of Churubusco in charge. Rev. S. M. Hill, of Twelve Mile, Indiana, officiated, with interment in Woodlawn cemetery, Auburn.

Mr. Moudy was well known about St. Joe having married Miss Edna Koch, daughter of Reuben Koch, for his first wife.

JOE KOCH, AUBURN HUSBAND, AWARDED DIVORCE DECREE

On his complaint that his wife wouldn't remain in their home in Auburn and told him to get a divorce, Joe Koch, of 109 East 15th Street, Auburn, was awarded a decree by Judge W. P. Endicott, Saturday.

Before the couple married September 4, 1939, the defendant resided in Spencerville. The plaintiff says he prepared a comfortable home for her in Auburn, but that she refused to stay in it, spending most of her time at Spencerville. Finally she failed to return to Auburn for any time. The final separation took place last March 17th.

OATS DEMONSTRATION AT KELLEY FARM

ASKS MOTORISTS AID IN KEEPING RIGHT-OF-WAY CLEAN

Cooperation of motorists in keeping the right-of-way along the state highways free of old paper, tin cans and other debris was asked today by James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission.

If motorists would stop using the highway shoulder as a dumping ground, thousands of dollars now being spent to clean up this debris could be used for other highway purposes and the patrolmen who must do the cleaning now could give more attention to their regular duties.

Tons of rubbish are collected along the highways now as a part of the maintenance program which has helped Indiana to win national recognition for the way the state highway system is maintained. Frequently letters are received from tourists, praising the fine condition and the attractiveness of Indiana's highway system.

Only Sunday as ye editor and wife were enroute to South Bend, we noticed the clean roadside and remarked what a nice job of mowing had been done by the road force, and then soon we came upon a paper carton dumped just off the pavement and tin cans and paper strewn for a distance. This was an act delibertely committed by some individual, and people who throw paper from their cars should be more careful, for containers are provided along the roadside for all rubbish.

Remember streets and lawns must be kept clean, and you can help do this right here in St. Joe. If properly trained for home action, when one gets away he will act properly also.

MRS RICKEY PETERS

Mrs. Rickey Peters, 82, who resided just east of Jackson Center, died Saturday afternoon. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Auburn, with Rev. Arthur Betz, officiating. Interment was made in Evergreen Cemetery. She was one of DeKalb County's oldest continuous residents.

Surviving are two sons, Martin and Herman Peters, of Jackson Township; one daughter, Mrs. Emma Bishop, of Auburn; four sisters, Mrs. John Hutton, of Auburn, Mrs. Emma Miller of Butler Center, Mrs. Louise Burtch, of Garrett, and Mrs. John Mutzfeld of near Auburn and two brothers, John Steffen, of Garrett and Frank Steffen of Fort Wayne. There are six grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

FOURTH TRAGEDIES MIGHT TOP VALLEY FORGE CASUALTIES

Accidents over the Independence Day holidays this year may kill and maim more liberty-loving Americans than George Washington lost in a whole Winter at Valley Forge, according to the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention division of the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives.

This time last year, a mere one-day affair because the Fourth of July fell on Thursday, many persons were killed and thousands injured. This year, however, with the historic anniversary coming on Friday, the celebration will be a three-day affair for most Americans, with at least three times as many chances for tragic results unless Americans temper their patriotism with a modicum for common-sense precaution, say the safety specialists.

Julien H. Harvey, managing director of the National Conservation Bureau, points out that last year fireworks accidents alone injured 4,462 persons and killed 8; automobiles accounted for 63 dead and drownings for 35, while other sports, overexertion, sunstroke and heat all helped to swell the national total of dead and injured.

Sees Number of Dangers

"This year," says Mr. Harvey, "there are a number of things to make the dead and injured rolls much larger. We don't want to be kill-joys but when fun ends in death or injury it becomes tragedy. We say to an America that is enjoying improved economic conditions: 'Have a good time. Celebrate this great day to the limit—but let safety be the limit measure. Remember our people are keyed up by having more spending money. They are liable to be more reckless. So watch your own step and help the reckless to watch their's, too.' "

Watch Those Swimming Rules

Don't swim until at least two hours after eating, and don't swim alone! When diving, be sure that the water is deep enough.

Don't play monkeyshines when out in a boat or canoe!

Blowouts are a major cause of hot-weather automobile accidents; be sure your tires are sound and not over-inflated.

Try to avoid driving when traffic is heavy. Plan your trip so that you will have plenty of time to reach your destination and return safely. Don't take chances trying to make up lost time!

Remember that 25 per cent of all traffic fatalities involve somebody who has been drinking; stay sober if you are going to drive!

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

Capitol Hill faces the possibility of having to resort to night sessions, with no prospect of running a double shift, and no union to back a demand for overtime. Defense measures of course are mainly responsible, the ten billion dollar Army bill hanging in the balance. Agriculture, Federal Security, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the W. P. A., will have to receive attention. The proposal to free all men over 28 from draft is encountering obstacles. These are the high points. Coupled with others they make it improbable that the friendly hand of the Congressman will be extended above the home soil at an early date.

Hitler's sudden declaration of war on Stalin caused a widespread crossing of wires. In a carefully prepared editorial, a Communistic newspaper cried out against the United States becoming a war monger, and then filled the front page with last minute news of the German advance to the north, demanding that this country put forth vigorous efforts to stop it. It must be confessed that everyone had to think fast to avoid blowing hot and cold at the same time. The best way out of the difficulty is to say simply that bad as the Russians may be, they are less of an existing menace than the "Dutch."

Regarding the Nazi-Soviet trouble, the President spoke cautiously, with a slight tendency to pass from the abstract to the concrete. Reference was made to all possible aid, and then to a general support, followed by the statement that the Neutrality Act will not be put into operation against Russia. The third White House announcement makes it possible for American ships to effect delivery of munitions to Russia, as freely as to England.

It is likely that Petrograd will have to be content for some time with kindly thoughts expressed on paper. Home defense has a primary claim, and there are unfilled English orders. Moreover, Congress is entitled to pass on an extension of the Neutrality Act. Although it is not probable that Congress will override the President's desire for impartial help for the enemies of Adolph, the aforesaid legislative body moves slowly now and then. It will be well for Russia to say "Much obliged," and keep on digging in as rapidly as possible.

A good many years ago, a Frenchman named Guizot wrote a book called The History of Civilization in Europe. Despite a ponderous title, it is an interesting and easily read volume. Mr. Guizot emphasized the theory that the state was made for man, and not man for the state. If Mr. Hitler has the publication, no doubt he thinks that its leaves are fit only for shaving paper, assuming that he uses an old-fashioned razor. In the long run, there is not much to fear from totalitarianism. Putting the cart before the horse never has been an entirely satisfactory method of procedure. A lot of hard fighting may be ahead, but when it is done, the individual will have come again into his own.

In the tenseness of the present situation, time is well spent in searching for anything that will give rise to a smile. The army is supposede to be an organization of blood and iron, yet it stands in need of fifty thousand mice —to be used for laboratory purposes in connection with typhoid experiments: from which it appears that there is room in the military service for both mice and men. Foreigners also have something to offer in the way of humor, as is evident from the alleged Nazi suggestion that Germany and England join forces to put down Soviet Russia. Japan too must have her little joke. She is said to have complimented Mussolini on his military prowess.

Little interest attaches to the bare statement that Andrew J. Houston died in Baltimore a few days ago. It is more noteworthy that he was 87 years old and had been appointed recently to the United States Senate. To that may be added the remark that he was the son of General Sam Houston, of Texs. The real excuse for this obituary paragraph is to call attention to the fact that not so long ago Texas was fighting for her liberty as a republic, and that the United States is a mere lad in the household of nations.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Representative Gillie's bill to prohibit the publication of anonymous periodicals of a lewd or subversive character is gaining new converts every week, and now has the active endorsement of large numbers of civic, religious and patriotic groups in every section of the country.

The need for legislation similar to the Gillie Bill has been pointed out effectively by Edward A. Hayes, past national commander of the American Legion who, in a recent speech at Springfield, Illinois, declared:

"More magazines containing photographic literature are published in the United States than in any other country on the face of the earth. More than 100 of our magazines are banned as indecent in Canada. Communism seeks to destroy all three of the basic pillars of civilization, our Constitutional government, the church and the home."

Eggs, 41 cents; Milk, 15 cents per quart; Round Steak, 27 cents per pound; chuch steak, 24 cents per pound; bacon, 33 cents per pound; sugar, 10 pounds for 59 cents; flour, $1.10 per sack; lard, two pounds for 25 cents.

Food prices in Washington have risen about 25 per cent since the first of the year. It is hoped that this increase will reflect itself substantially in the prices received by Indiana farmers.

FARM FURLOUGHS: Army officials are under pressure from certain farm groups to grant furloughs to trainees this Summer. Farmers, complaining of a lack of adequate help, want this done so the boys can help harvest the crops. No such action will be taken, but it is likely that draft regulations will be liberalized to prevent the drafting of trained farm workers. The latter course has been advocated by Representative Gillie.

SLIP SOMEWHERE: Washington officials were both surprised and somewhat angered over the recent British suggestion that Americans should start enjoying meatless, milkless and cheeseless days. It showed a dismal lack of knowledge concerning U. S. farm conditions on the part of the British. Not only have British requests for American farm products been less than were anticipated, but surpluses of many products are still keeping farm prices down.

RAGS FOR RUSSIA: Unconfirmed rumors in Washington have it that two new organizations are about to be formed for the purpose of extending aid to the gallant Communists, who are now engaged in crusading for Mr. Roosevelt's "four freedoms." They reportedly will be named "Rags for Russia" and "Packages for Petragrad." Wanna join?

WAR-TIME BASIS: Washington motorists were placed on a strict gasoline ration this week, with the launching of a Government-sponsored campaign to reduce gas consumption by at least 20 per cent. Slogan for the drive is "four gallons for five." Started on a voluntary basis, it will be made compulsory if immediate results are not shown.

DEFENSE SLOGAN: Speaking of slogans, the War Department has adopted "Keep 'Em Flying!" as the slogan of the defense program and is conducting a vigorous campaign to promote its general use. The idea was explained by the Adjutant General in a letter to Conressmen this week as follows:

"The idea, of course, is to get people everywhere to use the phrase 'Keep 'Em Flying!' as an expression of felicity, high morale, or a toast, to the point where it will replace such everyday expressions as 'so long, 'I'll be seeing you,' 'Down the hatch,' 'Gool luck' and similar expressions. In short, 'Keep 'Em Flying!' is to be our expression comparable to 'Thumbs Up!" That's all, folks. "Keep 'Em Flying!"

Davis, head of Purdue entomology department says: "We may anticipate early abundance of mosquitoes in many parts of the state," Davis declared. Elimination of favorable breeding places, such as pools of water which may be drained, rain barrels, tin cans, etc., is the first step towards effective mosquito control, Davis pointed out.

Wider, Stronger Bridges Essential For A Modern Highway System

Building a Modern Highway Bridge

Bridges are an essential part of the modern state highway system which Indiana is developing to meet increasing traffic and the needs of national defense.

Approximately fifty bridge construction projects are in operation at the present time and bids will be taken on an additional twelve structures on July 15, a part of the program to modernize Indiana's state highway system. While many of these structures are a part of road improvement projects, a number of them are for the replacement of bridges which have narrow roadways or limited load-carrying capacities.

Since the first of the present year the State Highway Commission has awarded bridge construction contracts having a total cost of nearly two million dollars and plans are now in progress for structures which will be built as a part of next year's program.

While the widening of bridges and the replacement of weak structures have been a continuous part of the highway program in Indiana for the past several years, fund limitations have made it possible to advance this phase of highway modernization as rapidly as the Commission desired. Narrow bridges are a factor in many accidents, contributing to the toll of motorists killed and injured on the highways. Weak bridges, unable to carry the heavy loads being moved over the highways today also are a handicap and frequently necessitate the traveling of additional miles.

With the steady increase in both passenger and commercial traffic on the state highway sytsem with a particular increase in the number of heavy hauling units, adequate bridges are a necessity and must be provided. This is especially true on the state highways which have been designated by military authorities as a part of the system of roads of strategic importance in the national defense program.

It is estimated by state highway engineers that there are approximately eighteen hundred bridges on the present state system which should be replaced with structures having wider roadways and greater load-carrying capacities. These bridges constitute one of the major problems faced by the Commission in modernizing the state highway system.

SERVICE MEN GREAT DRINKERS OF COFFEE

A inquiring reporter once made a check at the Commerce, War and Navy Departments and discovered that three ers and marines—as by civilians.

His inquiry also showed that bluejackets and marines who serve at sea consume an verage of 36 pounds of coffee a year, or about two pounds more than that consumed by soldiers.

Coffee, or "Java" as it is usually called in the Navy and Marine Corps, has always been a popular beverage and has been gaining in popularity ever since the last grog ration disappeared from aboard ship in 1862.

All alcoholic beverages were banished from wardrooms of the Navy before the first World War, and even then coffee was the preferred drink of a large part of the naval personnel. It is always available and is served to men before and after "watches."

Marine Corps orders direct that, under certain travel conditions, a marine will be allowed one pint of coffee per meal. When officers board ship get together to discuss news from home and incidents of ship life the by-word is: "Let's have a cup of coffee."

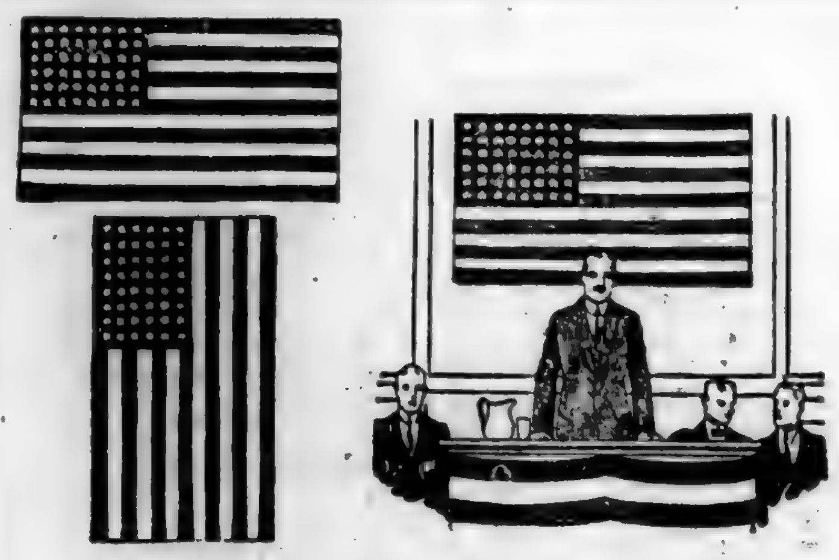
Display of U. S. Flag Has Etiquette 'Code'

THE CORRECT USE OF THE FLAG



Do not let the flag touch floor or ground.
Do not place any object or emblem above the flag.
Do not use the flag as drapery. Use bunting.
Do not use the flag as part of a costume or uniform.
Do not use the flag in any form of advertising.

Above are six tips for flag etiquette as outlined by Mrs. Russell B. Williams, Chicago, chairman of the flag committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The D. A. R. is in the midst of nationwide campaign to popularize flag etiquette.

On important national holidays patriotic citizens throughout the country like to display the American flag as outward evidence of their loyalty toward their nation.

On days like these, being familiar with proper flag etiquette is valuable and important. For rather definite and well-defined courtesies toward the national banner have been developed in military and civilian practice of flag display.

Most people realize in a general way that good care should be given the flag and its use as a common piece of cloth should be avoided. But sometimes lacking is the knowledge of more specific rules regarding its display.

¶ When flown at half-staff, the flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. Before lowering the flag, it should be raised again to the peak. On Memorial day, May 30, the flag should be displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset.

¶ The flag must not be used as a table cloth. Nothing but the Bible should rest upon the flag.

¶ Never display the American flag with the union down except as a signal of distress.

¶ The flag should never be used to decorate platforms or stands, or draped in any fashion for decorating purposes.

¶ When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the stars are at the head in the upper right-hand corner (over the heart) looking from the foot. The flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground.

¶ No other flag should be hoisted above the American flag except a church pennant, which can be flown from the masthead above the Stars and Stripes when religious services are in progress in a military chapel or aboard a United States navy ship.

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1941 NUMBER 28

FRANK CARLETON NELSON DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Funeral services for Frank Carleton Nelson, 62, one of Auburn's outstanding personalities, were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the late residence, 354 West Fifth Street. Rev. Claude Garrison of the Methodist Church was assisted by Rev. Hugh Craven of the Presbyterian Church at the services. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery.

Mr. Nelson died at 1:10 P. M. Sunday at his home after being stricken five hours earlier with coronary occlusion. He had gone to the living room of his home after having breakfast with his wife, Marie, and shortly afterwards he called to her, saying that he was desperately ill. He failed to respond to treatment and sank rapidly until his death. Mr. Nelson suffered a light attack May 12 and a more serious one five days later. He recovered partially, but had been unable to engage actively in work since the second attack. He was a traveling salesman for a number of years.

Mr. Nelson, known as the Hoosier poet, for many years read his works over the radio stations at Fort Wayne, Chicago and other cities. He had published two volumes of his popular Indiana verse. His first volume is entitled "Along Life's Road," and the second one, "The Evening Hour." He often was called upon to compose dedicatory verse. Mr. Nelson was also popular as an entertainer, appearing before many clubs, associations and social groups, reciting his original compositions.

Mr. Nelson was born December 12, 1878, in Jackson Township, three miles west of St. Joe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Nelson. He lived his entire life in DeKalb County, most of it in Auburn. After attending Bear Creek district school, he was graduated from Auburn high school and was a teacher for several years before becoming a salesman.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Marie Nelson; one daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Arthur George and Sally Lou George of 900 Midway, Auburn, and two brothers, Ray Nelson of New York City, and Stanley Nelson of Auburn. A niece, Mrs. Corman Peltier arrived Monday from Kansas City, Kansas for the rites.

FARMERS PROTEST WHEAT MARKETING QUOTA VIGOROUSLY

More than 250 farmers from DeKalb, Steuben and Allen counties and Ohio raised their voices in protest against penalties for over-production of wheat under the AAA allotment system Saturday night in a mass meeting at the court house in Auburn. The meeting culminated in the drawing up of a resolution to be presented Tuesday night to the Indiana Committee of National Marketing Quota Protest Association, and the naming of officers and township chairmen. The group from this county adopted the name, DeKalb County Committee of National Marketing Quota Protest Association.

Erneest E. Turner, of Grant Township, was elected president; Carl D. Capenter, of Concord Township, vice president, and Ward Jackman, of Auburn, secretary-treasurer. Directors are Eston McCague, Butler, Frank McCullough, of Corunna, and Guy Myers, of Ashley Road.

The resolution that was adopted read as follows:

"Be it resolved by the farmers of DeKalb County that we vigorously condemn the program of the United States government in levying 49 cents penalty per bushel on surplus wheat.

"That we vigorously protest the operation of the law in requiring surplus wheat to be stored under seal and that farmers be required to give bond for the safe keeping thereof.

"That we recommend to the congress of the United States the abolishment of the AAA program.

"That it is the concensus of the farmers present at this meeting that the surpluses the United States government is attempting to regulate are due entirely to the admission of foreign food products into this country, and that we vigorously condemn such, and urge the repeal of any and all laws permitting the admission of food products into the United States that compete with the production of farmers of the United States."

The resolution will be presented to every farmer in DeKalb County, according to Mr. Jackman, in an effort to obtain as many signatures as possible. Then, he said, it will be presented to the state committee. About 200 DeKalb County farmers were present at the Saturday night session to sign. The following township chairmen were appointed by the president to supervise the canvass of county farmers:

Pat Hook, Spencer Townhip; Jake Miller, Newville; Carl Carpenter, Concord; Lawrence Wagoner, Jackson; Lawrence Warstler, Wilmington; Lawrence Diehl, Stafford; Charles Newcomer and Dode Houlton, Franklin; Will Kreager, Troy; D. S. Opdycke, Smithfield; Elmer Case, Fairfield; Ervin Stroh, Richland; Ports Holbrook, Butler; Cliff Metcalf, Union, and Clark Ayers, Grant. No chairman has been named for Keyser Township.

The protesters declared that the penalty for over-production set at 15 cents a bushel last year by the AAA now has been increased to 49 cents after the crop has been produced and is ready for harvest. They maintain that the increase was made "in the middle of the game" and that it will mean ruin for many farmers.

The farmers especially emphasized the admission of foreign food products into this country, declaring that it is unfair for the government to allow that and then to penalize American farmers for over-production.

President Turner, vice president Carpenter, and Floyd Weikle, of Concord Township, presented the resolution to the state committee at Indianapolis Tuesday night.

LIBERALIZING JOB INSURANCE BENEFITS

Amendments to the Indiana Employment Security Act, liberalizing job insurance benefits, went into effect July 1, Lester Kassing, manager of the Fort Wayne Employment Security Division office, said.

The amendments reduce the waiting period from two weeks to one week, raise the maximum weekly benefit from $15 to $16, and increase the maximum total benefit amount which an applicant can draw in one period of unemployment from $225 to $256.

After filing a claim, a worker must serve a waiting period, that is, he must have a week of unemployment during which he fulfills all the requirements for receiving benefits but for which he cannot claim benefits. Action of the 1941 General Assembly halved this waiting time on all claims filed after June 30. Consequently, the first benefit check will be for the second week of unemployment instead of the third.

Another liberalizing amendment increases the maximum weekly benefit amount under the job insurance law from $15 to $16 a week. The weekly benefit still is based on earnings in past employment. This amendment also becomes effective with claims filed after June 30. The maximum weekly benefit on claims filed before that date, however, will remain at $15.

The third amendment increases the maximum total amount of benefits from $225 to $256. This amendment also applies only to claims filed after June 30.

Free booklets which explain the benefit provisions of the Employment Security Act are available at all local employment offices, and for this district please call at Auburn, court house, 9:00 A. M. Monday.

The crowd is believed to have surpassed the attendance of 1940, which was approximately 10,000, and which was the largest to date. Our Weekly Amateur Contribution, Send in Your Lines

Gone, But Not Forgotten

How often, as we're sitting in the shadows, all alone,
We muse upon the memories of the friends that we have known:
And it brings back recollections to our sadly aching heart
Of those comrades of the past from whom we fain must part.
The shadows seem to gather in a density opaque,
As our hearts are filled with sorrow, 'till we feel they'll surely break;
And we rue the painful climax of those long departed years
Which bow us down in sadness, and drench our eyes with tears!

'Tis thus our thoughts remind us of the Famous Hursh's Store,
And the many happy moments in those days that are no more;
The long and weary miles we've trod, in sunshine, rain or sleet,
To exchange our cash or products for a few stray bits to eat;
To trade our eggs and butter, or perhaps a sack of spuds,—
For some groceries or baked goods, overalls, or other duds!
To meet old friends and gossip! Oh, the good old days of yore!
We never knew the blessings of that famous country store!

But alas! Our hearts are broken! For the famous Hursh's Store
Is slowly getting smaller, and will soon be known no more!
No more a glorious landmark of the early Frontier Day,
For some wicked men are wrecking it, and taking it away!
And soon there will be nothing but an open level space
To bring back tender memories of this famous gath'ring place!
And the Sacred Recollections of those glamorous days of old
Will be small consolation for the tales this Store has told!

We'll drape the Town in mourning, now, the Flags we'll put half mast
In honor of this relic of the great hilarious past;
Each sagging, rotting rafter in this old and musty shed
Has earned a place in history as a symbol of the dead!
We can hear again, in fancy, the wail of Village cats
Intermingled with the bedlam of a thousand squealing rats!
And myriads of crickets make this shack seem more forlorn,
A funeral dirge to this hulk so sadly worn!

Farewell to Thee, Old Comrade of the days of long ago,
We hate to see you leave us, for we all have loved you so!
As we watch them bare your skeleton of timbers, old and rotten,
We recall the Sacred Memories, which ne'er will be forgotten.
We'll live those happy days again; and each night, in our prayer,
We'll invoke a Saintly Blessing on the space now sleek and bare;
And, as token of the Memories of those glorious days of yore,
We'll all bow down in reverence to Hursh's Trading Store.

GOODBYE JUNE!

June made her exit last week and for a couple weeks she gave folks some real good old Summer time, days and nights too. Mercury went to 96 it is claimed and the hottest day for the season—Friday. The other days were plenty hot, and Old Sol beat down with a vengeance most of the time. Rains over the week-end seemed to hit all around us and some places got more than was needed. But there was a shower Monday night and more rain is promised us. It was so dry that crops were beginning to suffer for want of rain. Tuesday July was ushered in and another hot month—no doubt—to keep us sweating. But we'll sizzle through it all and when Fall arrives will be ready to enjoy the cooling breezes of a September morn. In the meantime keep your chin up and keep smiling. When Old Man Winter gets here we'll forget these hot, sweltering days. A dog has the advantage over us poor mortals these hot days, as a dog only need to wear a collar. And that's that.—Sherwood Chronicle.

Conservation clubs operating 534 hatchery ponds for the propagation of game fish are expecting to produce a record number of bass, bluegills and other game fish for lake and stream stocking this year. More rearing ponds are being operated this year by the clubs than ever before and it is anticipated that records established in 1939 and 1940, when over eleven million game fish were produced in club ponds, will be broken this year. The rearing ponds are operated under contract with the Division of Fish and Game as a part of the cooperative plan for improving fishing in Indiana lakes and streams.

THE OLD ORDER

Saw an item the other day where a man of 78 passed away and was buried in the Potter's Field of a mid-western town. There was nothing surprising about this sort of notice perhaps since many folks die in poverty and have no family to care for their last resting place. But the human interest story back of this death notice was the fact that the man who was buried in a pauper's grave was the son of a millionaire, spent a hilarious youth and gained for himself a national reputation by lighting cigars with $100 bills. The story with a back-ground surely, feels a scenario writer, the moralist points out the lesson and the needy man sighs for the opportunity to use just one of those $100 bills, that went up in smoke. So ends another character of the past, the hey-day of gold bath-tubs and matchless diamond studs.

THE OLD CRY

And so here we are at it again, making the annual protest against that pesky ragweed. It isn't easy to get everyone to co-operate and lick this menace to hay fever sufferers, that is unless you happen to be a sufferer yourself. There are many property owners who try to keep their plots free of the weed but there are a good many other folks who won't bother and ignore the reasoning of protecting those who suffer yearly from hay fever. Just because some cities have ordinances and fines against permitting the growth, thriving and multiplying of it, doesn't put a halt to the spread of the weed. Since the growth has spread farther North each year it has made one time "sneeze proof" spots now just another place to cause misery to those allergic. Society can help by working to exterminate ragweed in its own yard in an effort to put a halt to hay fever which is on the increase each year.

OTHER NEWS

As an avid reader of the nation's newspapers you may feel that nothing else is going on in the world but war and more war. There seems to be no room for any other sort of news, the columns crowded with activities of belligerent countries, and of our own defense plans. There appears to be little else of any consequence, but don't fool yourself, there are things occurring all the time that are of vital interest to us and are taking place right here in our community. Babies are being born, young people are getting married, death still makes a call, vistiors come, our own folks go. We try to give you all of this personal sort of news as well as home politics and local business conditions. We still plug for local entertainments and civic meetings. There aren't any readers but who are anxious to get this type of news, interesting to our subscribers in town and those on the mailing list.

BACK THE U. S. O.

Most of our News readers are aware of the United Service Organization campaign which is working in the interest of providing recreational services for our armed forces and also for defense workers. Where there are military training centers there arises the need of providing decent entertainment for the young men in these centers. There has always been the problem of supplying wholesome recreation to the soldier at such times as this. The past history of army life has shown the American people that there is need for morale in order that the spirit of the brain of the soldier will wisely co-operate. It is up to us as citizens to give relaxation and supply morale to the soldier, it is our obligation to him. One of the plans of the U. S. O. is to find suitable spots that would make satisfactory camping grounds, offering swimming, tennis, golf and fishing. Such recreational centers would be available for soldiers who care to take advantage of this social activity and for a small sum of money could pay for food and lodging during the time they had to be off duty. The U. S. O. is sponsored and furthered by people who appreciate the value of morale to armament and to bodily fitness. Back them up.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

History can make pretty dry reading, but since the future will have to toil through the huge store of historical material that is being piled up at the present time, perhaps we should be willing to take a hurried backward look at the Germans. Like it or not, they are of prime although unsavory importance. In a good many respects, they have not changed greatly in fifteen hundred years.

Julius Caesar put out what may be called the first travelog on Germany, about the year 50. He found the Germans rough customers. It may be remarked that it would have been poor policy for him to belittle them as fighters, because his letters or commentaries were being read back home in Rome, and he wished to further the impression that, as to his opponents, the larger they were, the harder they fell. The severe weather of Northern Gemany had toughened them. A snowfall of a foot was not a calamity to an ancient German army. It was just a matter of wading barelegged through snow up to the knees, instead of ankle deep. He recorded that they bathed in the coldest rivers. No doubt they went into chilly streams, and divided their time between military duties and pushing ice cakes out of the way; but the statement about bathing probably should be set aside as a Roman misconception regarding the relations that should exist between water and the human body.

Taking it all in all, Caesar did not exaggerate greatly, one may well believe. The people with whom he had to deal were a sturdy and two-fisted lot. They were fierce, joyful in battle, strong on plunder, and liked to wander about, looking for trouble, and ready to maufacture it when the supply ran short.

In a modern army, like that of the United States, a young man of Polish extraction, hailing from Pennsylvania, is likely to find himself shoulder to shoulder with a doughboy from the mountains of Tennessee. Time and energy will be wasted in building up a community of interest and reaching a mutual point of view. An ancient German "nation" might consist of fifty villages, each subdivided into groups called "hundreds." Practically speaking, everybody in the army knew everybody else therein. This, also, promoted good soldiership.

It was to the South, about the Mediterranean Sea, that the "best people" dwelt. They had been accustomed to easy living for a long time, and were beginning to get soft and out of training. Add to that fact the circumstance that the pickings were good in the region, and it is easy to see why the Germans began to work toward the South.

The earlier of the invaders made a mistake. If it had not been corrected later, there would be no Nazi menace and no blitzkrieg today. When they left the Northland, they cut loose from from old associations, and went about the serious business of making a new home in a foreign land, as a severed group. Their position was something like that of the Americans who crossed the plains in the forties. Aside from sentiment, the ties between the old home in Massachusetts and the new one in California ceased to be very strong. The vigor of the American pioneers was enhanced by the change, since life was harder in the West than in the East. The earlier German outwanderers settled down to a relaxed way of living. They were absorbed, and ceased to be Germans.

Somewhere about 500 A. D., the German Franks began to reach out. They did not break connection with the old land, but simply employed it as a base, from which they operated westward, to the coast of what is now France. Wherever they went, they maintained contact with those whom they had left behind. The Franks did not permit themselves to be absorbed. They laid the foundation for the theory that wherever Germans go, that place is a part of Germany.

Hitler is following a course that has nothing of novelty in it. Leafing over the pages of history, he has reached the conclusion that the system

BOYS RESCUED AFTER BOAT CAPSIZED AT HAMILTON LAKE

Terry Traxler and his two young sons, Wayne and Tommy, of Newville, were fishing Thursday afternoon at the lake. Not far away from their boat was another one bearing two 13-year-old youngsters from Hicksville, O. Suddenly, swells from a speed boat capsized the boys' craft as they were attempting to change seats, throwing both of them into the water. Neither boy could swim and they were coming up for the third time when Mr. Traxler rescued one and his oldest son, Wayne, saved the other one, while Tommy the youngest son, handled the oars and guided the boat.

The soaked and badly shaken lads were warmed and dried and returned to one of the boy's parents on the other side of the lake. What did the father do? He berated the boys for losing a $4 reel and rod!

Mr. and Mrs. Traxler are staying at the Murphy cottage while at the lake.

ADULTERATED DEMOCRACY

When this war is over there seems to be a common assumption among many so-called "thinking" people, that the remaining democracies will have to live in the future under a taint of Socialism. In other words, the idea is prevalent that we cannot survive the ordeal without absorbing some of the poison that has given civilization such a bellyache. Here in our own country, many public officials and thousands of private citizens cry in alarm against "appeasement." They say you cannot appease the monster that is sweeping Europe. They say, and rightly so, that there can be no compromise with a philosophy whose ultimate aim is enslavement of the common man. But, strangely, these self-same people accept calmly the idea of adulterated democracy. They propose, after the war, mind you, to attempt a compromise with the very thing that they now claim cannot be compromised with, cannot be appeased—authoritarian government. A Hitler is simply the result when authoritarian government reaches maturity.

Right now in this country we are condoning a compromise with the forces that destroy freedom for the individual. We are allowing our basic industries, the key to the whole free enterprise sytsem, to be edged ever closer to government domination, apparently in the belief that it cannot be helped in view of the world trend.

What feeble rationalizing! What kind of appeasement is this! We are either going to have freedom and representative government in this country now—and after the war—or we are not. If we are to try to appease the forces of Socialism by allowing government to gradually absorb the utilities, the banks, the railroads, mining and oil, under the guise of creating a better post war society, we are heading for trouble. We will find that our basic industries have become mere patronage machines. All remaining enterprises will be forced to its knees in an effort to "get along" in a corrupt bureaucracy. Labor will find itself caught in a titanic struggle between two systems—the free enterprise system versus an authoritarian Socialistic system of the same brand that has engulfed Europe.

We have seen that in Europe power graspers cannot be appeased. We have not yet found it out at home.

Ants are apt to gather during this season and there are numerous ways of driving them away. Red ants will go away if you keep a bag of sulphur in the drawer or cupboard where they are. Chas. Koch, of west of Butler Center, sent The News a twig from a wild plum tree that he has growing in his yard, that is simply loaded. We placed an order weeks ago, and this limb is evidence that he will be able to fill same when the time comes. Dr. C. R. Price visited the Koch home and he brought the sample home.

The land was ordered re-exposed for sale and the administrator was directed to refund the purchase money to Mr. Moughler.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Next to voting in elections, writing letters to your Congressman is the highest privilege that you as a citizen have in fulfilling your duty in the Democratic process. Every citizen has this privilege and can exercise it as often as he pleases.

Those of you who sit back and say to yourselves that it is useless to tell your Congressman how you feel on pending legislation are failing in your duty and missing the right to grumble when things don't go as you wish.

For Congressmen are profoundly influenced by their mail. More often than not it determines how they will vote on vital legislation. And it has never been more important for you to express your views to Congress, for it is only through a genuine voicing of opinion that a true democracy can be maintained.

THE PRESENT Congress, with its 74 new Representatives and 14 new Senators, is facing, under an unprecedented third term, problems that may make or break our democracy. It is their sworn duty to be truly representative, and they want to know what you think about war, billions for defense and for aid to Britain, taxes, strikes, regulation of business, etc.

You must not hesitate to write for fear of imposing on your Congressman. You will not be doing so, and if you fail to write he may think that you are not interested.

Citizens of the Fourth District write an average of 100 letters a day to Congressman George W. Gillie. The number, of course, varies. During the heat of debate over a controversial issue, it has reached as high as 2,000. During legislative lulls, and between sessions, it sometimes is as low as half a dozen.

Congressman Gillie considers it his duty to reply to every piece of mail from his District. So important does he consider this duty that he attempts to reply to all letters within 24 hours. An average of half of each day is devoted to reading them and dictating replies. Frequently he works late at night. When the House is not in session, he gives the whole day to correspondence. When sessions are long, he works on Sunday.

"It is through my daily mail that I keep informed on what my people are thinking and what they want me to do. As the voice of my people in national affairs, I must be familiar at all times with sentiment back home.

"With Congress in session almost continuously, the only means I have of doing this is through my mail and through infrequent visits to the Fourth District.

"During my brief service in Washington, I have made it a cardinal rule to reply promptly to every letter that comes to my office.

"If it is scrawled in pencil on ruled paper, I give it particular attention. It may be the only letter that person will write to me. And he may have had to scrape up the three cents for postage."

FORMER Vice President Garner, veteran of 38 years in Congress, had this to say about his mail:

"Letters are a Congressman's bread and butter. If they fall off, he is like a movie star without his fan mail. He thinks he is losing his popularity. Throughout my long service, I have made it a point to reply to every letter and to ask the writers for information and what they believe and think about national affairs.

"Mrs. Garner has been my secretary all these years. I got so I could tell her what I wanted to say and she could write my letters better than I could dictate them. She even knew where to put in the cuss words."

IT IS after all the straightforward letter carrying the appeal of earnestness that commands the interest and respect of Members of Congress. A Congressman never tires of hearing from constituents who have something to contribute to the welfare of the Nation. He knows they write straight from the heart, that he is their voice in Washington and their friend at court.

TO COLLECT ALUMINUMWARE IN INDIANA JULY 21-29

The State Defense Council today announced completion of preliminary plans for the inauguration of a campaign unique in American life, of collecting aluminum pots and pans for the defense of democracy.

A knock will sound on every family's door in Indiana and the housewife will be asked to donate aluminumware. Has she any cooking utensils of that metal which she can conveniently spare, without being required to replace with new utensils? Has she an old vacuum cleaner, a discarded serving tray or salt shaker, or, perhaps father has an old automobile engine, or brother has an old bicycle with aluminum parts. Everything containing or made of aluminum that can be spared will go into the heap. If there is no knock at the door, then it is hoped everyone will take their distribution of unneeded aluminum to the local collection center.

The collection will take place July 21 to 29, inclusive, and will be in charge of the Mayors, Presidents of Town Boards and County Agricultural Agents, in accordance with the proclamation made by Governor Henry F. Schricker.

Under the direction of these agencies, committees now are being formed throughout the State to set up local depositories for the metal and to plan the canvass.

Clarence A. Jackson, State Civilian Defense Director, explains that the campaign in Indiana is being planned as part of the National Defense Aluminum Collection, headed by William S. Knudsen, Director General of the OPM, and F. H. LaGuardia, Director of the Office of Civilian Defense, who have issued a joint statement outlining the campaign.

The joint statement declared that the Nation is appealing to all its citizens for their active assistance "for the first time since President Roosevelt's declaration of a full national emergency, May 27, 1941. It adds:

"The Nation needs aluminum for planes and for vital items in its defense program more rapidly than existing facilities can produce it. Additional facilities are being constructed as quickly as possible. In the meantime the people of the Nation can help by donating all used aluminumware that can be spared from their households without being replaced.

"No individual or group or corporation will make any profit out of this transaction. The entire proceeds of the sale will be used for civilian defense.

"All aluminum contributed will be used exclusively for national defense.

"In these times of national emergency conservation of all vital national resources needed for defense purposes is essential. We must make available to our Government, all material the defense program requires.

"There may be later appeals for help in other forms after this one, but a whole-hearted popular response by the American people to this first general appeal from their Government cannot fail to impress the enemies of democracy."

Efforts of the various agencies in Indiana to make the campaign successful are being coordinated by Frank G. Thompson, newly appointed to the staff of the State Defense Council. Mr. Thompson, who was former State Auditor is a Bluffton, (Ind.,) newspaper publisher.

National leaders hope to obtain a total of 20,000,000 pounds of scrap aluminum in the nation-wide campaign, and believe that two main classes of aluminum will be turned in by housewives.

First will be wrought aluminum, made from sheet metal, and, secondly, cast aluminumware, consisting mostly of an alloy containing 5 per cent silicon. When the donated aluminum reaches the smelters the two types will be separated.

After the metal is melted down, it will be analysed for quality. Then the Army and Navy will decide what proportions of the ingots can be used for specific items. OPM aluminum experts say that in their opinion the scrap can be used for: Aircraft construction, shell fuse parts, bomb fuse parts, battleship parts, tank parts, military equipment parts and for equipment carried by the soldiers.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, had dinner recently with forty Members of Congress at which the Ambassador discussed the British war effort and answered questions from those at the meeting.

Queried about the British attitude toward American aid to Russia he said he preferred to see the aid continue to flow to Britain, direct, but that the British would supply at least "advisory aid" to Russia.

Lord Halifax described Britain's attitude toward Russia in the following words:

"The English position is similar to that of a man who had fallen into a deep, dark pit and was unable to get out. In such a situation, a shaggy, hairy arm of a vicious gorilla appeared in the pit. The man would no doubt grab that arm in order to try to lift himself out of the pit."

WHAT THEN? Many of the Congressmen present regretted the illustration was not carried further, wondered what the man would do after getting out of the pit when confronted with the wild, vicious gorilla in the open? Informal discussion after Halifax had departed "guessed" the man in such a case would then be compelled to turn to the gorilla and kill it to save himself.

Predictions differed as to whether that issue could be decided without another war and whether American aid might then again be called for to defeat the menace that defeated the menace to "democracy" in Europe.

CANNED CORRESPONDENCE. The Dupont Canning Company, of Dupont, Indiana, created a minor sensation on Capitol Hill the other day. Every Member of Congress received, through the mail, a Number 10 tin can with instructions to "open with a can opener." Upon opening the can, it was found to contain a letter from the Dupont Company stating it was being forced out of business because the War Department had brought up all the farm land surrounding the cannery which supplied tomatoes in the canning of which the Company specialized.

The factory site itself was not purchased by the Government so it now stands inactive, but its entire source of supply is to be occupied by the new Jefferson Proving Ground. The Company is seeking legislation to reimburse it for the losses sustained by being put out of business.

All of which add sup to just one more reason why Government planners might better locate defense projects on idle acres rather than complicating economic problems and housing conditions in areas where absorption of such projects is difficult or damaging.

COMMUNISTS OUTLAWED: The Communist Party has been outlawed from the Congress of the United States. Before any Congressman or member of his staff can draw another pay check they must swear, under oath, that they "do not advocate the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence." It's a law, passed by Congress itself, which affects not only Congressmen but all employees of the Federal Government.

GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH WILL HEAD THIS WAY

With Mr. and Mrs. Gargantua the Great, the world's most publicized gorilla couple, as its super-feature, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus will exhibit in Fort Wayne on Thursday, July 31, bringing to that city 1,600 people, 50 elephants, 1,000 menagerie animals and hundreds of horses. The performances will start at 2:15 and 8:15 P. M., with the doors open at 1 and 7 P. M., admitting the public to the radically restyled menagerie, gorilla tent, horse fair and big top—all redesigned by Norman Bel Geddes, of New York World's Fair Futurama fame.

Among the outstanding features are: the new fairyland fantasy, "Old King Cole and Mother Goose," designed and costumed by Bel Geddes, with ensembles staged by the famous Albertina Rasch, Hollywood and New York musical show dance director; Alfred Court's three mixed groups of performing wild animals of almost every known specie, appearing simultaneously in three steel arenas; the new Birdland aerial ballet, starring Elly Ardelty and costumed by Max Weldy, of Paris; the many aerial and novelty acrobatic troupes from South America, headed by the three famous Flying Diego-Fernandes acts; the new high school and liberty horse offerings, headed by Viscomte Roberto Vasconcellos, the famous Riding Cristianis; the great Truzzi, juggler; the three Flying Concello troupes, with Antionette. In all, 800 performers.

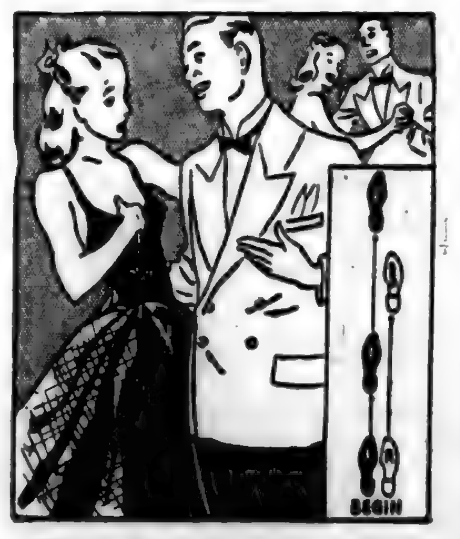
Home Lessons Cure for Dance-Floor Apologies



"THE Excuse-me's"—this unhappy pair of dancers should be called. Every other step they take in the smart Westchester brings crushed toes, bumped knees and a flood of apologies.

Such accidents don't beset your dancing if you practice steps at home. Then you glide easily along, make a hit with your partners. And simple to learn steps from diagrams.

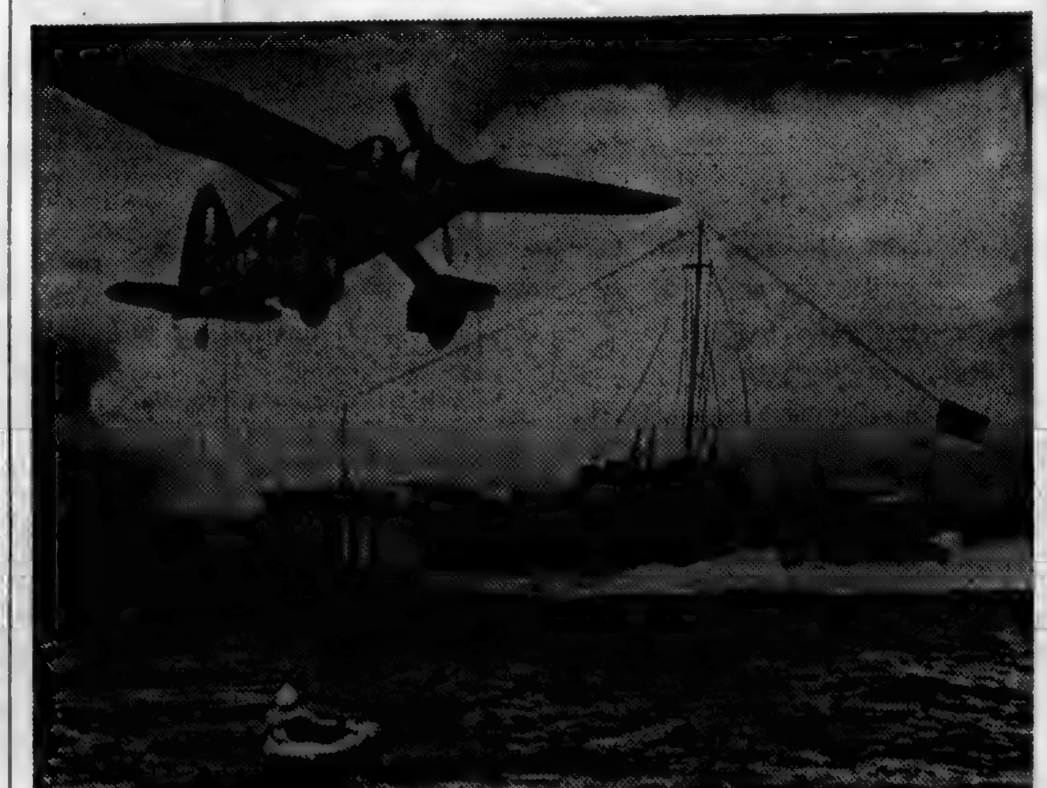
Nazis Employ Giant 'Pincer' Maneuver In Drive to Cut Russian Supply Line; Federal Agents Arrest 29 Persons In Largest U. S. Roundup of Spies

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)



The figure in the lower left corner of the picture is an R.A.F. pilot, who floats on a rubber dinghy, dropped by the land plane overhead. The aviator, after being shot down by Nazis, was spotted by the English air sea rescue service, who radioed the high speed launch, shown just as it reached the scene. The plane hovered above, until rescue was completed, then sped away upon another mercy mission. These dramatic events are almost a daily occurrence in the battle of the Atlantic.

REDS:
Fighting Hard

In spite of empty communiques from both Russian and German sources on the progress of the war on a 2,000-mile front between the two former allies, one thing was evident, that the Russians were fighting with all their might and main, but that they were being relentlessly pushed back before the fury of the German mechanized onslaught.

Bit by bit and piece by piece the picture began to be seen, despite the fact that both sides were barring war correspondents from the scene.

The huge front was divided into four general parts, the far northern, the northern, central and southern.

On the far north there was no discernible activity. This was the part which Germany hoped to invade by means of her occupation of Norway.

The northern front really began with the Finnish-Russian border, that part of it which lies to the southeast and separates old Finland from the road to Leningrad. Here the fighting was severe, but apparently was mostly in the air. Another portion of this front lay somewhat to the southward, and included the states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, and the Germans moving from East Prussia, were invading these territories only recently taken over by Russia, and were slowly forcing the Russians back into their own territory.

Here the fighting was extremely severe and the Russians were forcing the Nazis to advance slowly, where at all.

The greatest Nazi advance was on the central front, with the rail center of Minsk, reputedly a "life-line" of Russian supply between south and north armies, as the prime apparent objective. Here the Germans were claiming their greatest successes, and on the basis of meager dispatches, they had indeed covered the most mileage in this district.

Yet most observers believed the Ukraine, the southern front, was the one the Germans coveted most. Yet it was on this front that almost no advance had been made, the Russians claiming to hold the Prut river, which was still a considerable distance from old Russian territory.

Thus the old Nazi "pincers technique" was evident, as it was obvious the Germans were trying to divide the Russian defending armies into two parts, and drive southward to surround and encircle the Ukraine defenders, and to do the same via the Baltic states with the northern defenders.

MORALE:
The Mental Side

As to the propaganda releases, which contained much more space and information than did the official news, there was every indication that both sides in the Russo-German war believed strongly that the other's inner morale was weak.

There were dozens of stories from Russian sources telling of Nazi soldiers and aviators laying down their arms, saying, "we don't want to fight against the Communists."

The Germans, on the other hand, did not make such claims, but took the line of telling the world what brave and foolhardy fighters the Russians were, and by telling stories of "stands to the death" to paint the picture of an army suffering defeat after defeat, and letting its soldiers fight even inside of burning buildings until all were killed.

The purpose of each of these types of stories was to impair morale.

This caused many observers to feel that the outcome of the war might well hinge on a breach in the morale of either side.

SPY:
Roundup

In swift, secret moves, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation completed the greatest spy hunt in the nation's history and arrested 29 persons on espionage charges. Twenty-two of the group are natives of Germany.

For two years the FBI had been closing in on the spy ring which is specifically charged with conspiring "to engage in espionage activities" in the United States.

Warrants issued for the arrests charged the spies with giving information to foreign nations concerning cargoes of British-bound ships and with revealing new developments in U. S. naval, army and aircraft products.

BOMBER:
U. S.' Biggest

The taking to the air of the B-19, a $3,000,000 airplane, and believed the biggest bomber in the world today, also the fastest and most powerful, was an event.

Yet it disclosed that bigger and faster ships are the rule of the future, and the not-far-distant-future at that.

Not so very long ago 400 miles an hour was a dream, and many experts declared that at 600 miles an hour, or 880 feet per second, the air resistance would burn up a plane.

This was exploded when the U. S. army announced that at Wright field a civilian test pilot dived a plane at the rate of 661 miles an hour, or 968 feet a second, which is losing altitude almost at the speed of sound, which travels only 1,120 feet a second.

The speed of the pilot, Bob Fausel, tester for the Wright company, was a mile every 5.44 seconds. Last year Andy McDonough, an air-line pilot and an air corps reservist, flew a Bell Airacobra in a dive at 620 miles an hour.

And Capt. Ben Kelsey had piloted a Lockheed from March field, Calif., to Mitchel field, L. I., in seven hours, at an average of 420 miles per hour.

The tip-off as to the future came from Washington, for Langley field, already with a wind tunnel which will test ships designed for 300 miles an hour, is going to be revamped to test 500-mile-an-hour ships.

POWER:
For F.D.R.?

There were two distinct schools of thought about the problem of granting President Roosevelt further additional personal powers in the emergency.

The war department, according to authorized sources in Washington, was putting pressure on congress to declare a state of unlimited national emergency, a step already taken by the President, but which would free his hands for considerable action now barred to him by the fact that congress has not given him the reins.

The isolationist press attacked this move instantly, and so did some congressional leaders who had generally been regarded as administration stalwarts.

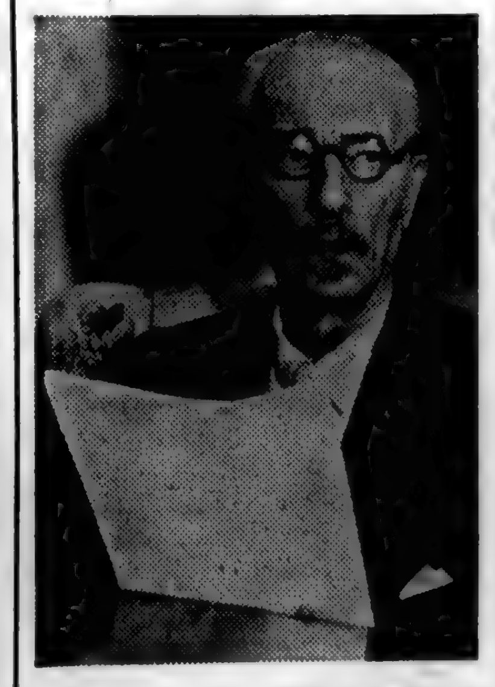
DOOMED:
Are Big Guns

The accuracy of American bombing from the air and the size of bombers and bombs has caused the army chiefs to doom to oblivion the big railway guns, not to mention the huge weapons fixed in coast guard positions.

Say the army chiefs:

"These big guns cannot fire with nearly the accuracy nor the effect of the big air bombers. The war department might as well abandon this weapon."

Great Career Ends



Sad news to the world of music was the death of Ignace Jan Paderewski, world famous musician and Polish patriot, who died in New York of pneumonia at the age of 80. The great pianist was ill only a few days. His long career was one of continued brilliance. At 9 he was a child prodigy and at 18 a professor of music. An accomplished concert pianist at 27, he later became a world recognized statesman and first prime minister of a free Poland.

PLANES:
In Syria

Enthusiastic reports were beginning to come from Australians in the R. A. F. in Syria and northern Africa concerning the performance and maneuverability of American-built planes.

These reports constituted an oddity, however, with regard to the bombers and fighters. From northern Africa came glowing accounts of the performance of Martin-built bombers on the ever-growing strength of Britain there.

The bombers were fast, the sights were unusually good, and they were wreaking havoc with Nazi and Fascist planes in the air and on the ground.

The Curtiss-built Tomahawk fighter planes also came in for unstinted praise, not only on the North African front but in Syria as well.

But the Vichy French had the same Martin bombers that the Free French and British had in Syria, so it was Tomahawk against the U. S. heavier planes there.

The reports of victory were still optimistic in Syria, however, the airmen reporting that the Tomahawks shot down the U. S. Martins quite as well as they did the Junkers, Heinkels and Capronis in Africa.

"The fire power of these fighters is terrific and they have all the speed you want," said the pilots.

NOBODY:
Satisfied

The passage by the house military affairs committee of a report condemning a long list of persons and agencies as having bungled the national defense showed a puzzled public that apparently nobody was satisfied with the way our preparations were being managed.

The house committee attacked the administration, the defense advisory commission, the army, the navy, OPM, the maritime commission and the state department and Secretary Ickes.

The President, it said, had been too prone, when new problems arose, just to name another board, with the result that endless complications and confusion had arisen to slow progress.

And harking back to the President himself, it was recalled that he, too, had declared himself far from pleased with the way things were going, just a day or two before the house committee reported.

William Knudsen, head of OPM, reported defense production lagging; Leon Henderson, price control man, was pegging the prices of tires and tubes and threatening in other directions; the maritime commission was displeased with the ship owners and Secretary Ickes was having a hard time with the nation's oil men.

Defense plant heads, seeking places for their workers to live near their work, were falling out with the federal housing men, and it was hard to find anybody that was pleased with anything in the defense set-up—giving the press and speakers who were opposed to the New Deal handling of the whole show plenty of material for their attacks on its policies.

FIELD DAY:
For Britain

As the Germans, led by Hitler in person, turned their backs on England, the British were having an aerial field day, running day and night air raids with minimal losses in men and ships and dealing out terrific blows to Nazi and occupied territory.

But the Britisher in the street was not satisfied. There was a growing demand for invasion of the Nazi-held lands. This spread far beyond the "man in the street" angle when one general suggested that the time had come for "hit and run" attacks on coastal points as a sure method of wrecking the Nazis' entire build-up for an attack on the British isles.

The general, J. F. C. Fuller, said he understood the British had amphibian tanks, and that if they did have them, now was the time to use them in cross-channel invasion attempts.

Isle of Martinique

Martinique, West Indies possession of France, is an island 385 square miles in area with a quarter of a million inhabitants—or an average of about 650 persons to the square mile. Much of the interior is devoid of human life because it cannot be cultivated, while more than one-fifth of the total number of inhabitants live in and around the capital and port, Fort de France.

Martinique is situated between Puerto Rico and Trinidad in the curving island chain that separates the Atlantic ocean from the Caribbean—just 1,260 miles from the Panama canal.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

HOT HAY MOW IS FIRE HAZARD

Spontaneous Ignition Cause Of Large Losses.

By W. C. KRUEGER

(Extension Agricultural Engineer, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

United States farms suffer a loss of more than $15,000,000 annually from the spontaneous ignition of hay in barns. Foresighted farmers can take several steps to guard against this menace, and one of the most important is to inspect their mows frequently during the two to six-week period immediately following storage—the most critical period for fires.

Legume hay, such as alfalfa, the clovers, and soybeans, is particularly susceptible, although the firing of other hay materials stored chopped or unchopped is not uncommon.

The wetting of hay due to leaky roofs or through open doors or windows and the slower heating of especially dense and green material may result in dangerous heating months after crop placement.

The temperature in hay mows may be determined quickly and easily by means of a homemade thermometer probe. This consists of a small diameter pole, preferably round, having a thermometer fitted in a groove just above the sharpened end. Since probe holes left in the hay may conduct air to hot spots and encourage combustion, as few holes as possible should be made and these should be plugged with a similar sized stick between readings. The plugs serve as markers for subsequent readings in the same location.

Temperatures under 150 degrees Fahrenheit may be considered safe but above this point the hay should be inspected frequently, since dangerous situations may develop. Temperatures above 175 degrees are definitely critical. Fire Department standby service should be arranged, and when temperatures approach 190 degrees it is time to consider removing the hay from the barn. It is well first to remove all tools, implements, and livestock, however, since the action of removing hay and admitting oxygen to hot spots may result in ignition and flash fires.

Disinfectant Help Cure Calves With Foot Rot

Calves often get infected with foot rot when they are allowed to run in yards that are low, dirty and muddy. This is an infectious disease which usually starts in a crack between the toes.

Lameness is the first symptom. The foot swells and the flesh at the base of the hoof and between the toes becomes very sensitive. The infected foot should be washed with a tincture of iodine and bandaged to keep it clean. It is sometimes necessary to soak the foot twice a day in a disinfectant solution and to trim away the diseased or infected tissue. The calf should be kept in a clean, dry place until all signs of the disease have disappeared.

To prevent the occurrence of this infection, keep yards and lots clean and well drained. If a low, wide box of lime is placed so the calves will have to walk through it in going to and from the barn, it will aid in preventing this trouble.

Japanese Beetle Traps Chiefly for 'Scouting'

Traps for Japanese beetles, now widely utilized by federal entomologists, are not intended primarily as beetle destroyers. These traps are for "scouting." They are baited with a mixture of chemicals that attract beetles from a distance, and are set to give information as to the presence or absence of beetles in the neighborhood.

The bureau of entomology and plant quarantine does not recommend beetle trapping as desirable for individuals. The bait is likely to attract beetles from a considerable area, but many of these beetles may not enter the trap, with the result that the lawn or garden near the trap may have more beetles than it would without a trap—although neighbors at a distance may have fewer. To be effective, trapping should be systematic and on a community basis, covering a square mile or more—and the larger the area the better.

Stomach Worms

To treat sheep for stomach worms, the North Carolina State College Extension service recommends drenching them with the following solution: Dissolve four ounces of coppper sulphate (blue stone) in one pint of boiling water, then add enough water to make a total of three gallons. Next add three ounces of a 40 per cent solution of nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40). The three gallons makes enough to dose 100 mature sheep.

CRISPLY COOL ON A SUMMER DAY!
(See Recipes Below)

THIRST QUENCHER IDEAS

The thermometer's soaring and the summer sun's too hot, you say? Then you'll want a cool, gracious drink with tinkling ice to lift your wilted spirits.

Indeed the favorite pickup for a sultry day is nothing more than a simple drink of fruit juices, tea, or frosty milk with shimmering ice. The tartness of the fruit juices in these drinks will refresh and cool you, soothe your disposition long after you've sipped them. Besides they'll give vitamins and minerals to pep you up even more.

For a really quick cooling drink you might try some of the prepared fruit juice powders on the market. They can be mixed in a flash and give a very satisfying beverage. The children will like working with them, too, and won't muss the kitchen if they have this type of easy preparation to use.

LEMONADE
A GLASS

Summer drinks can be especially attractive when served with those fragrant sprigs of mint you have growing on the side of the house, strawberries from the patch, or long, lengthwise slices of lemon to bring out the delicate flavor of tea. Ice cubes with cherries, red berries, mint leaves, orange or lemon slices, or fruit juices all frozen in the cubes will make your thirst quenchers a joy to look at.

Iced Tea.

Tea must be made double strength when used with ice, so use 2 teaspoons for each cup of water. Measure 1 cup of freshly drawn water, bring to a boil. Pour over leaves, let steep 5 minutes, then strain into a pitcher. Cool, pour into glasses filled with ice, two-thirds full. Serve with slices of lemon.

You can do such delightful things with this combination of tea, oranges and mint, so here's a recipe which you might like to try. It's a company favorite!

Orange Mint Julep.
(Serves 10)

6 glasses of strong tea
2 cups sugar
½ cup water
1 orange rind grated
Juice of six oranges
Sprays of mint

Boil the sugar and water and grated orange rind for 5 minutes. Remove from fire, add crushed mint leaves and let cool. To the strained tea add orange juice, and pour into glasses which are half-filled with crushed ice, and sweeten to taste with the strained mint syrup. You'll like this garnished with mint sprays and floating orange slices.

For a really exhilarating drink that has nutritive value so vital to lift lagging spirits, here's eggs and milk combined with fruit and juices. It's so-o-o good and looks like a charm.

LYNN SAYS:

A snowy frost on the glass in which you serve your cooling summer drinks is very attractive and simple to make. All you do is dip the top of the glass before it is filled into slightly beaten egg white and then into granulated sugar. Allow to dry thoroughly before using.

If you'd like a true frost for the glass try a drink which is guaranteed to have one. Such are the old-fashioned "granits" which may be of any flavor you desire. The granit is a half-frozen drink which is put in the refrigerator or freezer until a light snow-frost appears, but leaves the drink still liquid enough to pour.

For a strawberry granit, mash a quart of berries and cover with 1½ pounds of sugar, then set aside for several hours to let a syrup form. Drain and press through a sieve. Add 1 tablespoon of strawberry extract, then mix with 1 pint of water. Freeze until the top is snow-frosted and serve in long, thin glasses.

1 quart ginger ale
Juice of 3 lemons
1 small bottle maraschino cherries

Here's an old-fashioned treat that always makes new friends. I can still remember how nice the kitchen smelled when mother used to put it up, and then again how hospitable everyone thought she was when unexpected guests came and she served this drink. It has a delightful color, and unusual flavor.

Currant Syrup With Raspberries.

Cinnamon Almond Float.
(Serves 6)

⅓ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 quart cold milk
1 teaspoon almond extract

1 pint vanilla ice cream

Combine sugar and cinnamon; add milk and flavorings and stir until sugar is dissolved. Pour into tall glasses and top each with a generous spoonful of ice cream.

Coconut Flake Cookies.
(Makes 5 dozen)

1⅓ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups corn flakes or bran flakes
1 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1⅓ cups shredded coconut

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again; add flakes. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add vanilla. Add flour and flakes mixture, mixing well. Add coconut. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes, or until done. For variation ½ cup chopped nuts may be added to mixture before baking.

HIGH PRICES Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

If you've been annoyed during the last ten days with small feather-like winged black bugs that seem to come out of nowhere, be patient, you have only about twenty more days to put up with them. The insects, commonly called "oats bugs," come to the middlewest each year during the Summer. A cool, moist June is exactly what they like. An oats bug has a life expectancy of about thirty days, but may go to his rest earlier if the weather becomes too dry. They live mainly on oats, but also cater to wheat and barley to some extent. They occasionally damage grain germination and are extremely irritating to people.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

When Prime Minister Jonasson invited the United States to occupy Iceland, he did not have to close his note with a polite R. S. V. P., or with the more businesslike request to answer by night letter, charges collect. The policies of the President applicabe to the situation had been worked out carefuly over a period of considerable length, and may be said to have reached definition in his address of May 27. The public at large of course was startled by the prompt occupation of Iceland, but the President, as such, may be said to have had a reply ready before the request of Prime Minister Jonasson was on the wire. As Commander in Chief of the Navy, his plan of procedure was no less complete, and action was correspondingly prompt and swift.

The occupation of Iceland was intended to block at the very beginning, an attempt on the part of Germany to establish a line of hopping-off places from Europe westward. In his statement to Congress, Mr. Roosevelt dealt with the matter in greater detail. In that document, it was made clear that a German hold on Iceland would endanger "the steady flow of munitions to Britain, which is a matter of broad policy clearly approved by Congress." It would be "a threat against all shipping in the North Atantic;" and it would be a dangerous gesture toward "all shipping in the North Atlantic."

Mr. Roosevelt made it evident that the guardianship assumed over Iceland did not differ materially from that undertaken in connection with Greenland. The liberties of the people will be in no wise abridged, nor will the established allegiance be altered. The step simply was made necessary by the pressure of the hour, and when that pressure ceases, the old order will come again into its own.

So far as Germany is concerned, the landing of naval forces in Iceland is a warning that the United States proposes to do something other than file protests and exchange notes. It is a notice that "defense," according to the American construction put upon the word, amounts to more than the establishment of a mere coast guard. The ocean avenues of approach are to be made unsafe for those who would use them wrongfully. The "Watch on the Rhine" theory was outgrown long ago by Germany. In the present crisis, the United States likewise takes no stock in its efficacy.

As the Nazi forces started a northward movement, the crepe hangers looked sadly at Russia, and began to ply their dismal trade. The experts led the world to believe that the problem of taking over Russia involved no more than a question of transportation, with possibly a halt now and then for a skirmish, or to let the engines cool off. Roughly speaking, the third week of the Russo-German war is here. The Russians have felt the force of the first onslaught, but have built up a strong counter-attack and begun to fight with a courage and skill. The results of three weeks indicte that perhaps the Russian power has been understimated.

It would be taking entirely too much credit to ourselves to presume that the Russians were enheartened into a stubborn resistance by the promise of support from the United States, although that promise undoubtedly had its effect. That there is no hand and glove relationship between the United States and Russia, is made manifest by the refusal of the Administration to take over the Soviet interests in France. The attitude of the United States toward Communism remains unchanged. The fact simply is that Nazi Germany is a source of immediate danger, whereas Russian Communism is not. Hitler in close proximity to Alaska would light the American watch fires on the hill tops in short order. The circumstance that Stalin's land is separated from our northernmost possession by a narrow stretch of water only, passes almost without notice. Having nothing to fear in the near future from Russia, and having a good deal to fear from Germany, ordinary prudence dictates that Russia be given such help as can be spared. Common sense should point the way to the conclusion that, regardless of her philosophy of government, Russia right now is a handy club for Democracy to use in beating the most threatening enemy of Democracy over the head.

MORTUARY

KOEPPE

August C. Koeppe was born March 2, 1856 of parents John and Augusta Koeppe in Prussia, and passed to his reward from the home near Butler, Indiana, July 9, 1941, at the age of 85 years, 4 months and 7 days.

He came to America at the age of sixteen in 1872 after his parents and family had been here one year. Soon after arrival he lost an arm in a saw mill accident and then entered the primary department of the public schools to be able to translate his former education in Prussia into the English, and in two years secured privilege to teach school, and taught for twenty-five years, going to Valparaiso University between terms.

He lived in the present home forty-five years coming from Spencerville there. Was married to Martha May date unknown. To this union was born three children: Hazel Lott, Coldwater, Michigan, George, Newville Indiana, and Austin, Coldwater, Michigan.

His wife preceded him in death October 18, 1920 and he was then married to Minnie Welker, August 10, 1922, who has been his ever patient and helpful companion until death called him Home.

As a young man he gave his life to Christ under the ministry of J. V. Updike, one of God's noblest evangelists and served as Sunday School teacher, Elder, Trustee, and worthy faithful follower of the Master until He called him.

Brother Koeppe will long be remembered by both old and young as a most ardent and devoted Christian. He was liberal in things where the Book did not speak and very unmovable where the Bible had given instructions. Was one who was perhaps over ambitious in working for he declared one could "rust out quicker than they could wear out" and his labors brought him results in earthly, as well as heavenly possessions.

Funeral services were held from the Newville Church of Christ Saturday July 12th, Bro. William D. Nice, his minister officiating. Many beautiful floral offerings were given and burial was made in the family lot of the local cemetery.

Besides the widow, Brother Koeppe leaves to follow: three brothers, Theodor, Toledo, Ohio, Edward and Eric, of Bryan Ohio; two brothers and two sisters having preceded him in death: nine nephews, five nieces, six grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends and neighbors.

Two of his favorite hymns were read at the services: "In The Garden" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

MANY ENLISTMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR LOCAL YOUNG MEN

At the suggestion of Secretary of Navy Knox, F. B. Leighty has been made Navy Editor, to help the Navy in giving ambitious local young men information about the opportunities the "Two-Ocean Navy" offers them for technical training and advancement as they serve their country in its emergency.

According to an announcement made public in Washington, a limited number of additional men between the ages of 17 and 50 will be given a chance, by enlistment in the Navy, to get to the top, with big pay, in jobs which by their aptitude and as a result of examination they show themselves fitted, from among nearly fifty different trades and vocations. These include such callings as aviation machinist, dental technician, photographer, diesel engineer, radio technician, electrician, welder, storekeeper, and baker. Enlisted men may also qualify for commissions as officers.

Beginning this week the Navy plans for a limited time to accept new qualified men for training. These men will be sent to one of four Naval Training Stations and may have a chance to go to a Navy Trade School even before assignment to the fleet. During this period they will be given regular Navy pay and the Navy's free schooling is valued up to $1500.

"Never in the history of the United States has there been greater opportunity for loyal young Americans to serve their country and build their futures than right now," said Secretary Knox.

In outlining the many advantages offered by Naval enlistment, it is possible for a bright young man to increase his pay seven times during his first enlistment and he can earn as much as $126 a month. This monthly figure is actually worth much more when it is remembered that the man has few living expenses and is provided with the finest of medical and dental care.

You have all your food and lodging, and also your original outfit of clothing provided by Uncle Sam free. In addition there are free sports and entertainment—even to the latest Hollywood pictures. On top of this you get free travel and adventure in colorful places—a thing few civilians can afford.

When you consider the size of this country and the fact that the Navy will select only 15,000 applicants a month from many times that number throughout the United States, the quotation, "Many are called but few are chosen," will apply to local young men interested.

Navy men are a "hand-picked" lot. Candidates must be men of more than average intelligence and ambition, of fine moral character and must have the written recommendtion of at least two local townspeople.

Navy Editor, of The News, has just received from Washington a supply of free illustrated booklets for all men interested and, in addition, will welcome inquiries from young men who wish to look into the new and greater opportunities the Navy now offers for future training careers as they serve their country now in its emergency.

WON BADGE FOR BRAVERY

Tales of heroism overseas recall the valor shown by our own fighting forces in the first World War, the luster of whose deeds remains undimmed even though the present war is adding many names to the honor roll of those who have won awards for bravery.

Not all of the decorations won in the stirring days of 1918 were for heroism in battle. Some were earned under circumstances far less spectacular though equally fraught with danger in some less active sector. Such was the award won by 1st Sgt. John K. McGraw of the U. S. Marines.

Mac, as he was known to his buddies, was the first sergeant of an aviation squadron in Flanders when a Marine Corps plane got out of control and crashed into a pile of live bombs.

In an instant he was at the scene of the crash and making every effort to rescue the aviator, pinned beneath the burning plane. Tongues of flames seared the crates in which the bombs had been placed, while bursting drums of machine gun bullets from the burning plane added to the danger.

One glance assured McGraw that the pilot, whose chest had been crushed, was beyond help. He worked frantically to drag the burning bomb crates off the pile while others rolled them in the mud until the fire was extinguished. An explosion would have destroyed the airdome and cost many lives.

Later McGraw received the Navy Cross "for extraordinary heroism in the line of his profession," none the less heroic for having been performed, as are so many similar acts today, far from the actual firing line.

The Big Show—Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey—will exhibit in Ft. Wayne, Thursday, July 31, and here's a synopsis of its 1941 features:

Mr. and Mrs. Garagantua the Great, the world's most publicized and fascinating gorilla couple; the new fairyland fantasy, "Old King Cole and Mother Goose," designed and costumed by Norman Bel Geddes, of New York World's Fair Futurama fame, in which 2,000 people and animals take part. Geddes has redesigned the circus from front to back.

"Old King Cole and Mother Goose" cost $80,000, and is the grandest of all Big Show pageants; hence it is spotted on the program to follow Alfred Court's three great mixed groups of performing wild animals, so that late comers won't miss it.

The new Birdland aerial ballet, starring lovely Elly Ardelty, costumed by Max Weldy, of Paris, and staged by Albertina Rasch, famed Hollywood and Broadway musical show dance director; an invasion of acts from South America, headed by the three flying Diego-Fernandez troupes; the great Truzzi, juggler; Hubert Castle, tight-wire star; the Yacopis, Gauchos and Divisos, springboard somersaulting troupes; Adrianna and Charly, trampline stars; Mlle. GINNIVAN'S SHOW HERE ALL NEXT WEEK

Next week is show week in St. Joe. The Ginnivans will open here Monday night in their Tent theatre, located on the Harry Hursh vacant lot right down town. Tony Blome, the advance man, was in St. Joe Tuesday and Wednesday billing the town and surrounding country. It's one week in the year when this community is treated with seven good flesh shows and plenty of vaudeville acts at prices the whole family can afford to attend.

Opening play Monday night will be "Cheating Cheaters" combined with 4 big acts of vaudeville. Other plays for the week are "Man From Texas," "Saintly Hypocrites and Honest Sinners," "For Crying Out Loud," "Treasure Island," "Peck's Bad Boy," "The Department of Justice Takes a Hand." Every one a winner and a complete change every night of the week. Painless prices prevail, 20c for adults and 10c for children under 12 years.

You will see some of your old favorites along with new members of the cast. Every one has been selected with one thought in mind—good, clean entertainment offered by clean cut folks that you will like and admire on the street as well as on the stage. The Ginnivan name holds up this tradition year after year.

Doors will open at 7:30 each night but the show will not start until 8:30. This gives the rural folks time to come in and see the show even if work keeps them busy for long hours. What do you say—we arrange everything now—get all set—and see the Ginnivans every night next week? It's one time of the year for fun and entertainment—so let's go! Remember the prices, 20c for adults and 10c for children. And the date—all next week starting Monday night.

"NAVY INTELLIGENCE"

Is it necessary to be a high school graduate in order to enlist in the Navy?

No. Navy enlistees need not be high school graduates. All applicants will be given an examination containing approximately 100 questions. A grade of 50 per cent or better on this examination is sufficiently high to pass the Navy educational standards. However, a high school education will be valuable to the seaman during his Navy enlistment.

• • •

If I enlist in the Navy will I be sent to a Navy Trade School?

All new recruits are sent to one of four Naval Training Stations and after a training period they may take examinations for entrance into Navy Trade Schools. Those recruits who pass their examinations with sufficiently high grades are sent to Navy Trade Schools before assignment to the fleet. While attending these schools they will receive regular Navy pay and free schooling valued at $1500.

• • •

What is the greatest possible pay I can expect to earn during my first term of enlistment?

It is possible to earn as much as $126 a month by the end of your first term of enlistment, and remember that your clothing, lodging, medical and dental care are all supplied free.

• • •

After I have served my term of enlistment, what benefits do I get for re-enlistment?

Depending on your rate and length of service, you can get a cash bonus up to $300 plus 30 days leave with pay.

• • •

What does the term "ash can" mean in the Navy?

An "ash can" is a slang term applied to the depth charge used to combat submarines. The average "ash can" is a container filled with approximately 300 pounds of T.N.T. and can be dropped overboard from a ship and so controlled as to explode at depths ranging from 36 to 300 feet. These are generally carried by the fast ships in the fleet, as a boat dropping a charge regulated to explode at 70 feet depth must move away from the explosion area at a speed of 25 knots or more. These "ash cans" are either rolled off the stern or shot from "y-guns" which hurl one right and one left simultaneously.

IT STARTS SOMETHING

A story of a controversy in a town over religious differences made us remember that if we are against a religious belief we can usually find object cases where that faith failed to justify itself. Somebody always knows about "a certain party." As these religious situations arise the words of friends wax not and leads to passing hurts and enmity. So often a man will say that each fellow has a right to his belief, who says perhaps if you would understand the faith better you might not censor, who asks if we are strong enough in our own belief to criticise another. Then this same man will turn about and argue a religious point in another chapter. In time of need and trouble and loss he may be comforted and helped materially by those with whom he disagrees spiritually. The understanding of each other, the love of neighbors whatever the religion, is the foundation of a simple faith. The entire world needs this if they wish to live again.

The man in St. Joe who feels that his religion is the only one for salvation should recall that the census of 1936 lists 256 different religious bodies within the United States. They all can't be wrong and misguided. You would find it interesting to open the World Almanac and scan the list of all these denominations. There is a life-time of study there and the columns of type cover historical moments of greatness. To take each faith, study it not bigoted and censorous, would help our own particular beliefs by teaching us understanding and tolerance. If ever a man is in need of a foundation of faith, that is today, so don't rob him of it. If man cannot agree upon his God how can man agree with man for world peace? It is the old, old story, of "live and let live."

TWO WORLDS

There are two worlds to conquer and two worlds to consider. Man's world is at odds with itself, its hands are full in its usual struggle for maintenance. There is another world about us which proceeds in its quiet way to grow and offer sustenance, softly bringing about its changes and its manifestations of beauty to our doors without headlines and by-lines to herald its strength and power. This is the world of nature so busy about us, day and night weaving its miracles of bloom and berry, of song bird and rustle of leaf, of barking dog and laughing child. This is life and love and happiness. Nature's world brings hot sun for fields growth and cooling rains for relief. Comes the breeze of night-fall and the sound of neighbors' voices from nearby porches. About us are kindly, wholesome folks mowing the grass, sprinkling the lawn, weeding the garden as the insects buzz overhead and the birds twitter to their young ones. This is a permanent world that survives. It is the world of our grandmother who loved it and of our grandfather who appreciated it. Those blooms are old settlers, those birds are from generations back. All will live on to make for good and for happiness when man's world is in chaos. Let us live in the world of nature then, taking an interest in the life and energy around us and perhaps through this undertsanding of nature's glory we may spread some of its good into man's world.

THEY'RE EATING

The announcement that boys in the training camps are gaining on the average of ten pounds for their first three weeks training, is of special interest to parents of our boys who have been drafted. This is probably due to more regulated hours, which has been found to affect those youngsters who have gone away from home and to college. The more recent years have made us all regard our vitamins and health through proper eating and this also affects the army board. There is a greater variety for the boy today than in 1918. There are certain sections of the country where diets vary, and the army kitchens have taken this into consideration, too. However, there is no dish of homemade cookies or candies to tempt the lad's appetite and the only way local relatives and friends can make their draftee feel at home, is to supply him with these items themselves.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

The plan for yoking together in one legislative act, the sending of troops beyond the confines of the Western Hemisphere, and the extension of the period of military service, had to be abandoned for the time being. The foreign service plan was laid aside quietly for the present, lest opposition to it should result in a slowing up of the defense program.

As to extending the period of service hearings will be had on a lately introduced bill, under the terms of which the President will be empowered to hold fighting men, including selectees and reservists, at their task until six months after the termination of the emergency declared by him on May 27 to be existing. As a less drastic measure, it has been proposed to let the period of enlistment run its course, and then pave the way for voluntary reenlistment. A third proposal would have Congress declare a national peril, and make provision for a longer tenure of soldiership. Although the ways and means are in abeyance, the general drift seems to be in the direction of giving added meaning to the refrain "You're in the army now."

Those who prefer something that appeals to the intellect rather than to the prejudices are inclined to feel that Secretary Ickes' latest brief in the case of Col. Lindbergh should have been a little more penetrating and less characterized by pure denunciation. On the other hand, the matter is not one that calls for a great deal of critical analysis. Giving Mr. Lindbergh ample credit for good work accomplished in the past, and according to him the full privileges of free speech, he must be set down as a stumbling block and a rock of offense. Many will accept his conclusions as correct, simply because they are his. That being true, he should have weighed his words with extreme care. To say the least, he has settled back in the breeching at a time when he should be straining at the traces.

Probably the Washington monument, rising 555 feet above the level of the Potomac plain, would be quite as impressive if its aluminum cap piece were replaced by one of copper. It might even get along with no cap at all. Yet the suggestion that the metal be put to war uses, points to a state of mind that can be designated as "slopping over." During the American Revolution, a leaden statue of King George was melted down and cast into bullets. The country is far from being reduced to such an extremity in 1941. Sound judgment calls for every sane effort to put Hitler where he belongs; but it summons the citizen to refrain from any act tending to make it appear that the Nazi sowing of seeds of fear is bringing forth the desired harvest on this side of the Atlantic.

During the first World War, there was a slogan or rallying cry which ran: "America Must Become Ship Minded." The word to get vessels afloat, and to do so quickly, has gone forth again. With about half of the year 1941 off the calendar, the United States has almost 900 merchant craft under contract, or in process of building.

It should not be supposed that there is room for the spick and span only. In a Maine harbor, there lay for many years, a fleet of large schooners supposedly of so little value that one of them was knocked down by the auctioneer for $225, and another for $870. In the quiet of a recent Sunday afternoon, a tug took them in tow and pulled them away to be reconditioned as barges. Before this war business is over, perhaps a man, a building, a ship or tool will have to reach the full three score and ten before being placed definitely on the retired list.

Among those who cautiously cast an eye in the direction of inflation, there is a group which believes that the land can get along with a smaller silver dollar. It is said that a rose under any other name would be as sweet. Perhaps, by a converse line of reasoning, a "cartwheel" the size of a quarter would remain a cartwheel still.

CONCORD HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Mabel Weikel Friday, July 18.

Meeting was called to order by the vice president, Myrtle Pugsley. Song, "America the Beautiful," was sung, led by Mary Krise. A bill to pay $11.25 for dinner at Berghoff Gardens was presented and approved. It was voted to send Mrs. Yeiser to take the lesson on refinishing chairs and bring it back to the club.

Achievement Day will be held in Auburn the first week in November. Voted to pay $1.00 to the Salvation Army. The club was told to take their scrap aluminum to the home of Mrs. Millie Shull. Eighteen members responded to roll call with patriotic responses.

Our county president, Ida K. Miller was present and gave a talk telling us to pass the good things we learn on to others, and stick to our jobs. Diamonds are no good unless polished, which we could apply to ourselves. They are only chunks of coal that stuck to their jobs.

Meeting was closed by singing Keller's American Hymn. The hostess and her committee, Clara Sible and Gertrude Borthwick, served home made ice cream, cake and iced tea.

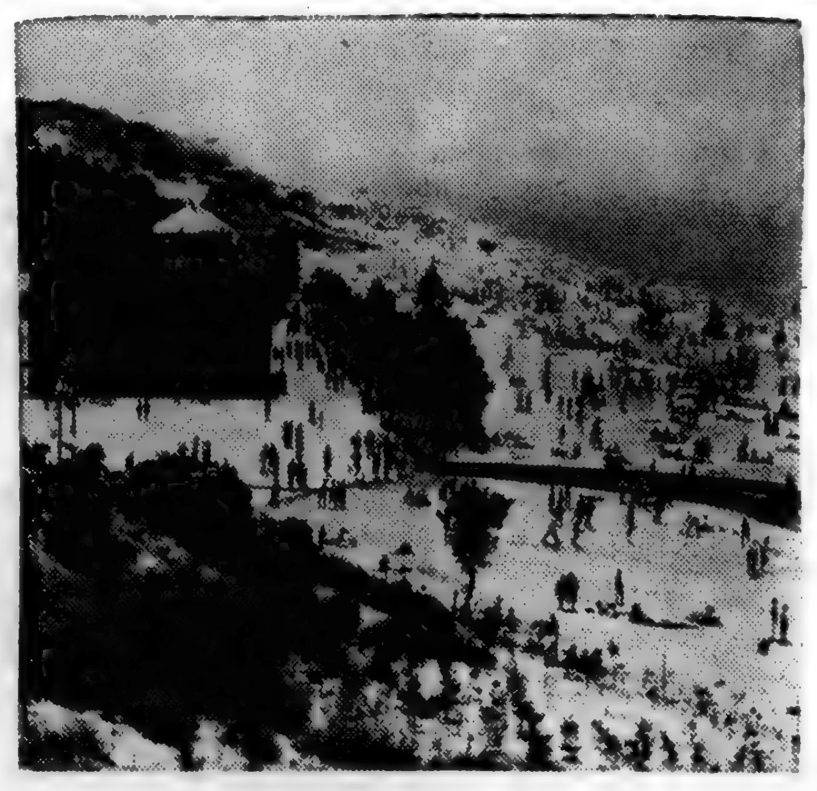
Popular Beach at Dunes State Park is Public Playground



Indiana's Seashore Resort

The three-mile beach along the southern tip of Lake Michigan is one of the feature attractions of Indiana Dunes State Park during the Summer months when thousands of visitors enjoy dashing into the incoming waves and playing in the brilliant, white sand.

Recognized as one of the finest beaches on the lake, it has all the color, action and atmosphere of a seashore resort when dotted with beach umbrellas and bathing suits in every possible hue. Many of the visitors come from Chicago as the park is accessible both by highway (Roads 12, 20 or 49) and by the South Shore line between South Bend and Chicago.

Most attractive during the Summer months, the beach is but one of the features which give Indiana Dunes State Park the largest attendance of any of the Indiana parks. Lining the beach are the mountainous rows of sand dunes, created by the wind and waves sweeping down the three hundred mile length of Lake Michigan. Protected by the dunes is a vast wooded area in which the naturalist finds countless species of bird and plant life.

Dunes State Park is unique in Indiana's park system, entirely different in setting and scenic appeal from the other. In common with the other parks it does have the facilities which distinguish all Indiana state parks—attractive camping and picnicking areas with their shelter houses and comfort stations, a nature guide, and many miles of hiking trails which carry the visitor to all points of interest.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When Rep. George W. Gillie returns to the Capitol next week from Fort Bliss, Texas, he should be able to provide his colleagues with a vivid, first-hand report of Uncle Sam's defense forces in action, judging from accounts which have reached here concerning his experiences on active Army duty.

Congressman Gillie, a Reserve Captain, has been at Fort Bliss a little over three weeks, the last ten days of which were spent on the blistering hot desert flatlands of New Mexico, where 20,000 troops of the First Cavalry Division and attached units have been engaged in realistic battle maneuvers.

The writer received a letter from the Congressman a short time ago, written just before the big war games got under way and describing warm-up maneuvers in which he took part. Portions of the letter are produced herewith:

The C. P. X. (command post exercises) which began Sunday evening and continued for two days revealed to me many new movements as used on a field of battle, and according to the umpires who met yesterday to criticize the conduct of the various units, the action was well-handed and well-timed.

Participating in these maneuvers were the First Cavalry Division, 56th Cavalry Brigade, 120th Observation Squadron, 206th C. A. Anti-Aircraft, 2nd Battalion of the 260th Anti-Aircraft and many unattached units.

In this problem about 800 horses, 25 planes and 5,000 troops, together with supply trains and full equipment, all played their part across the checker board of military tactics.

All movements were made at night through the mesquite bushes which grow so profusely in the desert, without any lights, not even a flash light. Part of the troops went continually for 48 hours, but we were fortunate enough to get some sleep each night.

Carried with us at all times was our canteen and gas mask. Late Monday evening, while the Communications Battalion was resting in a draw between two hills where Captain Smith and myself had stopped for a short time to check on a veterinary platoon, we were surprised by gas. A few explosions, a shrieking siren, and everyone had on their gas masks in less time than it take to tell it. It was soon over, the masks were off, and we were on our way again.

YELLOW planes are friendly. Black planes are enemies. On Tuesday after we had driven about 15 miles toward the front, three enemy planes appeared over the hill. Lightning speed is needed here, and with the speed of lightning we abandoned the car and raced for a mesquite bush to hide. I imagine the pilots had a good laugh seeing us scoot for cover.

Tuesday morning our car got stuck in the mud, and before we knew it three cars were down to their axles. So Old Doc Gillie, with his pants hitched up and his sleeves rolled high, grabbed a shovel and showed them how to dig out. It took nearly two hours, and what a mess we were.

Monday evening we were caught in a fierce electrical storm. Many of the troops were soaked, horses got away, and lightning struck about 50 yards from our tent, setting fire to a mesquite bush. One boy fell from his truck and was crushed under the wheels; three boys were taken to the hospital, injured from a lightning bolt; fifteen horses were evacuated during the exercises.

Of the big maneuvers about 20,000 troops and 8,000 horses will be used to form the Red and Blue Armies. I foresee an interesting and terrible display of Uncle Sam's might in the next ten days.

SEN. WILLIS INTRODUCES AN AMENDMENT TO WHEAT PLAN

Senator Raymond E. Willis, of Indiana, introduced an amendment to the wheat marketing act that, if enacted into law, would permit a farmer with excess wheat acreage to feed, without penalty, his excess wheat to animals already on his farm.

But whatever excess wheat he did not feed would have to be deducted from his quota next year.

For instance if a farmer possesses 100 bushels of excess wheat more than he feeds to animals now on his land he would next year plant only acreage with a normal yield of 100 bushels less than his 1942 quota allowance. Willis has a tentative promise of approval of his resolution from Senator Ellison D. Smith, South Carolina, chairman of the agriculture committee.

THEFT AT DEED'S SERVICE STATION NETS $176

On Frday night thieves broke into the Standard Service Station owned by James Reed at Spencerville, and took a money sack containing the day's proceeds besides other cash on hand amounting to approximately $176.

Entrance was gained by breaking a rear window, unfastening the lock and climbing in. Cigarette butts and partially emptied pop bottles were left by the thieves.

The sheriff was called early on Saturday morning and it is believed that he has enough tips furnished him to solve the theft.

The theft probably occurred during the time that the Post Office and Hafner's Restaurant exchanged places as the noise of breaking in might not have been noticed during the moving.

The thieves drove across to the back yard at the Methodist Parsonage and took some white shirts belonging to Rev. Lee Sharp and some lace curtaing that were on the clothes line.

If you have a physic sense of danger, you probably have recognized that you are living right plump in the middle of the most dangerous season of the year, (June, July, August.) Winter with its icy sidewalk and slippery streets can't begin to match the accident hazards of the Summer. The average for accidental deaths during 1940 was 264 per day. In the Spring months accident deaths were the least frequent—243 per day. During the Summer the average shot up to 283 per day. During both Fall and Winter the daily accident death average was 267.

The drive for old aluminum was made last Thursday evening by the local firemen and a surprisingly good lot was collected throughout the town. Willard Hurni had been collecting for the past week on his cream routes and the largest amount was made from Mrs. Arthur Furnish on the County Line. The only contribution of another lady was a spoon, marked, "Made in Germany," and she wanted to send it back to Germany. Another, a jello mold with a swastika for decoration purposes, was given as it spoiled the jello each time it was served in this mold.

Birthday Party for Sis

Birthday parties given by modern young misses call for a great deal of planning as well as diplomacy. For little ladies of eight can be just as temperamental and jealous as movie stars. Games should be scheduled as precisely as a railroad time table, and refreshments planned down to the last cookie.

Picture Parade

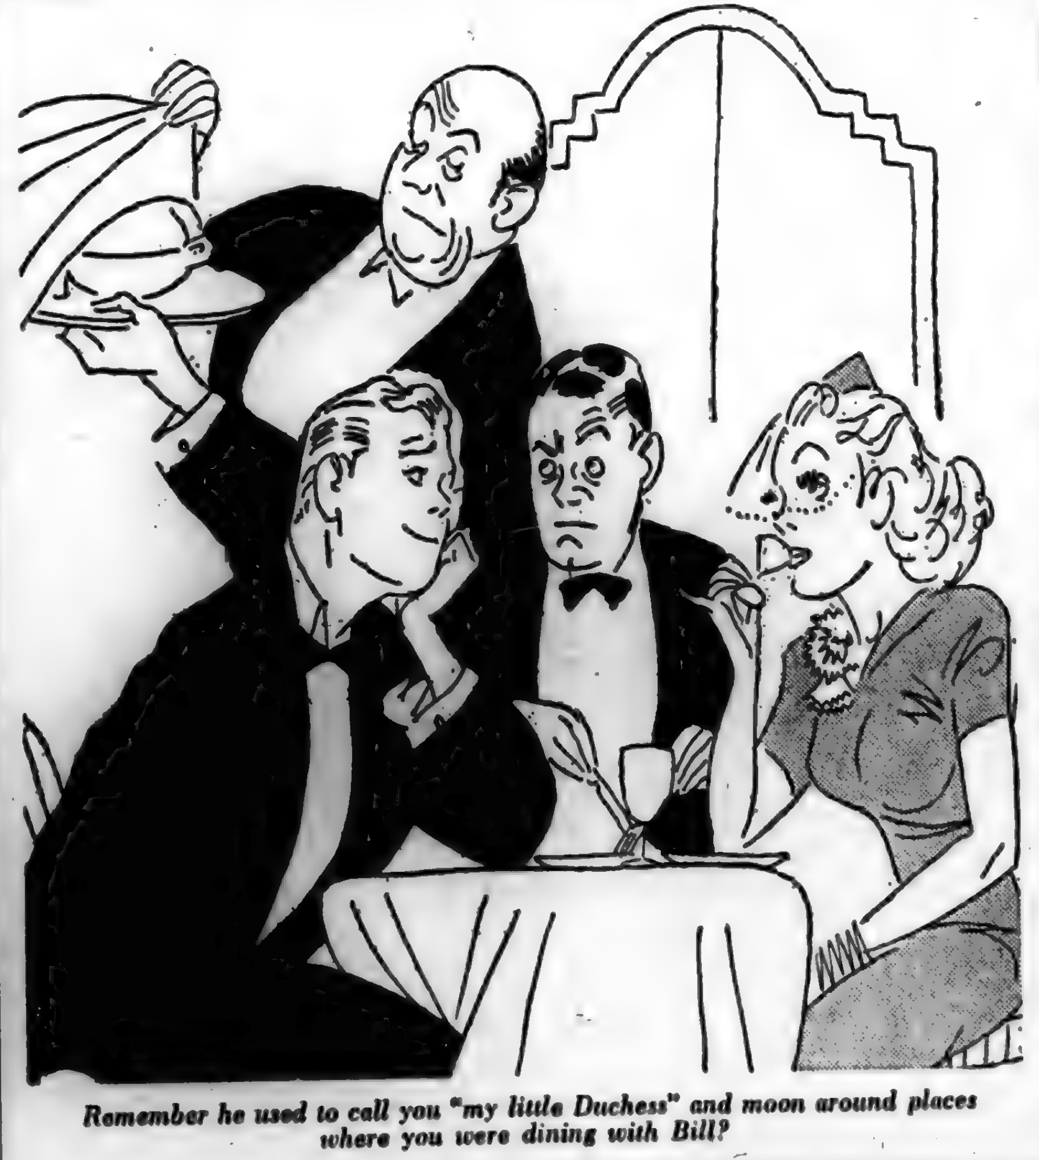
STAGE SET . . . Arrangement of the banquet table calls for an understanding of the psychology of ladies of eight. All hats and favors are exactly alike to avoid loads of trouble.

"BIG BLOW" . . . Dorothy Edith is giving the big huff and puff here to blow out the candles on her cake.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Married Love Affairs Come High

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)



Remember he used to call you "my little Duchess" and moon around places where you were dining with Bill?

CHARM FAILS

"The third time is the charm," runs an old saying, but it failed to work in the case of this husband and father, who seemed unable to make up his mind regarding a suitable mate. Read the observations of Miss Norris, as obtained from his first letter, pleading for a solution, then an urgent telegram. He had solved his own problem.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IF MARRIED men with good—if unexciting, wives, could get it through their heads that the fascinating sweethearts they want so much to marry, after a divorce, are just the same as other women, and will make wives no better and no worse, how simplified and stabilized marriage would be!

And if attractive young women, mildly bored with seven or eight years of wifehood, could possibly foresee the complications into which tempting illicit affairs on the side would draw them, one of America's most serious social problems would be lessened.

But a husband will continue to think that the lovely, eager, sympathetic girl in the office has no faults. And his wife will go on dreaming of the perfect lover—like that man she met at Jane's—so polite—so handsome—so attentive. And so the mischief goes on, breeding incalculable difficulties, heartbreaks, disillusionments for all concerned.

Same Situation Over Again.

When Mildred divorces Bill and marries George, things usually go wonderfully for a few years—perhaps three. But then, if any woman friend is mean enough to remind her of some of her sentiments at the time of the divorce she meets a cold stare from Mildred's eyes. Mildred doesn't remember things exactly that way.

"I'll never forget how you and George adored each other!" babbles the friend. "Do you remember you two used to meet at 'Chez Louis' and simply stare at each other for hours? Remember he used to call you 'my little Duchess' and moon around places where you were dining with Bill?"

No, Mildred doesn't remember that. She admits that Bill was such a brute she had to divorce him or go mad and that George had been crazy about her for years, and so she married him. Further than this she doesn't go; the subject seems to hold no interest for her.

Sensible Viewpoint.

No marriage retains, after the first few months or year, the trembling glamour of the honeymoon; sensible women know it, and resist the illusions of the new affair. And sensible men remind themselves that the girl friend, all sympathy, youth, fragrance, lure today, will turn, after a few years of marriage, into just another faulty, unreasonable, selfish and extravagant companion as was the discarded wife.

Which brings us to "Bobby's" letter, which came to me a few weeks ago. This is part of it.

"After a few years of marriage, when our two girls were seven and five," writes Bobby, "My wife and I drifted apart. We seemed to have no interest in common and life became a dull and dragging affair for us both. I was then traveling for my firm, and met a woman I will call Hazel. She was a most sympathetic and understanding friend, and we became lovers, Hazel giving up her job and maintaining a little establishment in a town some 20 miles from my home.

Bobby's Complicated Problem.

"When my wife discovered this she left me, but did not immediately apply for a divorce. A year passed and I was promoted, moved to another city, and had an opportunity to meet some unusually interesting people. One of these, a young radio actress, is everything I ever dreamed of finding in a woman, of fine family, beautifully educated, lovely in every way. We are deeply in love; Margaret (the radio actress) for the first time.

"My problem is Hazel, who insists upon my marrying her as soon as my divorce is granted, which will be late in June. She has changed completely, so that my original feeling for her is wholly destroyed. She is critical, bitter, threatens a lawsuit; indeed, her lawyer has been in touch with me. Naturally, in my notes to her in the beginning of our affair I mention marriage, and she proposes to take advantage of them. She can hurt me very much with my firm and of course with Margaret, should she pursue this course. Please advise me as to any obligation I may have in the matter, and as to the best way of handling it."

My advice to Bobby might have been that he did have an obligation to Hazel in the matter, or I might have suggested that he marry no one for awhile, having complicated the lives of three women so thoroughly.

Answers Own Question.

But before I had time to answer this letter it was answered by a telegram from Bobby which arrived this morning.

The telegram reads: "Please disregard and destroy letter. Hazel and I married last night. Bobby."

So this now loveless and stale relationship has ended with a wedding after all. But weddings begin something as well as end something, and it is a grim sort of contract into which Hazel and Bobby have entered. He is paying his first wife alimony and he will soon be paying a doubled alimony to his second wife, a seriously crippling situation financially. If Margaret decides to join this fascinating gentleman as his third wife she will have to retain her well-paid position and contribute substantially to the family budget.

Not Real Marriage.

Not real marriage, this sort of thing. And women in their hearts want real marriage. They want the richness of that tried and tested relationship that shares ups and downs, good times and bad; that weathers the long years, builds up a thousand memories of breakfast table talks, nursery cares, kitchen crises, scares and relief from scares, emergencies, changes, and long serene periods of happiness and companionship.

It is a foolish man or woman who jeopardizes all this for a fleeting passion—a deceptive time of flattery and delusion that all experience, all history, all good common sense pronounces to be just one more will-o-the-wisp. Over and over again the victim of the married love affair emerges a sadder and wiser man or woman. The home that once seemed so dull appears to the divorced wife a very haven of safety and content. Her heart aches for her children, whether she has them with her in the chaos of wreckage, or whether they are staying "for awhile with Jim's mother." The discovery that her new mate has human faults, abruptness and selfishness and lack of understanding, is a bitter blow. She has caused all this trouble on the ground that darling Leonard was the perfect man; it is rather flat to begin to say of Leonard the same bored, critical things she said so recently of Jim.

Take a look at the couples who threw discretion to the winds and startled their respective circles with the revelation of a "grand passion," a few years ago, before you take the leap.

Brown Was Starting Early To Get Along With the Cook

The bus was starting in the midst of a torrent of rain, when the conductor put his head inside and inquired: "Will any gentleman get out and oblige a lady?"

"She can come inside and sit on my knee, if she likes," said a passenger, jocularly, and, to his great surprise, in bounced a buxom woman, who forthwith appropriated the offered knee.

After a time the man, Brown, by name, got into conversation with his burden, and asked her where she was going. On hearing her destination, he exclaimed, "Why, that's my house!"

"Well, then," replied the woman, blushing, "I'm your new cook."

SANDWICHES THAT REALLY TEMPT
(See Recipes Below)

BUFFET SUPPERS

If there's one season of the year when you like to feel really free from the heat of the kitchen, then summer's that season. You can do it easily, too, if you'll plan and prepare C-O-O-L meals in the early hours of the day before the heat becomes sweltering. Then stay strictly out of the kitchen until suppertime.

Make mealtime during these months as simple as possible. Not only will you be the more charming for doing less work, but your family will enjoy the simplicity as a change. One of the answers to this is buffet service. An attractively arranged table on the summer porch is a tonic for hazy summer appetites.

Sandwich Loaf.

For Chicken Filling use:
1 cup ground, cooked chicken
½ cup ground almonds
2 to 4 tablespoons chopped celery
Salt to taste
Lemon juice to flavor
Salad dressing to moisten

Mix chicken, celery and almonds. Season with salt and lemon juice and add enough dressing to give spreading consistency.

For Egg Filling use:
4 hard cooked eggs
⅓ cup chopped cooked bacon or
⅓ cup stuffed olives, chopped
Salt to season
Few drops Worcestershire sauce
Salad dressing or cream to moisten.

Chop eggs, add bacon and Worcestershire sauce. Moisten with salad dressing to give spreading consistency.

Remove the crusts from an uncut loaf of day-old white sandwich bread. Slice lengthwise to make three or four slices about ¾ inch thick. It's a good idea to have the bottom slice thicker than the other three since it helps in placing the loaf when served. Spread slices, except top and bottom, with creamed butter, mayonnaise, then with different fillings. Use chicken filling between two slices; egg filling for the next and chopped vegetables moistened with mayonnaise for the third or tomato slices.

Stack and cover top and sides with soft cream cheese piled like frosting. Garnish with thin radish slices and dust with chopped chives. Chill in the refrigerator several hours before serving. It's better not to use lettuce because it offers slicing difficulties after the loaf is served.

For the cream cheese frosting use ¼ to ⅓ pound of cream cheese. Add rich milk or cream to make a thick paste. Beat cheese and cream until evenly mixed and of good consistency for spreading. Spread over loaf to give a fluffy effect, as though you were swirling icing.

Tomato-Cheese Salad.
(Serves 8-10)

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon grated onion
1½ tablespoons gelatine
¼ cup cold water
6 to 8 ounces cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
Salt to taste
1 cup chopped cucumber
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup sliced radishes
½ cup finely chopped onion
Lettuce
Tart french dressing

Heat the tomato soup, butter and grated onion. Soften gelatine in cold water and add it to the hot tomato mixture. Add the cottage cheese and mayonnaise, stir the mixture thoroughly and salt it to taste. Let the mixture cool until it thickens slightly, then add the chopped vegetables. Pour into a large ring mold or individual molds and chill until firm. When ready to serve unmold on crisp lettuce. Use a tart french dressing with this salad.

A one-dish summer meal that will help you be a cool and collected homemaker is this tasty ham mousse which may be served as a salad main dish, heaped high with garden greens, tomato aspic cubes, devilled eggs, carrot strips, peas marinated in french dressing, ripe olives, celery hearts.

Ham Mousse Salad Plate.
(Serves 6-8)

1 tablespoon of plain gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 cups stock or bouillon
½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup diced dill pickle
¼ cup minced pimiento
1 cup chopped, cooked, smoked ham

Soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes. Heat stock or bouillon to boiling point and add gelatine which is soaked. Stir until dissolved. Chill until slightly thickened, then whip in the mayonnaise. Add remaining ingredients, pour into ring mold and chill until firm. Unmold on salad plate and garnish with accompaniments suggested above.

Muffins that will bake in a few minutes will give your meal a tang and zest that will bring cheers from the family. These are so good you'll want them often for any meal of the day. If made in the smaller muffin tins, they'll make a grand addition when you have the ladies in for luncheon.

Honey and Nut Bran Muffins.
(Makes 16 large muffins)

½ cup honey
1 cup flour
¼ to ½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups bran cereal
1 tablespoon melted butter
1⅓ cups milk
¾ cup walnuts, chopped fine

Sift together flour, soda, salt, and mix with bran cereal. Add other ingredients. Place in greased gem pans and bake in a quick oven (425 degrees) for 25-30 minutes.

A jam spicy and delicious to go with your muffins is this one which needs only a few minutes' cooking and is therefore guaranteed not to make your kitchen unbearably hot.

Spiced Rhubarb Jam With Orange.
(Makes 7 6-ounce glasses)

3½ cups prepared fruit
4 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, trim and slice fine (do not peel) about 2 pounds of small red-stalked rhubarb. Add 1 cup of sugar, mix, let stand for 15 minutes. (This cup of sugar is added in addition to the ones specified above). Add 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves, and grated rind of 1 orange.

Measure prepared fruit into a 5- to 6-quart kettle filling up last cup or fraction of a cup with water if necessary. Place over the hottest fire, add fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. To reduce foaming ¼ teaspoon butter may be added. Pour in the 4 cups of sugar, stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute.

Household Hints

Matches should be kept in noninflammable containers where children cannot reach them.

Pretzel crumbs make a tasty covering for small cheese balls served with salads or as appetizers. Freshen the pretzels by heating five minutes in a moderately hot oven. Cool and then roll into crumbs.

Meals with plenty of color are not only more interesting, but are invariably better balanced than colorless meals.

* * *

Proper drainage should be provided under concrete floors and porches, and around wall footings and foundation walls.

* * *

There are two grades of bath towels: (1) those that are loosely woven and will quickly absorb water and (2) those which are of a close weave and do not dry so quickly.

* * *

One teaspoon of dissolved gelatin added to one-half pint of whipped cream will make the cream stiffer when whipped.

* * *

It takes less time, fewer hours of labor and, therefore, costs less to roof a house with strip shingles than with individual shingles.

* * *

Fried mush is often served with fried chicken. To prepare the mush mold it in a loaf pan. Chill it until it is firm. Then cut it into four-inch slices and sprinkle each with flour. Brown in chicken drippings and serve around the platter of chicken.

When buying bone roasts, be sure the butcher gives you the bones even if they have been removed. The bones can be used for making soups and stock for stews.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COU NTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1941 NUMBER 32

STATE FAIR HALF-PRICED 25-CENT TICKET SALE REPORTED UNUSUALLY HEAVY

Each year the Indiana State Fair Board offers several thousand half-priced 25-cent admission tickets to the great Hoosier Exposition which have proved to be unusually popular with Indiana State Fair goers. The original amount of tickets offered was 50,000 and that amount has been increased 25,000 each year until this year the total amount offered for sale July 14 was 250,000.

All tickets are sold on a cash basis by the State Fair Board, but so popular are these tickets with the public that drug stores, banks, business concerns, County Agents and Farm Bureau Secretaries purchase the tickets and resell them without profit as a courtesy to their customers and members. Today less than 20,000 tickets remain unsold at the Fair Board offices on the State Fair Grounds, Indianapolis, and the supply is diminishing fast.

Every effort has been made to give the tickets state-wide destribution, and the supply has been limited to these firms. Hooks and Haags Drug Stores, the Farm Bureaus, and others who are offering them for sale report them moving rapidly. If you plan to purchase half-price ticketes, better act now. Thousands have been disappointed in past years, and once the supply is exhausted, no additional will be printed.

Better grass lambs, $9.95 to $10.20. Slaughter ewes, $2.75 to $3.00. Light dairy bulls, $6.00 to $7.25. Light, thin cutter cows and shells, $4.10 to $4.35. A dairy type steer weighing 780, $7.95. Better butcher cows mostly $5.50 with the best in the offering up to $7.25.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

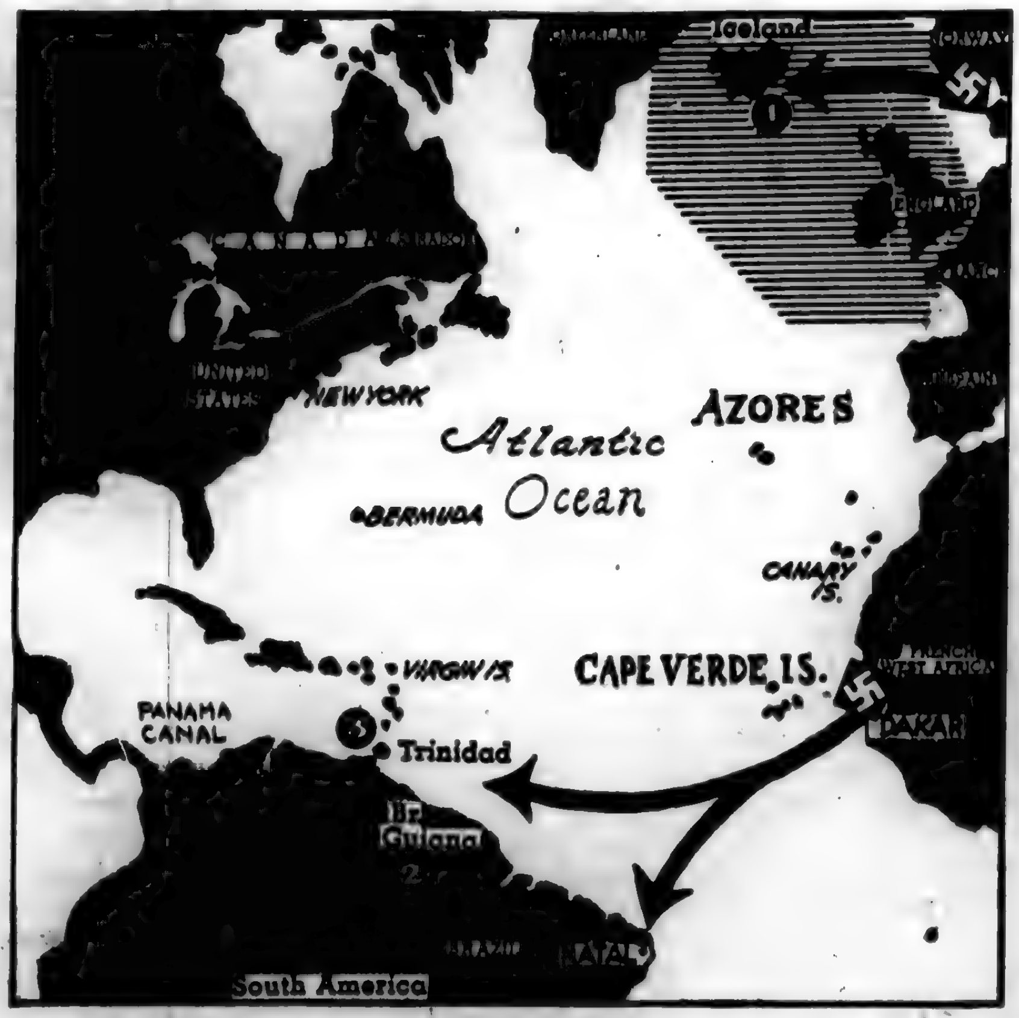
Strategic Outposts for U. S. Defense



Placing U. S. troops in Iceland in occupation of strategic Atlantic outposts were taken "in order to forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against the Western hemisphere," according to a statement by President Roosevelt. Above map indicates how this works. (1) Iceland occupation nullifies any Nazi threat from the north and occupation of Trinidad, and British Guiana (2 and 3) take care of the southern jaw of the pincer hinged on Vichy-French Dakar in Africa. Some sources contend taking over of Azores and Cape Verde Islands (shown in large type) would further greatly strengthen hemisphere defense.

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

Mistakes to Be Avoided In Summer Care of Dogs

Baths, Clipping Can Be Harmful.

"DOG DAYS" are coming, but they needn't bother your dog. With simple, right summer care he'll be healthy and cool.

Do not clip him, for he sheds his undercoat, leaving his outer coat to protect him against the hot sun, flies and mosquitoes. Comb and brush him regularly—but do not give him too many baths, as this removes the oil he needs to keep his coat healthy.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN it was decided that the new Garbo picture would get under way on Friday the thirteenth, the assistant director called the cast together to see if anybody's superstitions would get in the way. Melvyn Douglas said that Friday was a lucky day for him, and the fact that it was the thirteenth would make it so much the better. Ruth Gordon, who gave up a number of summer stock engagements to take this one in pictures, declared that she deliberately walks under ladders, and loves black cats. Roland Young said that he'd bring along one of his china penguins, to break the evil spell of the jinx. As for Miss Garbo, she said nothing—just showed up on time.

Janet Blair used to be the featured vocalist with the late Hal Kemp's orchestra; now she has a Columbia contract and one of the top feminine roles in "Three Girls About Town." She'll play the younger sister of Joan Blondell.

David Niven not only went back to England to serve his country, but he's been made a major. Bing Crosby had a letter from him in which he mentioned the promotion. He heads a squadron of defense troops which is stationed on the English coast opposite France. In his letter he said that no less than 20 invading Nazi bombing planes had been knocked down above his sector the previous night.

The March of Time's newest release, "New England's Eight Million Yankees," shows how the six northeastern states are making themselves invasion-proof. It is the first of a series of regional films, and will be followed by releases on the Midwest, Texas, and other sections of the country.

Penny Singleton, who's been "Blondie" on the screen and on the air for so long, is hard at work now in her first film musical. It's called "Cowboy Joe" temporarily, and Glenn Ford plays opposite her. She'd made a name for herself as a singer and dancer on the Broadway stage before she went to Hollywood, and her nine "Blondie" comedies have made one for her in Hollywood.

The office of Heinrich Himmler, chief of Nazi SS men, is as authentic a reproduction in Warner Bros.' "Underground" as following actual photographs could make it. Himmler does not permit photos of his office to be released; however, Kurt Schmidt, technical adviser on "Underground," made some when he was in favor with the SS head, and smuggled them out of the country when he escaped two years ago. The film shows Himmler's dreaded office for the first time.

Bob Hope, who soared to film popularity with the song "Thanks for the Memory," will have another opportunity to warble an outstanding number, when he sings "You Can't Brush Me Off" in "Louisiana Purchase," which Paramount will produce. Lately he's been content merely to be one of the funniest men on the screen. His "Caught in the Draft" is hilarious, though the script writers dug up some of the oldest jokes in existence for it. Eddie Bracken hangs up a few laurels for himself in this one too.

* * *

With the exception of a few minor weekly cast additions, all the regular roles on the new "Hap Hazard" radio series, the summer replacement for "Fibber McGee and Molly," have been assigned. It stars Ransom Sherman, and features the singing of Edna O'Dell and Billy Mills' orchestra. Nowadays people in radio have begun to take these summer replacement shows seriously. The "Blondie" program started as one three years ago—now it tops all CBS half-hour shows in popularity, according to the latest Crosley report.

ODDS AND ENDS—Ona Munson wound up work in "Wild Geese Calling" at 20th Century-Fox, got a vacation from radio when Edward G. Ruth Hussey and Robert Young will be teamed in "Married Bachelors," a comedy of a young married couple who are always just two jumps ahead of the sheriff . . . Jane Wyatt has the feminine lead opposite Dennis O'Keefe in RKO's "Week End for Three" . . . At last they have a come-back vehicle for Shirley Temple—"Cathleen" . . . Myrna Loy and William Powell will be at it again before long, in "The Shadow of the Thin Man."

LET'S HAVE AN ICE CREAM SOCIAL!
(See Recipes Below)

ICE CREAM 'N CAKE

THIS WEEK'S MENU

Ice Cream Social
*Vanilla and Chocolate Ice Cream
*Walnut Torte
Lemonade

Shining in their starched dresses, the girls are ready "to recite their pieces," the boys, slicked and combed, are watching them shyly, and everyone's waiting for refreshment time to come. Of course, it's an ice cream social, that typically American festival to which homemakers bring their most delectable cakes and choicest ice cream. There, too, you'll find lemonade, "made in the shade by the old maid."

There was a time when an ice cream social, though as pleasant an affair as you'd find on the summer calendar, carried with it a great deal of careful preparation. Ice cream had to be kept in heavy containers which in turn were wrapped in blankets, and if the speeches and program lasted too long it was apt to be more melted than icy when you were finally served. But no longer do you have such a risk. The ice cream can be stored in your refrigerator and kept really hard.

Making ice cream with the freezer method is fun, and usually the whole family gets together to do some of the cranking. The freezer has a wooden or metal bucket holding the ice and salt and a nonrusting metal container with a closely fitting cover for holding the mixture to be frozen. The mixture is stirred by a paddle attached to the crank which is operated by hand, and sometimes by a small electric motor.

Use three parts of ice to one part of salt. Turn the crank slowly at first for about five minutes or until the mixture stiffens, then as quickly as possible until it is difficult to turn. This takes about six minutes. Add more ice and salt if necessary. Pour off salt water, push down ice and salt being careful to get none in the can of ice cream.

Wipe top of can, uncover, take out the paddle, and beat the frozen mixture with a wooden spoon. Cover can with wax paper, and pack again. Let stand several hours to ripen.

If you would be famous for your ice creams and have them spoken of well at the social, follow directions to get the desirable smooth, creamy triumphs. Ice cream free from crystals and splinters will get first prize every time.

Vanilla Ice Cream.
(Makes 1¼ quarts)

1⅓ cups sweetened condensed milk (15-oz. can)
2 cups thin cream
1 cup cold water
1 tablespoon vanilla

Blend thoroughly the sweetened condensed milk, thin cream, cold water and vanilla. Freeze in one-quart freezer. Remove dasher. Pack in ice and salt for one hour or more after freezing.

For Banana Ice Cream, use the above recipe, except to substitute 1 teaspoon of lemon extract in place of vanilla. Mash three bananas to a smooth pulp with a silver fork and add to ice cream after removing dasher.

Coffee Ice Cream: Proceed as for Vanilla Ice Cream, using 1 cup of cold black coffee in place of 1 cup of water and ½ teaspoon vanilla in place of 1 tablespoon of vanilla.

Maple Nut Ice Cream: One of the most requested flavors, made just like the vanilla except mapeline flavoring is substituted for vanilla, and ½ cup of chopped nuts is added just after removing the dasher.

If you like chocolate flavoring, here's a recipe I'm sure will please you. Rich and creamy, full of satisfying chocolate flavoring, it's one kind of ice cream of which there can never be too much made.

Chocolate Ice Cream.

4 eggs separated
¾ cup sugar
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 pint cream, whipped
1½ ounces chocolate

Mix cornstarch and sugar. Stir into well beaten yolks. Mix and blend with milk, heat in double boiler, and cook until thick. Add chocolate and cook till blended. Cool, fold in beaten egg whites and whipped cream. Freeze.

Among the pleasant surprises in appearance and in flavor among ice creams is this one called Tutti-Frutti. If you're longing for a change from familiar favorites this one leaves nothing to be desired. To make it really gala for the youngsters, take a scoop of it, pop two raisins in for the eyes, a currant for the nose and a cherry for the mouth. It's a simple gesture but one which they'll appreciate for all it's worth.

Tutti Frutti Ice Cream.
(Serves 6)

⅔ cup sweetened condensed milk
½ cup water
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
¼ cup finely chopped maraschino cherries
¼ cup seeded raisins, finely chopped

Mix sweetened condensed milk, water and vanilla. Chill. Whip cream to custard-like consistency. Fold into chilled mixture. Freeze in freezing unit of refrigerator till half frozen. Scrape from tray, beat until smooth but not melted. Add chopped fruit. Replace in freezing unit until frozen.

No social is completely a success without an array of freshly baked, nice smelling cakes with their swirls of frosting piled high to tempt. One cake which will really give you a new high in reputation is this Walnut Torte, an old-fashioned favorite with new found fame.

Walnut Torte.

1 cup zweiback crumbs
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped walnuts
4 eggs separated
½ cup sugar
½ pint cream, whipped

Crush the zweiback crumbs, mix with baking powder and nuts. Beat egg yolks thick and lemon color, beat in sugar, and then gradually, the crumb nut mixture. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into two greased and floured tins and bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven 10 to 15 minutes. When mixture is light to touch and pulls from sides of pan it's done. Cool thoroughly. Put layers together with whipped cream and garnish with whole walnuts.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

LYNN SAYS:

Did you know that:

Ice creams should stand several hours to blend or ripen the many flavors combined in them? Each flavor will stand out separately if the mixture is not properly ripened.

Texture is affected by the method of freezing? Ice cream will be coarse and rough if frozen too quickly, whereas slower freezing improves texture. Before putting the cream in the freezer it should be properly whipped or it will be icy.

Richer mixtures give smoother textured ice creams? The amount of fat in the cream also affects the flavor. Richer ice creams have full bodied flavor.

Ice cream expands? If the ice cream is well made, it expands to at least one-third more than its original size, and that this has an important bearing on flavor. If frozen too rapidly, ice cream is prevented from increasing size.

Flavors should be lightly suggested, not pronounced? Amount and quality of extracts used are very apparent in the finished product.

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1941 NUMBER 83

PUBLIC ASKING FOR COURT HOUSE ELEVATOR

The public is becoming much interested in the installation of an elevator in the court house at Auburn, and not until now has the feeling been in favor of this expenditure of money, although recognized as a very needful addition to the court house equipment for the accommodation of service to the public.

Upon investigation we learn that this can be accomplished without an additional tax levy or bond issue, as the working balance in the county fund is such, that this expenditure could be made of possibly six or seven thousand dollars, without impairing the workings of the fund, and also that the up-keep can now be provided for without tax money, as two rooms are available for renting, which will take care of this monthly expense.

Under the circumstances, we feel that the taxpayers would welcome this added service for the public, and that the county council would feel free to allow an appropriation for this project, as everyone with business in the court house would be benefitted.

The board of commissioners has been approached many times by groups, urging the installation of an elevator, but not until now has the board even been sympathetic to the movement, because of the tax situation, and The News feels that the board is to be commended for this spirit of not wishing to impose any new taxes upon the public.

SHEFFER'S OPERATING TWO GROCERY STORES

Mrs. Grace Sheffer and son, Basil, are now operating two groceries, their latest and newest adventure being a store and filling station at Hicksville, on Defiance Avenue.

The property at Hicksville is owned by Charles Thayer and was leased. The operator not having any business experience was unable to make the business a success. Basil Sheffer, who had been operating a bread truck for the Seely Baking Co., gave up this work a week ago, to allow his time to be taken up by the grocery at St. Joe and Hicksville, in exchange of time with his mother.

Stock was removed from St. Joe store and placed in the Hicksville branch, and they are pleased with the new business to date.

Maxine Woodcox is clerking full time at St. Joe store.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Robert Brown, of Fairmount, Ind., has been the guest of Earl Kinsey since last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Zuber attended the Zuber Family reunion held in Riverside Park at Antwerp, Sunday.

Irritated at an order which would keep wheat raised on the Miami County Infirmary farm at Peru from being used by inmates until a $25.97 wheat penalty is paid, a Democratic and Republican commissioner of Miami County joined in issuing an order for the county agricultural adjustment administration office to move from the court house. Officially, the commissioners asserted, the order was due to on "overcrowded condition" in the court house, but from other sources it was learned that the action immediately followed receipt of the AAA quota penalty notice.

Mrs. Catherine Mahoney, of the Andrews Farm, recently returned from a week's cruise aboard The "GORDON C. GREEN" steamer, (the same type of steamboat as the one of which Mark Twain was pilot) up the Ohio and great Kanawaha Rivers, where she was the guest of Mary E. Lauer, of Middletown, Ohio. Mrs. Mahoney reports an ideal vacation period. The entire trip was a constant enfoldment of beauty, with long, quiet hours for resting, reading, eating and sleeping. There was delicious southern cooking, interesting shore excursions and scheduled daily entertainment for those who wish to participate. While speaking with one who had traveled abroad and in this country extensively, this person said the beauty of the Ohio River cannot be excelled by that of the Rhine in Germany.

DRAMATIC CLUB AT NEWVILLE

The St. Joe Dramatic Club and the Concordiers Orchestra entertained a large crowd at the Newville Chautauqua on Monday night. The orchestra (directed by Leslie Wilbern) gave a fine musical program of selections both popular and classical. The young people presented a fine appearance in their formal, evening attire.

The Dramatic Club followed with a mirthful, rural comedy, "Kidnapping Betty." The laughter and loud applause was proof that the crowd enjoyed the work of our local players. The following members of the club comprised the cast of characters: Leslie Wilbern, Derwood Ridgway, Harvey Hull, Catharine Bowser, Lena Meek, Hazel Schrader and Louise Sechler.

GET 'EM MADE

The War Department has undertaken to popularize as a national slogan: "Keep 'Em Flying," meaning, of course, American military and naval airplanes. The slogan has a noble and imperative objective and all Americans devotedly will support it.

But, it seems to us, to be somewhat premature because before the Army and Navy can "fly 'em," American industry has got to "make 'em." There is where the trouble is today. We are not making airplanes fast enough to assure the invulnerability of our defense. So putting first things first, we propose as an immediate slogan: "Get 'Em Made." We would have every man, woman and child in this Nation shouting it until the din becomes deafening. Perhaps, then, Washington will wake up to some of the realities of this crisis.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

EgTRA! EXTRA!

VERY YOUNG REPUBLICANS NOMINATE BAIRD JR. FOR PRESIDENT IN 1980.

"No Thirteenth Term for Roosevelt" Is Neophyte's Campaign Cry

Editor's Note: Charles A. Baird, secretary to Rep. George W. Gillie, has big news for "Gilt Off the Dome" readers this week.

Somewhere in Garfield Memorial Hospital, Washington, D. C.— August 18. (By Special Correspondent.)—With a campaign cry of "No Thirteenth Term for Roosevelt," the Very Young Republicans of America today nominated the nine-day-old Charles A. Baird, Jr. for President in 1980, as the band played "Rockabye Baby" and the assembled delegates squalled enthusiasticaly for the candidate of their choice.

In accepting the surprise nomination, after a sensational race to the convention hall via the stork, the blonde, blue-eyed White Hope of the Republican Party is reliably reported to have said:

"Gurgle gurgle gooo!" "We'll lick the Democrats if it takes us 40 years to do it.")

This inspired remark set off a 45-minute demonstration which was quelled only through the intervention of the National Guard, the Metropolitan Police, and various nurses, orderlies and hospital attendants.*

Newcomer in Politics

Candidate Baird is a camparative newcomer in the field of national politics, having entered the political arena at 2:20 A. M., Monday, August 4, 1941, weighing in at seven pounds, two ounces.

The excitement of the convention, which lasted long into the night, exhausted the young candidate, and he is now reported to be hiding out somewhere in Garfield Hospital under the strict care of his physician, Dr. Radford Brown.

Before going into seclusion, however, he issued the following statement to the press:

"Gurgle gurgle gooo!" (All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my angel mother.")

This was later revised to include his father and chief financial backer, who claims to have had some small part in launching the candidate on his political career.

Campaign Perambulator Crowded

Interest in the convention, which has no parallel in political history, reached fever heat in the Capital, with numerous old-line Republicans clamoring to board the campaign perambulator.

"It's the greatest thing that ever happened to the Republican Party," declared G. O. P. National Chairman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., "I've always said that what we need is more young blood —and Baird will certainly give us that."

Said Rep. George W. Gillie, the candidate's own Congressman:

"I have known this young man his entire lifetime, and I knew his father before him. He comes from good Scotch stock and you can't beat the Scotch—not without getting up before breakfast."

This statement was echoed by Representative Halleck, Grant, Springer, Harness, Landis, Johnson, and Wilson, and Senator Raymond E. Willis all of whom expressed themselves as being opposed to a thirteenth term for Roosevelt and pledged their unqualified support of Baird's candidacy.

"Indiana is proud and honored to claim Charles A. Baird, Jr. as a native son," declared Senator Willis before packed galleries in the Senate chamber, as the candidate's father paced the floor. "I predict that he will carry every state in the Union, including the Solid South."

Backed by Organized Labor

Candidate Baird also was endorsed by the Americn Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organization.

"Baird's Labor record is unassailable," declared President William Green of the A. F. of L. in a terse statement. "In fact it might be said, without fear of contradiction, that Baird is a product of the Labor movement."

This assertion was substantiated by a groan from the candidate's mother, the former Ruth Alice Ream, of Fort Wayne.

President Roosevelt could not be reached for a statement on this surprising political development, having departed the city hurriedly for a secret vacation cruise along the New England coast. White House spokesman Stephen Early, however, said that he expressed the President's sentiments when he declared:

"Who is this guy Baird?" Never heard of him!"

White House correspondents were extended the unusual privilege of beiny authorised to publish this statement in direct quotes.

Platform Announced

From temporary campaign headquarters, V. Y. R. leaders announced the platform on which their candidate will run, after first learning how to walk.

Baird is against taxes, war, two o'clock feedings, Communism, Soliaiism, birth control, oatmeal in any form, free trade, free love, taxes, war, spinach, Secretary Ickes, frequent bathing, taxes, war, Hitler, Mussolini, Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Baird favors ice ceram with every meal, a full dinner pail, two perambulators in every garage, free milk, $30 every Thursday, peace, prosperity and pensions for everybody.

The candidate will deliver his formal acceptance speech in about two weeks from the steps of his boyhood home, 3808 Legation St. N. W., Washington, D. C., and will broadcast at frequent intervals thereafter.

He announced that the subject of his first campaign speech will be:

"Gurgle Gurgle gooo!"

MAKE EFFORT TO CURB SHEEP KILLING DOGS

A reader of The News, who has suffered a great loss of sheep by dogs entering their flock and killing and injuring them to such an extent that they were compelled to sell off their remaining sheep, sent us the following excerpt of the law governing dogs. The Hoosier Farmer under date of July, 1941, published an article written by T. I. Ferris, president and manager of the Indiana Wool Growers Association.

Mr. Ferris writes in part as follows:—House Bill No 120 as passed by the General Assembly of 1937, was the result of work done by the Wool Growers Association, and a committee from the Indiana Farm Bureau. SECTION 4, provides: It shall be the duty of the township assessor to keep a record of all dogs that shall not be paid for, by whom owned, harbored, or kept, and the number of such dogs and the kind, whether male or female, and he shall report the same to the township trustee of his township at the time of making his other report, as above provided, whose duty it shall be to report the same before the second day of June each year to the prosecuting attorney of his county, or district, or his deputy, who shall bring an action before any justice of the peace of his county or in the circuit or superior or any city or municipal court against such persons, and upon conviction thereof, he shall receive the sum of five dollars ($5.00) for each case so prosecuted and such fee shall be charged as part of the judgment and cost against such person so prosecuted.

SECTION 5 provides:— If any township trustee or township assessor shall fail to perform the duties as above provided, or if any assessor or trustee shall fail or refuse to make a complete report within the time specified in this act, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00.)

SECTION 7 provides:—It shall be unlawful for any person to keep, harbor, board, feed, or permit any dog to stay about his, her, or their premises, if such dog does not have a tag attached to the collar worn by such dog, as provided by this act. Any person violating any provision of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than five or more than twenty-five dollars ($25.)

SECTION 14 provides:—On and after the 15th day of June, of each year, every dog on which the tax has not been paid as herein provided, is hereby declared to be a public nuisance and it shall be the duty of the sheriff of every county, the marshal of every town, the police officers of every city and constables of every township and the members of the state police force or game warden to kill or cause such dogs to be killed.

FARMERS WAKE UP. A rigid enforcement of this law can be secured if you will assert your rights under this law. VOTE FOR THE MEN WHO ENFORCE THE LAW FOR YOUR PROTECTION. Read Section 14 over again.

Willard Hurni, who made the installation Tuesday says he is confident the public will welcome this idea rather than being compelled to throw the trash on the street.

Death took a life-long resident of DeKalb County Thursday morning, Jacob B. Coy, age 90. Mr. Coy died at 4:30 A. M. at his home in Auburn, after an illness of two weeks' duration. Senility was given as the cause.

Mr. Coy was born October 11, 1850, two miles south of Auburn, and he never lived outside of DeKalb County. Twenty-one years ago he moved to Auburn. During his active life he was a farmer.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. E. H. E. Theiroff, who lives in New Jersey, and Miss Sadie Coy, at home, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Kutsner, and Mrs. Martha Moore, both of Auburn, and Mrs. Rebecca Miller, of Jackson Township. His wife, Maria, died in 1934.

Jackson Township will have four schools operating this term, namely: Jackson Center, Hopewell, Comeskey, and Magginis.

A good way to use left-over rolls and biscuits is to scoop out the inside, butter the shell and fill with a thickened meat, chicken or vegetable mixture. To give a different flavor, mix butter and chili sauce together and spread on the inside of hollowed rolls. Fill the center with creamed salmon, or shrimp, if your family approve, and bake the rolls for ten minutes in a moderate oven.

GILT OFF THE DOME

By CHARLES BAIRD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Candidate B Jr., whose no-thirteenth-term campaign for President on the Very Young Republican ticket pushed the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting out of the headlines last week, has asked us to convey a very personal message to his friends in the Fourth Indiana District through the medium of the St. Joe News.

He being the boss, and his word being law, we could hardly refuse him, so here it is.

Candidate B. Jr. wants his friends in Indiana to know that he is very grateful for their generous letters of congratulations, and their universal expressions of support. He desires to state that he is overwhelmed by the response to his candidacy, and that as soon as he learns to write he intends to reply personally to all of his supporters.

THE YOUNG candidate wishes to extend a special word of thanks to Senator Willis for his very appropriate campaign contribution, a pink and white leather Republican elephant; to Congressmn Gillie, and to the Republican editors of the Fourth District who have adopted him as their "favorite son."

He also desires to thank the organizers of various B. Jr.-for-President clubs, and those Democrats who, putting country before party, have announced their support of his candidacy. He says he hopes they will all live to vote for him in 1980.

STARTING next week, B. Jr. will have to carry on his campaign without the assistance of the writer, who is leaving Washington with his boss, Congressman Gillie, for a three week visit to Northeastern Indiana. We are pleased to announce, however, that the candidate has recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital, and now appears to be quite capable of taking care of himself.

THE HOUSE of Representatives having recessed until mid-September, Congressman Gillie is planning to return to the Fourth District for an official tour which will take him to LaGrange, Angola, Auburn, Garrett, Kendallville, Albion, Columbia City, Bluffton and Decatur.

The Congressman plans to establish temporary offices for a few hours in each of these cities, where he will be available to any and all constituents who desire his services. The exact itinerary of his tour will be announced in the near future.

IN THE meantime, readers will have a brief vacation from "Gilt off the Dome." If too many objections are not received, business will be resumed at the old stand in about a month.

School Supplies at News Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bunnell, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pugsley. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Lindenmayer, also of Fort Wayne and Richard and Iris Green, of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Tussing, of Findlay, Ohio, were guests in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham, Wednesday and Thursday. Friday visitors were C. J. Foltz, wife and son, Clyde and Monroe Foltz, of near Defiance, Ohio.

Announcement has been made that John Drexler, president of the Superior Coach Corp. of Garrett, has completed negotiations for the purchase of a factory building in Goshen and it is expected the company will occupy the building about September 1. Mr. Drexler lives at Elkhart and moved the trailer plant to Garrett last March. It occupies the former B. & O. car shops building and has about 70 employes.

Dr. O. W. Hiner, of Butler, has designed and manufactured an operating table for use in the operation of horses. Dr. Hiner attended the meeting of the American Veterinary Medical Association at Indianapolis last week and placed the table in an exhibit. The table is built strong and sturdy and has many features of convenience not found on other makes of tables. Dr. Hiner has made other veterinarians tools of his own design, but this table surpasses any of his previous efforts.

The following is taken from Bulletin No. 92 sent out by the Indiana Alcoholic Beverages Division at Indianapolis "Under the provisions of Paragraph 13, Section 31 of the 1941 alcoholic beverages law, a minor under the age of eighteen years is prohibited from congregating or loitering, or frequenting or visiting any dance hall, concert hall, or place of entertainment where any alcoholic beverages are sold, bartered, deliverd or given away, unless accompanied by his or her parents."

Repairs to the dam of the hydroelectric plant at Nevada Mills will provide a higher water level for Lake James, it is believed, as a result of a conference between Merle F. Tucker, the Angola representative of the Northern Indiana Public Service Company which owns the electric plant, and William Fruechtenicht, president of the Glen Eden Association at Lake James. The dam in Jimmerson Creek holds back the water in Lake James but it had fallen into a state of disrepair which permitted much water to be wasted this Summer. The hydro-electric plant has not been used since May 18.

School Supplies at News Office.

Mrs. John Beard, of Waterloo, was a guest of Mrs. Jane Randall, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Chambers, of Hobart spent the past week here in the D. B. and Floyd Ridgway homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Pixley, of Pleasant Lake, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. Leon Kees and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kinsey, of Jackson, Michigan, visited his mother, Mrs. G. A. Kinesy, and other relatives Saturday and Sunday.

The meeting announced two weeks ago to celebrate the improvement of State Road No. 1, at the Alton Grove, has been called off by the local committee. Perhaps plans will be made early in the Spring for such a gathering.

The squirrel season will open on September 2nd. In the southern zone, hunters report plenty of squirrels, but due to the dry weather it is almost impossible for hunters to get within shooting range before the squirrels take to cover.

W. D. Herrick, Postmaster at Farmer City, Illinois, and family, were in St. Joe Monday of this week. They called at the local post office and other places while here. He is the son of George Herrick formerly of Newville and this is his first visit here in twenty years.

Carl Carpenter made the purchase of a herd of thirty head of Hereford heifer calves, Monday, and they were delivered Tuesday to his farm by E. D. Sowers, of Columbia City, who is dealing in cattle, shipped direct from the Mason Ranch in Texas. The calves average 415 pounds. Fall pasture will be plentiful over the Carpenter farm with another good shower.

The stalk of corn exhibited in front of News office has caused much comment for the season has been severe on corn in this section. Jesse Loftus brot the stock in, which is about 10 feet tall and bears two large ears. He has ten acres of such corn and is being grown on the Harry Kees farm. Many farmers state they can equal this exhibit, but until they produce something as good or better, Mr. Loftus can claim the honor as "Corn King."

Roy Koch, Mrs. Lela Northrup and F. B. Leighty and wife attended the closing open air musical program for the season of 1941, at Camp Limberlost on Oliver Lake, Sunday afternoon. The program was divided into four sections, chorus, cello, band and symphony orchestra, and under the most efficient leadership. The young people exhibited remarkable skill as musicians and the audience fully appreciated the program.

The kindest man in St. Joe is that one who curbs an apetite in Summer so his wife won't have to spend so much time in the kitchen.

The best way to have folks stop at railroad crossings is to keep a steam shovel or sign painter working there all the time.

Many an invester has discovered that the Stock Exchange is where you exchange a stock of money for a stock of experience.

When you speak of a prominent character as "the man of the hour," you don't necessarily mean that he is a clock watcher.

If we had to wait as long for a St. Joe doctor when we are sick, as he has to wait for his money, there wouldn't be enough room in the cemeteries to take care of all of us.

You may be hot today but think of how you are going to look back on this heat wave when the thermometer hits zero and the driveway needs salt.

Nature looks out for us for if she grew cantaloupes as large as watermelons we couldn't keep them all in the refrigerator.

The most uncommon thing, is the general misuse of common sense.

Some folks just won't be satisfied, they make a million and sit and worry how to double their money.

William Strouse says that it looks to him as though one half of the world is busy killing their neighbors and the other half is busy making money.

History shows that England often has lost a war before she finally won it, and it sounds like the ninth inning with the bases loaded and two men out.

Too often the fellow who headed the honor roll in college, looks like a dub in the school of experience.

PEP 'EM UP

A subscriber mentions his dislike of a certain radio program and feels that the general public grows tired of the same sort of thing year in and year out. He hopes that in the Fall the radio will start their new schedules with a change of some out-moded talent and also programs. Perhaps radio does need new ideas and new voices. Other fields have to keep on their toes in order to hold the public interest for a great length of time. Colleges are offering splendid educational programs to the public. The world of music is giving better and better programs. Civic round tables and town meetings are constantly bringing new features to their towns. Surely the radio must improve certain programs and add new names to supply the public demand and stimulate the popular interest of their radio listeners with a variety of entertainment that isn't too many years old.

SWEET HOME

A renter still makes a house a home but perhaps you have wondered whether the author in writing "Home, Sweet Home" had in mind the rented dwelling or that abode that was owned, labored for and maintained as a foundation for a family today and those to come after. A heritage to pass on to another's keeping. Today more people have money to invest in property. More people are buying homes and paying on homes mortgaged during the leaner years. A town such as ours likes to have most of its homes owned. A home owner is going to stay in the town, be more interested in local politics, more concerned over taxes and more apt to take part in civic responsibilities. You take more time with a house if you own it. You make it as attractive as possible for you are doing it for yourself and your own pleasure and satisfaction. We wish that we could all figure out ways to safely and securely be home owners and derive that sense of security and happiness that comes with it.

LEARN BY MAIL

There is a branch of education that we don't mention much in The News and it certainly isn't because it isn't worthy of conversation since it is teaching about three-quarters of a million young people each year. Maybe we don't discuss correspondence schools because we don't know a lot about them. This teaching by mail has proven important and effective in the lives of many people. Some small town schools subscribe to such a course of study for those pupils who want certain subjects and the schools find it fits their needs rather than hire an instructor for the special subject needed. There are 400 such correspondence groups listed who furnish this service, with a total of four million men and women on their rosters as alumni. Those who wish for an education and desire it enough will find an answer to their problem somehow!

FOOD PACKAGES

The American Red Cross has for some time been sending food packages to war prisoners in foreign camps, and since the inauguration, they have received letters of gratitude from the prisoners who have appreciated their thoughtfulness and generosity. Thru the Geneva international agreement regarding prisoners of war, these food packages are handed by Red Cross representatives to the prisoners and while many packages are addressed to certain ones, most of them are sent to be placed in the hands of the needy. The greatest number of these boxes go to the British but others are given to Canadians, French, Polish, Czechs, Australians, Greeks and Norwegians, who pray for their share of the bounty. Postal cards are coming to headquarters thanking the donors and mentioning certain items that would bring extra pleasure such as soap, wash cloths, small towels and paper face tissues which make ideal hankies. The boxes cost $2.75 to pack and contain foods that are chosen for their health value. Eighty thousand prisoners boxes have been sent by our American Red Cross and twenty thousand more are being packed to go. With Canadians busy in their own Red Cross parcel packing, and with the British Red Cross adding its contribution, many sons and bothers are enjoying the thoughtfulness and kindness of charitable souls, of whom there are many the world over, thank heavens!

AUBURN LIVESTOCK MARKET REPORT

Receipts of livestock for this week's auction were the highest since April. Hogs, 200 to 240, $11.25 to $11.30. Fat sows, $8.55 to $9.10. There is not much call for feeder shoats weighing under 100, however from 100 to 150 pound hogs go back to the country at $10.65. $13.00 seemed to be the top on veals although some second line calves made this price while all good calves sold in a price range from $12.60 to $13.00. The top dairy cow brought $78.00. Common dairy slaughter bulls weighing from 700 to 800, $7.00 to $7.25. The best butcher cow was consigned to Jim Rugman weighing 1080 and selling at $6.70. Most any slaughter cow brought $6.00 or above with the low sale going to a yellow cutter cow at $5.35.

HOMEMAKERS BUSY STORING FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Many Indiana homemakers are extremely busy these days canning their Winter supplies of fruits and vegetables in order that their families will be well-fed and healthy, reports Miss Lois Oberhelman, Purdue University extension nutritionist.

Most family gardens have green beans, says Miss Oberhelman, who gives the following instructions for canning beans to preserve the maximum food value as well as flavor and texture.

It is most important to select green beans at their optimum stage of maturity and to remember the rule, "Two hours from the garden to the can" both for the sake of preserving food value but also to insure good keeping qualities are not so good. However, there should be no difficulty in keeping the beans if the directions for canning are carefully followed.

Wash and remove the strings from either the green or wax beans, then cut into pieces of desired size. Add boiling water to cover and simmer uncovered for about five minutes or until the beans are wilted and will bend without breaking. Pack hard into containers, cover with hot water, and add one-half teaspoon of salt to each pint.

Process immediately in the pressure cooker if one is available, or if the boiling water method is used, care should be taken upon opening the vegetables that they are thoroughly cooked before tasting. Beans should be processed in the pressure cooker for 30 minutes at about 10 pounds pressure.

Care should also be exercised in cooling the beans after they have been removed from the cooker in that they should be set with approximately five inches space between each jar in order to allow plenty of air to circulate around each jar and to permit the jars to cool quickly. All vegetables and fruit should be stored in a cool, dry, dark place to insure best keeping quality.

PHEASANTS RELEASED BY CONSERVATION CLUBS

The Conservation Club of Spencerville released 186 pheasants last Saturday, St. Joe 175, and Mooresville, 196, all within the boundaries of the two organizations. The baby chicks were furnished by the state and clubs are paid for all birds released by their wardens in the respective territories.

Farmers are eager for the birds to be released, as they like to see them about their farm and hear their call in the morning and evening, and adds to the sport of hunting.

In a quiet ceremony at 8 o'clock Saturday evening in the Lutheran Parsonage, Miss Opal Likens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Likens, of west of St. Joe, became the bride of Mr. Woodrow E. Hursh, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hursh, of Spencerville, in a single ring ceremony performed by Rev. Frank Stevenson.

The bride, who was attended by her cousin, was dressed in a blue crepe afternoon dress with navy accessories and wore a corsage of gardenias. The bridesmaid wore shades of rose with matching accessories and a gardenia corsage.

The young couple are housekeeping at 1304 So. Main St., Auburn. The bride is an employee of Rieke's and the groom is employed by the General Electric at Fort Wayne.

According to Wilbur Yeiser, with the suggested tightening of gasoline and factories perhaps too busy to manufacture bicycles, we may have to make walking fashionable again.

SPENCERVILLE

Miss Evelyn Shook returned Saturday from Milwaukee, Wis., where she had spent the past week the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shook.

Anyone liking band music will profit by going to Cedarville Park on Saturday and listening to the band festival which is held annually for Allen County High Schools.

Miss Eleanor Chaney, Mr. Russell Nusbaum, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nusbaum returned from a weeks's fishing trip in Canada and Northern Michigan, bringing with them a boiler of fine fish.

A picnic was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Witt at Spencerville Sunday. At the noon hour a basket dinner was enjoyed by all. The guests were members of the Showers Corners U. B. young married people's class.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dean were at Port Clinton and Catawba Bay, Ohio, Saturday afternoon, but found Lake Erie to rough to cross by ferry safely. There has been an abundance of rain on the peninsula and there is a huge crop of vegetables and fruits, especially peaches. However, the farmers in this district seem allergic to tourists and sell their products accordingly.

TRENARY HOME HOST TO JUNIOR LEADERS

The DeKalb County Junior Leaders Club met Monday night at the home of Forrest Trenary, three miles northeast of St. Joe, with 39 persons present, including junior leaders, adult leaders and guests. In the absence of the president, Lawrence Boger who is ill with mumps, Mr. Trenary was in charge.

John Haynes, of Keyser Township, led the group in the Lord's Prayer and then the roll call was given. Twenty five junior leaders answered by giving the number of projects they had taken.

Several suggestions were offered concerning the 4-H Club booth at the DeKalb County Fair this year. Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent, and A. J. Smith, vocational teacher at Waterloo, led discussions on 4-H scholarships and trip awards. Max Heffly, of Auburn, reported on the vegetable judging contest held recently at Columbus, Ohio.

Eileen Carpenter, of Butler, who is a student at Purdue University, told how she earned her Purdue scholarship and also how she won a trip to the national 4-H congress in 1940. Miss Moore showed slide pictures of 4-H judging and demonstration contests.

The program was in charge of Eileen Carpenter, Clare and Annabell Bonecutter and Thelma Mutzfeld, all of Butler. The next meeting will be September 15 at Waterloo.

FARMERS HOLD PROTEST MEETING SATURDAY NIGHT

A mass meeting of the DeKalb County Marketing Quota Protest Association to be addressed by Oscar B. Smith, of Frankfort, Indiana, will be heard in the assembly room of the court house in Auburn, August 23 at 8:00 P. M.

This is a tri-state meeting for all of Northern Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. No entertainment, no frills, just business.

AUTO ROLLS DOWN BANK

Bruce and Kent Woodcox experienced a real thrill Sunday night when their panel truck rolled down the bank at the Wabash crossing at the Marion Jennings farm, north of St. Joe. The boys were driving north and after dark. Upon crossing the Wabash they failed to cross at the angle with the road, not being familiar with the place, and they drove off the road on the north and west side of the road. The car rolled down the bank without injury to the boys, but the car shows marks of the accident. D. W. Yeiser was called to pull the truck out.

TO ADMINISTER ESTATE

Lewis L. Freeman was appointed by County Clerk Murray A. Steele Tuesday as administrator of the estate of the late Rickay M. Peters of Jackson Township, who died last June 28, leaving $50 in personal property and $1,200 in real estate. The heirs are three children, Herman and Martin J. Peters and Emma Bishop. The administrator filed $100 bond, with Martin Peters as surety.

U. S. MARINES ONE BIG FAMILY

Old time sea soldiers remember when it was said: "The U. S. Marines are one big family." The phrase which became nearly obsolete with the sudden expansion of the Marine Corps in 1917 is likely to be revived.

The blood in every U. S. Marine is being classified as Type A., Type B., or Universal O., with a view to grouping them according to their respective blood types. Theoretically, men of the same blood are more likely to think and react alike and to be of the same temperament.

Even though this theory is yet to be proved, it is certain that the grouping of such men into separate units in time of combat would be desirable. Doctors would know at once that all wounded men from a certain unit could be given one of the various blood types and tank of blood obtained from donors would be available at dressing stations.

These special groupings are still in the experimental stages, and it will be interesting to note the effect this approach to consanguinity will have on future generations of sea soldiers.

Should the experiments be successful the U. S. Marines, or at least certain units, will have a closer blood kinship than the Marine Corps when it was known as "one big family."

FOR FALL SOWING

If you sow pansy seeds in August and early September, you will have lovely, early blooms in the Spring. Pansy plants aren't expensive but by sowing seed you can have hundreds instead of a small basket full of them. Peat moss added to the soil is especially good as this retains the moisture and that is necessary in raising pansies. Seeeds are very small so you can sow them with just a thin covering of soil. Protect them through the Winter by leaves or straw.

Eight juniors and two adult members of Hopewell Church, attended the U. B. Training School at Hillsdale camp grounds, last week, returning Tuesday. Miss Dora Carnahan was one of the teachers in the camp school. Conference is in session this week.

Because of the metal shortage for non-defense manufacturing, discussions are now under way in the office of James M. Tucker, secretary of state, to make future plates either smaller, more durable or perhaps of a different metal than steel. In Michigan, it was learned, the state plans to make its 1942 plates to last two years. The plates will have at the bottoms the numerals "42" to denote the year of license, and in 1943 a small steel strip bearing the numerals "43" will be issued to be bolted over the original numbers.

Few things in literature are more touching than David's lament for Absalom "O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! Would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!" The fortunes of war have called upon the Duce to lay away his second-born male, at the age of twenty-three. For a moment, the world looks upon him with the sympathy that always goes out to a bereaved parent. On the other hand, he is simply drinking of the cup that he has pressed to the lips of many others.

The fashions of war change, like the fashions in clothes. As to the fighters of our grandfathers day, the volunteers looked down upon those who came in under draft, and both gave cold shoulder to the soldier whose patriotism had been stimulated by pay as a substitute. Now, the rank and file of the army is just one big family, all members of which can lay claim to the same degree of respectability: though to say that it is one big and entirely happy family would be drawing unwarranted conclusion.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

The annual value of coal mined in the United States is greater than all the other metals combined. It is 5½ times the value of all gold, 22 times the value of all silver, 7 times the value of all copper, and 7 times the value of all iron mined annually in the U. S.

The energy in a pound of coal is 2½ to 3 times the energy in our most powerful high explosives, such as TNT.

A stream of coal 2 feet in diameter, flowing no faster than the Niagara River (about 4 miles per hour) will supply as much energy as all the water that tumbles over Niagara Falls.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1941 NUMBER 35

NO POOR TAX LEVIED FOR SPENCER AND JACKSON

Six townships will be free of poor relief tax levies in 1942, the annual budget prepared by County Auditor Burley Ensley shows. In 1941 there were five.

The townships in which no rate will be fixed for next year are Franklin, Jackson, Spencer, Stafford, Troy, and Union. Their estimated needs will be met by balances on hand

The estimated expenditures in these townships, including operating balances, and the estimated balances on hand December 31 of this year follow: Franklin, $2,933 and $3.372; Jackson, $1,200 and $2,197; Spencer, $900 and $1,187; Stafford, $1,248 and $1,310; Troy, $30 and $725; Union, $1,241 and $15,637.

Levies set up for the other nine townships follow: Butler, 2 cents on the $100 valuation; Concord, 12; Fairfield, 4; Grant, 25; Keyser, 54; Newville, 20; Richland, 12; Smithfield, 26; and Wilmington, 8. Their estimated expenditures in 1942 and their estimated balances on hand Dec. 31, 1941, follow: Butler, $1,125 and $956; Concord, $3,871 and $2,295; Fairfield, $1,800 and $1,371; Grant, $4,800 and $5,333; Keyser, $27,333 and $4,999; Newville, $1,998 and $847; Richland, $2,850 and $834; Smithfield, $3,852 and $247; Wilmington, $5,475 and $2,847. An estimate also is made that Grant township will be required to reimburse the county $533 for poor relief funds advanced.

The total estimated amount needed in 1942 is $60,656, against $42,840 spent in 1940 and $25,000 estimated to be spent in 1941. However, the estimates are subject to review by the county tax adjustment board and the state board of tax commissioners and some reductions in rates are probable. A law passed by the general assembly last Winter makes the allowance of medical aid for persons on the county welfare rolls a function on the welfare department, effective Jan. 1, 1941. This will cause an increase in the budget of the welfare board, but a reduction in the outlay by the township trustees. Some of the trustees met with difficulty in estimating the amount required for poor relief in 1942 on account of this change. The law prohibits the disbursement of funds for poor relief in excess of the amount appropriated. However, provision is made for additional appropriations if the amount in the budget proves insufficent. In the case of casualty, accident or other emergency, a trustee is authorized to contract such obligations as required.

GROUP MAKES TRIP TO WAJAMEGA, MICHIGAN

A group of twenty-two teachers and students of the St. Joe high school during the early 1900s were pleasantly entertained last Saturday night and Sunday by Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dixon at their home in Wajamega, Michigan. Dr. Dixon was superintendent of the St. Joe school from 1901 to 1903. He is now supervisor of the Michigan State Hospital for epileptics, an institution conceived in 1913 while Dr. Dixon was state health commissioner, and developed to its present status under his supervision.

Those from St. Joe vicinity who enjoyed the hospitality of Dr. and Mrs. Dixon were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kees, Mrs. Ines Hadsell, Merritt Sechler and Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty.

Also included in the group were Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hadsell, Peru, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Dio Dermott, Constantine, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ulm, Butler, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, Auburn, Ind.; Mrs. Nettie Baker and Mrs. Lela Northrup, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Lee O. Tustison, Defiance, Ohio.

The group arrived at the Dixon home late Saturday afternoon to enjoy 6 o'clock dinner. The evening hours were happily spent in reminiscence of days spent at the old school on the hill, and renewal of threads of acquaintance which have held through the years.

Following Sunday morning breakfast, Dr. and Mrs. Dixon conducted their guests on a tour of a portion of the 1500-acre tract where in hospitals, pleasant cottages and dormatories are housed approximately 1500 patients, and the staff of nearly 400 employees who conduct the work of the institution.

High spots of the trip took the group to the administration building and the receiving hospital where patients ranging from infants to 80 years of age in various stages of epilepsy are receiving the ministrations of the state of Michigan; the power plant and pumping station producing light, power and sewage disposal facilities for the hospital city; the school building where boys and girls of school age are privileged modern educational facilities, surrounded with equipment adapted to the handicapped status of their lives; to one of large cottages housing girls of school age, with dining room, sleeping wards, and play rooms; to the commodious building with living quarters for members of the hospital staff.

During the afternoon the group left for their several homes, conscious of a very happy and profitable week-end at the hands of the perfect hosts—Dr. and Mrs. Dixon. Experiences of this trip will linger as pleasant memories through the years.

Regrets were received from Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woodcox who were unable to attend. Their inivtation to hold the 1942 reunion at their rural home near Coburn's Corners was unanimously arccepted.

WILLIAMS COUNTY FAIR MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

The mammoth show staged this year by the Music Corporation of America will be "Stars Over America." Isham Jones and orchestra in person, starring Rufe Davis, together with five other acts which include a line of 12 Dorothy Byton Dancers, also will appear at the Williams County Fair, Montpelier, Ohio.

For the benefit of Fair patrons who wish to dance, arrangements have been made to stage a dance after the regular night shows on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 11 and 12. Dancing from 10 P. M. to 1 A. M.

Nothing pleases the average Fair patron more than a really good musical and dance show. It is something that one has to go to the larger cities to witness. The Fair directors have arranged to bring the second big name band to the Williams County Fair.

Wednesday, Sept. 10, will be Children's Day. All school children will be admitted free and special prices will be free to everyone on that day to enjoy the splendid school program which has been arranged.

Thursday will be the start of three fine harness races. The larger purses offered by the Society have made it possible to secure the fastest horses in the country. Pari-mutuel betting will be of interest to many race fans.

Mrs. Forrest Burright, of Oregon, will be here with her fine stable of horses.

Many new shows have been booked for the Midway. Mable Mack's Famous Wild West Show will occupy a prominent place on the Midway. The Hopi Indian show will be back again this year, also a free movie featuring Fred Waring. This is a 1½ hour show and is free to all.

The Flying Romans, a sensational high act is booked for the entire week.

Saturday night we close with the Boone County Jamboree, starring Lulu Belle and Scotty, Hugh Cross and his Radio Pals, Denny Slofoot, Texas Ruby, Curley Fox and others.

GILLIE TO FILL VACANCIES AT TWO ACADEMIES FROM DISTRICT

Plans for a competitive examination to fill four vacancies at the U. S. Military and Naval Academies from the Fourth Congressional District were announced today by Congressman George W. Gillie.

The examination, open to all young men in the District between the ages of 17 and 21, will be held at 9 A. M. Saturday, October 4, at the Federal Building in Fort Wayne. Its purpose will be to determine the selection of candidates for the following 1942 appointments:

West Point—One Principal and two Alternates.

Annapolis—Three Principals and nine Alternates.

Appointments will be awarded to the four candidates receiving the highest grades, and alternate posts will go to the next 11 boys on the list, Congressman Gillie said. The candidates thus selected will be eligible to take the regular entrance examination at the two academies next Spring.

The examination is being conducted by the Civil Service Commission at Congressman Gillie's request, in line with his policy of removing academy appointments from politics and placing them on a competitive basis.

Appointments will be made to fill vacancies to be created next year by graduation from Annapolis of Midshipmen Lewis W. Squires, Donald H. Spangler and Robert B. Childers, and the graduation from West Point of Cadet Fred C. Tucker. All were appointed from the Fourth District by former Congressman Farley.

In a letter to prospective candidates, Congressman Gillie states:

"In view of the fact that four Principals and 11 Alternates are to be selected on the basis of this examination, your chances of winning an appointment are exceptionally good.

"This is the largest number of vacancies the Fourth District has ever been called upon to fill at one time. It represents a real challenge to the young men of the District—a challenge I feel sure they will patriotically accept."

Those desiring to take the examination should write at once to: Hon. George W. Gillie, House Office Building, Washington, D. C. Letters of admission to the examination, together with full instructions, will be sent to all applicants.

Mrs. Lu Reign Strong has sent in a stalk of corn that equals the one displayed by Jesse Loftus. What we want now is a taller stalk with at least two ears of corn. Carl Carpenter brought in two ears, well developed, but not record ears for this territory, but at least record ears for this year.

An estimated loss of $2,000 resulted from a fire that destroyed a seven-room house a mile north of Norris Chapel in Wilmington township Sunday evening about 9 o'clock. The farm is owned by Wm. Myers and the dwelling was occupied by Grover Boger and family. The fire started in the kitchen but the origin is unknown.

A temporary injunction and restraining order was granted in court at Wabash, Ind., Monday in the suit of Leroy Dennis and others against James Givens, Indiana state treasurer and others, preventing collection of the $1 a day tax on "free movies" which the Indiana attorney general has declared to come under the classification of "wagon shows." The court ordered notice given to the defendants that hearing on petition to make the injunction permanent would be held here on September 15. The contention of plaintiffs is that the "wagon show" tax was passed originally to apply to "medicine shows" which entered the state. The movies, it is contended, are operated by residents of the state.

CONGRESSMAN GILLIE TO VISIT AUBURN AND GARRETT

Taking advantage of the current recess of Congress to make an official tour of his district, Congressman George W. Gillie has announced that he will visit Auburn and Garrett to confer with citizens of DeKalb County and give personal attention to any problems in which they may be interested.

Congressman Gillie will be at the Court House in Auburn on Thursday, September 4, from 10 a. m. until noon, and has extended a cordial welcome to all residents of this vicinity who may desire to confer with him at that time. He will be at the New Garrett Hotel in Garrett from 3 until 5 p. m. on the same day.

The Fourth District Congressman, who is ready to give his advice and assistance to any constituents having business with the Government. He will be accompanied by his secretary, Charles A. Baird.

In announcing plans for his visit, Congressman Gillie stressed the fact that he is especially anxious to obtain the views and suggestions of DeKalb County citizens on foreign policy, the national defense program, and other matters which may come before Congress.

"In these times of national crisis," he explained, "it is of the utmost importance for citizens to make known their views to their representatives at Washington, for it is only through a genuine voicing of opinion that our Government can continue to function as a democracy.

"It is my duty as a member of Congress to be truly representative, but to carry out this responsibility it is necessary to know what my people think about foreign policy, defense, taxes and other major issues of the hour.

"For this reason I hope the citizens of DeKalb County will express their opinions to me freely during my forthcoming visit. This may be the last opportunity I will have to confer with them for several months to come."

Congressman Gillie's tour of the district also is taking him to LaGrange, Angola, Columbia City, Albion, Bluffton, and Decatur. He plans to return to Washington before Congress resumes business on September 15.

LOG of the UNITED STATES MARINES

WIND-BLOWN ISLAND MARINE CORPS BASE

When a typhoon swept across the island of Guam the other day it left a trail of disaster in its wake. It also meant additional hours of hard work for the U. S. Marines whose barracks were reported to be badly damaged in the storm.

As a rule life moves along tranquilly in this little tropical island, 30 miles long and from 7 to 10 miles wide. The easy-going natives are called Chamorros, and their language as well as their nationality is a mixture of Spanish, Chamorro, Filipino, and American.

The island is under the rule of the Navy Department and the Marines see that the laws are enforced. They guard the two small navy yards there and also form the Insular Patrol, each marine covering a territory of from ten to twenty miles and being responsible for good order in his district.

Copra and cocoanut oil are the principal exports, but the island also produces a number of tropical fruits. Its 4,300 head of cattle include 1,432 water buffalo. Army and Navy transports furnish supplies for the Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

Other typhoons have swept over Guam without greatly disturbing its approximately 18,000 native inhabitants. They worker together in groups and the damage was soon repaired. Most of their houses are of nipa construction easily built and as easily destroyed.

The U. S. Marines seldom remain longer than a year or two on the island and, except for their isolated position, they have virtually all of the comforts which may be found on the mainland.

Get Set for Life with Navy training

NAVY WEATHER MAN. Interested in this unique, fast-growing field? Navy training is second to none.

OPTICAL INSTRUMENTS call for skilled repair work. You can train in the Navy for this big-pay field.

ARC WELDERS AT WORK. Some of the best electric arc welders in the country are Navy-trained. This is but one of the 45 trades you can learn. When you learn in the Navy, in later life you're always in demand.

EXPERTS IN RADIO do interesting work. In civil life the pay is high. Let the Navy teach you radio work.

DO YOU KNOW that in every trade, profession and business there are successful men—men who earn five, ten and even twenty thousand dollars a year—who will tell you that they owe their success largely to the training they received in the United States Navy?

There are three good reasons for this. First, Navy service develops the essential qualities of leadership, efficiency and accuracy which are the backbone of success in or out of the Navy.

Second, you can't beat Navy instruction. The American Navy is the finest in the world, and that means every individual—whether he is radioman, electrician, machinist or cook—must be tops in his line. Third, the Navy makes men. Healthful sports, good food, expert medical and dental care will build you up physically to the rugged health that is typical of Navy men.

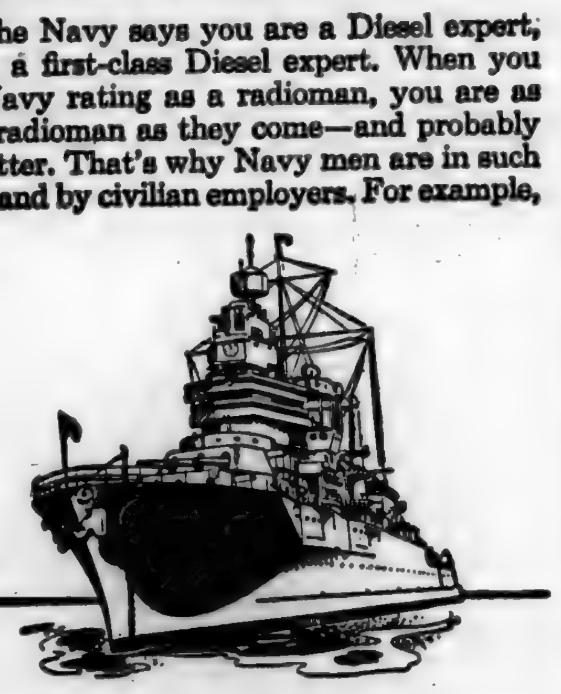
EARN NAVY PAY WHILE YOU LEARN

Instruction in many fields today runs into hundreds and sometimes even thousands of dollars. The Navy will not only give you this instruction free, but will give you regular Navy pay while you are learning! And remember this:

NAVY TRAINED IS TRAINED RIGHT!

When the Navy says you are a Diesel expert, you are a first-class Diesel expert. When you get a Navy rating as a radioman, you are as good a radioman as they come—and probably a bit better. That's why Navy men are in such big demand by civilian employers. For example, see how Navy training helped the men shown at the left below.

There wouldn't be room in this paper to list the thousands of men that Navy training helped to get set for life. Remember, you have even better opportunities today!



LOOK WHAT THE U. S. NAVY OFFERS YOU

FREE TRAINING worth $1500. 45 trades and vocations to choose from.

FREE CLOTHING. A complete outfit of clothing when you first enlist. (Over $100 worth.)

FREE MEDICAL CARE, including regular dental attention.

FINEST SPORTS and entertainment any man could ask for.

PLANT ENGINEER Robert B. Kellogg, of the Potomac Electric Power Co., Washington, D. C., started in the Navy as a gunner's mate. He rose to the rank of Lieutenant. THE CONSTANT BUYER

Americans are people who spend money and enjoy spending it. We start in sight of our children and they grow up aware of the great pleasure one gets out of buying. A child's value of exchange has altered with the passing years. Back in the days of our youth a penny was the medium of exchange used to secure the best of goods for a youngster, at least for the average appreciative young one. Today's children start with a nickel and dime and enter into the higher brackets without even a tremble in their voice! We all like to buy, we like to spend, and since shopping is the great American habit, it is not unusual that our children follow the same lines early. It has not gone too far to try to instill in the child the meaning of a penny, although they have been in the dime class for some time. It isn't too late for grown ups to learn to spend wisely whatever is the denomination of their exchange. There are many lanes of purchasing. One lane is traveled by the person who spends more than he earns. Another is worn by those folks who shop because they simply must buy something even tho they don't much care for it. The most crowded lane is that used by those who buy because they need. Some of us don't spend so much because we haven't it and land in the bankruptcy havent' it and land in the bankruptcy court. But each of us in St. Joe are buyers and it is up to each of us to get his money's worth. He must also educate his children to follow the right lane of buying.

HOOSIERS GIFTS OF ALUMINUM TO DEFENSE WORK

The Indiana Civilian Defense Council last week officially ended its campaign to collect scrap aluminum for national defense by turning over approximately 380,000 pounds of the scrap to the U. S. Treasury Department, to be shipped to the smelters.

The metal has been accumulated in nine concentration centers, located from South Bend to Evansville, since its donation by Hoosier housewives, July 21 to 29. The elapsed time since the collection was required, according to Clarence A. Jackson, Civilian Defense Director, to get the metal hauled gratis to the centers from the hundreds of local enclosures, fire and oil stations, public squares, etc., in the cities and towns and the 92 counties.

Transfer of the metal scrap was made to Samuel J. Craig, state procurement officer of the Treasury Department, who revealed the next steps in getting the metal converted into national defense production.

The procurement officer said he will transmit information of the Defense Council's action to the central procurement office of the Department in Washington, and after review there the procurement officer will be advised as to what smelter or smelters are to receive the metal.

Next the procurement officer will contact the smelters and request that they make immediate arrangements for shipping the scrap to their plants. The officer will select an approved assayer and public weigher to assay and weigh the scrap upon arrival at the smelters.

The metal will be sold to the smelters at the maximum prices set by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply and checks will be made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, to be deposited to the credit of Miscellaneous Receipts, Sale of Donated Scrap Aluminum.

The smelter, Craig added, will buy this aluminum scrap f. o. b. concentration point, and all expenses incident to the shipping, sorting, grading, weighing, assaying, etc. will be paid by the smelter.

It was explained further that representatives of the certified smelters will receive the scrap at the concentration centers only upon presenting credentials issued by the State Procurement Officer.

The gift of Hoosier housewives to national defense of scrap aluminum weighing 380,000 pounds, or enough to free virgin aluminum to an equivalent amount required in making 63 big Army pursuit planes, of 6,000 pounds each, represents about one pound for every nine men, women and children of the 3,500,000 in the state.

Indiana's showing in the nation-wide campaign was considered very good by observers, who found from Chicago and New York newspapers that the amounts of aluminum donated by people of Illinois and New York State was less per capita than contributed by Hoosier citizens.

PARACHUTE LANDS ON REINHART FARM

Sheriff Artus Coyle has in his possession one parachute and a box of recording instruments that were found on the farm of Albert Reinhart, two two miles north of Newville, Wednesday of last week. Following directions on the box, he sent a telegram to Ryerson Physical Laboratories in Chicago and it is expected he will receive instruction to make shipment to that address.

The parachute, made of red silk and about 3 feet in diameter, dropped into the orchard at the Reinhart place and was found soon afterward by Annabelle Reinhart. She called her sister, Mary, who is a nurse at Dr. Bonnell Souder's hospital in Auburn, but was home on vacation, and the latter summoned the sheriff.

It is presumed the parachute was carried by a balloon until the latter burst and that the instruments make recordings of the wind, temperature and other scientific facts for the laboratories.

Annabelle is a member of the sophomore class at Butler high school. Her father is 65 and is a dairy farmer. He has lived on his present farm for half a century, but this is the family's first intimate experience with a parachute.

Ordered Sent To Chicago

Sheriff Artus Coyle Friday made shipment to Ryerson Physical Laboratories of the University of Chicago of a parachute and box of scientific instruments that were found last Wednesday on the farm of Albert Reinhart, two miles north of Newville.

The shipment was made by request of the director of the laboratories, who sent a letter stating that the balloon carrying the parachute and instruments was sent aloft the same day that Annabelle Reinhart found the parachute and box in the orchard. The balloon made a quick trip, as the parachute descended into the orchard at noon.

The director of the laboratories stated that the box contained a radio-meteorograph, which is used to measure pressure, temperature and the moisture content of the atmosphere from the ground up to fifteen miles into the stratosphere. The information acquired is used in long range weather forecasting.

PEACH VARIETY USES EXPLAINED BY PURDUE

Since the Indiana peach crop promises to be the largest in years, it will be an advantage to the Hoosier housewife to know the different varieties of peaches and their uses, states Miss Lois Oberhelman, extension nutritionist of Purdue University.

The Southaven and Hale Haven peaches are freestones, yellow-fleshed varieties that make the fine type peach that is very good for canning. The Belle of Georgia and the Elberta are also a fine quality for canning, the Belle of Georgia being white-fleshed while the Elberta is a large, fine yellow-fleshed variety.

When buying peaches select the deeply colored, well-rounded types, as the shape and color indicate that the fruit is fully ripened on the tree. Tree Ripening of fruit developes its natural flavor and maximum food value, informs Miss Oberhelman.

The ripeness of the peach can be judged by the background color. After the green of the ground color starts to break, and the lemon or the deep yellow color of the mature fruit begins to develop, the peach is a safe buy for canning.

The peach should be practically free from blemishes and have a fresh appearance. Peaches which are very ripe and soft are satisfactory if canned immediately and are often purchased direct from the orchard.

Peaches have a very important place to play in the diet, says the nutritionist. They are a good source of Vitamin C. and a fair source of Vitamin B. The yellow-fleshed peaches are excellent sources of Vitamin A. There is no better way to serve peaches in season than as fresh peaches.

The following recipe, reports Miss Oberhelman, will be found very tasty to be served to the family during the peach season:

PEACH SHORTCAKE: (8 servings; temperature, 450 F., time, 15-20 minutes.) 2 cups family flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 5 tablespoons fat, ¾ cup milk, 4 cups sliced fresh peaches, and ½ to ⅔ cup sugar.

1. Sift first four ingredients. Cut in fat until mixture resembles coarse cornmeal; add milk; mix with a fork until flour disappears.
2. Turn out dough on floured board; knead lightly for a few seconds. Roll out dough about ½-inch thick, keeping round shape.
3. Bake in greased 9-inch layer-cake pan in a hot oven.
4. Sprinkle peaches with sugar; allow to stand for a few minutes.
5. Split warm shortcake in half crosswise; spread bottom layer with butter and peaches. Put on top crust layer, butter and pour remaining peaches over cake. Garnish with whipped cream.

Canned peaches: Reduce of omit sugar on peaches.

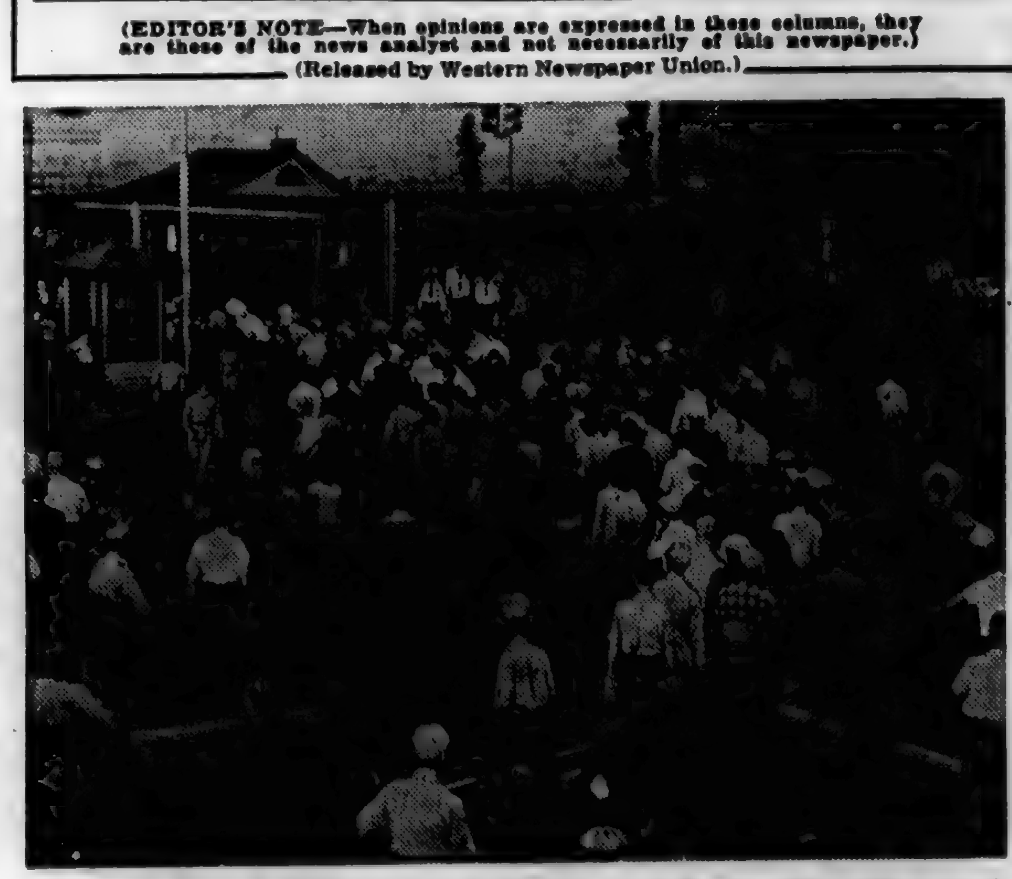
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS — By Edward C. Wayne

'Communist Plot' Is Charged by Vichy Following Shooting Attack on Laval; British-Russian Forces Occupy Iran; Senate Launches Gas Shortage Probe

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)



Some of the 11,000 workers in the Kearny, N. J., shipyards are pictured as they went back to work after the U. S. navy had taken over supervision of the plant. Producing defense shipping, the yards had been closed for 18 days because of a C.I.O. strike.

LAVAL:
And a Purge

In Paris three men were guillotined as the first action in a purge of anti-Vichy elements, following the shooting of Pierre Laval and Marcel Deat, French leaders advocating closer collaboration with Germany. Special courts convicted the assailants and it was declared that the attack on Laval was but part of a vast "Communist conspiracy."

IRAN:
An Occupation

That the Russo-British action against Iran would be virtually an occupation rather than a full-fledged invasion was seen almost immediately after the troop movement started.

Two things were early indications of this fact, first the sending by British transport planes of small detachments of troops far into the interior to protect British industrial outposts; second, the fact that points like Bandar-Shahpur, which could have been bitterly defended, fell at once to the invaders.

In fact, it was apparent that while the Iran government might have been under the Nazi thumb because of the presence in the country of hordes of fifth columnists, it was not a heavily implanted thumb, and within the government itself was apparently enough friendly strength to create an early offer of peace.

That Russia and Britain would regard this peace offer as acceptable only if they were given control of key points, was obvious. The refusal of the Iranians to expel the Germans, as demanded by Britain and Russia, was Nazi-inspired, it is true, but the decision to offer to expel them after the invasion was under way, and the Nazi bluff had been called, was entirely too pat to suit the invaders.

A glance at the map was sufficient to show the tactical importance of Iran in any defense of India and the Middle East, and collaboration with Russia from the great centers of British supply would demand some point of land contact.

Also the oil establishments on both sides of the Caspian sea demanded protection, and the position of Iran demanded control of that area in order to accomplish this.

The Berlin reaction to the Iranian adventure of the Soviet and Britain was not expressed until the campaign was nearly over, and then it was called "a classical case of brutal attack on a neutral state which had done everything to prevent war and respect the interests of third parties . . ."

GAS:
Senate Probe

It was forecast that Leon Henderson, price administrator, was contemplating setting a ceiling price on gasoline in the East, as reports of profiteering by individual filling stations poured in as the shortage, real or imaginary, began to be felt.

The senate undertook an investigation to answer these questions: 1. Is the shortage real or imaginary? 2. Is there an organized effort to confuse the public? 3. Was the country justified in transferring 50 tankers from the gulf-eastern trade to Britain? 4. Are the tank cars being used to their fullest ability to overcome the shortage?

At the same time the President had signed an order giving the right of eminent domain to a company which was to build by December a 1,200 mile pipeline from the central southern oil fields to the southeastern refineries.

The mayor of Atlanta, Ga., showed how much confusion there was by informing the oil administration that the oil companies told him there was plenty of fuel oil and plenty of gasoline and plenty of transportation for Atlanta's needs. He asked: "Why, therefore, should Atlanta be made the victim of propaganda?"

RUSSIA:
Still Fighting

Despite the loss of Dnepropetrovak, with or without the huge power dam, and in spite of repeated German communiques which announced the continued successes of the Nazi arms at the north and south, there was every evidence that the Soviet was continuing to fight, and to battle with an organized army of sorts.

It was one thing for the German-Finnish army to report itself 35 miles from Leningrad and another thing to explain the lack of announcements of airplane damage to the city of any extent.

The Germans also reported advances south of the city, yet these were averaging eight to nine miles a day, as against the 30 or 40 miles daily gained in the battles of France and Poland.

The Russians reported a fierce battle for the mastery of the skies over Leningrad with the issue in doubt. The city, they said, was still unhit. Moscow also elicited the breathless praise of the British mission for its defense against German air raiders. There was every indication that the Russian strength and ability had been underestimated both by Hitler and the rest of the world.

It was true that the third month of the war found the whole left bank of the Dnieper in German hands, but there was evidence that the Germans had planned to conquer what they sought of Russia in one month, and then to offer peace to Britain.

The peace offer was still in the offing—so was the German drive on Russia, as far as the objectives were concerned. Any serious capitulation on the part of the Soviet seemed as far distant as ever.

The Russians had reported a daring adventure on the central front, the sending of a well-equipped army in a southerly direction, to attempt to cut the German lines at Gomel, and to trap the entire advance force.

No definite report was forthcoming as to the outcome of this effort, but British hints sent out over the wire, after bright hopes had been entertained for nine days, during which some 20 villages were retaken, finally seemed to show a growing belief that the effort had failed.

JAPAN:
Again Storm Center

The official Japanese pronunciamento that it would consider the shipping of oil to Vladivostok by Britain, the United States or the Dutch East Indies an unfriendly act again placed Nippon in the center of a storm, especially as this was considered Japan's official answer to the warnings of Churchill.

Russia's answer to Japan was that she would consider it distinctly an unfriendly act if Japan interfered in any way with Russia's commerce through her principal Siberian port.

The Russians called to the attention of Japan that the material thus received was not in any way to be used as a reservoir for any attack on the Japanese, but solely to defend herself against the invasion of Germany.

Any child could see the truth of this statement, but the more that Russia was on the defensive in the west, the bolder Japan was bound to be.

Japan, however much she might be worried by possible British-American-Dutch military and naval action against her, could not be expected to lose much sleep over Russia, which she had whipped in 1904, and which now was embroiled in a war to the death with the Nazis.

But if Russia's attitude was to be actively backed up by Britain was another picture, and if the United States was to become active in a British-Japanese war, then the picture was still different again.

To most observers, Japan seemed to be feeling her way.

AUTO CUT

That fanfared OPM cut of 26½ per cent in auto production drew no cheers from war department chiefs. To them it was a big disappointment.

First of all the cut looks a lot bigger than it actually is. For one thing the OPM carefully did not reveal in its hoopla press releases was the fact that even with this curtailment auto production still will be 10 per cent greater than in 1938 and 1939.

In other words, notwithstanding the increasing shortage of strategic raw materials, such as steel, rubber, alloys and other metals, auto production is to continue at levels higher than in the peaceful years of '38 and '39.

Another reason for the army gloom was that it wanted an immediate cut of at least 50 per cent.

For months war department heads pleaded and argued with OPM moguls for drastic curtailment, on the ground that the material going into pleasure cars are desperately needed for planes, tanks, ships, guns and other vital armaments. But for months the OPM masterminds did absolutely nothing.

Finally, in July, scrappy OPACS Director Leon Henderson, who has seen eye-to-eye with the army on this issue from the start, took the bull by the horns and "ordered" a 50 per cent slash.

OPM's reaction was to hit the ceiling. It refused to accept the ruling. And while OPM battled behind the scenes with OPACS, autos continued to roll off assembly lines in record-breaking numbers. However, Henderson's bare-knuckling finally took effect. The 26½ per cent cut is a little less than half of what the army and Henderson wanted, but it is 6½ per cent more than OPM's original figure.

TANKS FOR BRITAIN

Some time ago the Merry-Go-Round revealed that a chief objective of Lord Beaverbrook's visit was to get more tanks—tanks for Iran; tanks for Egypt, tanks eventually for an invasion of the continent. Beaverbrook particularly wanted the new powerful 32 tonners that soon will roll off the Chrysler assembly line at the rate of 450 a month.

It can now be revealed that the British supply minister will not go home empty handed. He will take back with him very cheering assurances regarding the division of these tanks between the U. S. and British armed forces. But that isn't the end of his tank problem.

Allotting tanks to the British in this country is one thing, but delivering them across the Atlantic is another.

In fact, the problem of transporting large numbers of 32-ton tanks is the toughest shipping problem maritime experts have faced since the magnetic mine, which ravaged shipping until the de-magnetizing devices were evolved.

In a nutshell here is the problem: For every shipload of light 12 ton tanks sent to England or Africa, the same ship plus nearly three-fourths of another ship would be required to transport the same number of 32-ton tanks. In other words, they are bigger. Translated into specific figures—that 26-ship convoy which landed 560 light tanks at Alexandria three months ago would have had to consist of 44 vessels to carry the same number of medium tanks.

With shipping scarcer than hen's teeth, a difference of 18 ships is an extremely important factor. Also, the necessity of traveling in slow convoys further reduces the amount of shipping available. Some experts estimated this reduction as high as 50 per cent. In addition the British sometimes take an excessively long time to unload cargoes.

So the tank problem thus also becomes an acute shipping problem. One bright spot in the situation is the great reduction in ship losses in the last 60 days since the extension of the U. S. neutrality patrols. But the basic problem of securing more cargo bottoms still remains.

Note: Since January 1, U. S. shipyards have turned out a total of 56 cargo vessels.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Army officers are singing the praises of 20th Century-Fox's Darryl Zanuck and many movie moguls for their big job in filming 100 reels of army training films. This was the first time training films have ever been taken, and Hollywood did them for 40 per cent of what it would have cost Hollywood itself to do the job. In other words, the army only had to pay union labor and cost of film, Hollywood supplying the studios, production, overhead and everything else.

THIS is a dress you'll love for summer wear, because it buttons all the way down the front and may be put on and taken off like a coat. None of this tugging on over the head which you know is a bother on a very hot day. You can make it in fine silk crepes and it will be one of the smartest and most impressive frocks in your entire wardrobe. For this style is dignified by a very pretty collar arrangement — a ruffled edge collar to be worn under the dress revers, so that just the ruffling shows. Send for Pattern No. 1435-B at once, and make it your next new dress.

Make this dress in any pastel or dark colored crepe, or in a pin dot cotton or silk crepe. Then the contrast of a white ruffle around the collar will stand out prettily. If the dress is to be of a printed crepe the ruffle might be of Irish crochet or Valenciennes lace; if it is a plain color the ruffle may be of organdy or net.

New Land Areas

The 1940 census has issued completely revised statistics on the land areas of all states, the first remeasurement of its kind since 1880, reports Collier's. The five largest additions are 1,246 square miles to Texas, 1,151 to California, 1,145 to Maine, 1,058 to Mississippi and 743 to Oregon; while the five largest deductions are 992 square miles from New Mexico, 849 from Minnesota, 599 from Florida, 546 from Idaho and 541 from Wisconsin.

Tobacco tops the gift list with men in the service. They've said so themselves in survey after survey. A gift of a carton of cigarettes or a tin of smoking tobacco is always welcome, and more than welcome the week before pay day. Actual sales records from service stores show the favorite cigarette with men in the Army, the Navy, the Marines, and the Coast Guard is Camel. Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is another popular favorite. FAMOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS. EASY TO MAKE. DELICIOUS!

They really are the most delicious muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! Made with crisp, toasted shreds of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they have a texture and flavor that have made them famous all over America.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup All-Bran
¾ cup milk
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2¼ inches in diameter.

Try these delicious muffins for dinner tonight or for tomorrow morning's breakfast. They're not only good to eat; they're mighty good for you as well. For several of these muffins will add materially to your daily supply of what physicians call "bulk" in the diet, and thus help combat the common kind of constipation that is due to lack of this dietary essential. Eat ALL-BRAN every day (either as a cereal or in muffins), drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation due to lack of "bulk." ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

ELIMINATE HENS THAT DON'T LAY

Don't Keep Poor Layers When Easy to Cull.

By H. H. ALP

(Poultry Extension Specialist, University Of Illinois College of Agriculture.)

Can the birds in the home poultry flock pass the "physical" test?

If they can't, they shouldn't be "drafted" for another year of service in the "army" of egg layers, because chickens, like soldiers, are playing an important part in the present emergency. They have been "drafted" to furnish millions of healthful eggs under the nationwide food-for-defense program.

If flock owners haven't kept accurate records of their layers' abilities, it is especially important that the birds' physical characteristics be studied carefully before they are put in their quarters for the winter. Fortunately, it is comparatively easy to distinguish layers from nonlayers by the culling method, after a little practice.

Bald-headed as they often are, good layers are usually tight-feathered over the rest of their bodies. The feathers generally are dry, frayed and "washed-out," and good layers are active, good feeders, and have good dispositions.

The head of a good layer is usually clean-cut, well-balanced, of medium length and depth, and the eyes are quite large and prominent. Be suspicious of the laying ability of the bird with a thick or coarse head or the bird with a crow-head.

And the back of a good layer should be wide over its entire length and free from hard fat. A narrow spring of ribs or a back that tapers decidedly or slopes sharply to the rear indicates small feeding capacity.

The body should be deep, but flock owners shouldn't be fooled into thinking that birds have body depth just because the feathers are long and loose. Depth of the body can be measured by placing the thumbs on the front end of the keel bone and the middle fingers on the rear of the keel bone. Depth of the front and rear can be measured by spanning the body from back to breast with the thumb and middle finger and sliding them along the keel and back.

If the bird is a good layer, her comb, wattles and earlobes will be large, plump, smooth and waxy. If the comb is limp, the bird may be laying, but when the comb is dried, especially at molting time, the bird is not laying.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Peaches for Fuel

Ingenious is the fuel business developed by a California man who makes a round of canning plants, collects discarded peach stones, dries them in the sun, then resells them for fireplace fuel. Scientists believe that some day important industrial products will be found in peach stones.

In colonial days, peaches were used for cider and brandy and were preserved by drying. Forsythe's famous fruit book of 1803 reports that peaches ripened from July to November and the great surplus was "applied as food to hogs."

When canning methods were perfected, the fruit grew in favor and now ranks next to the apple. From 30 to 50 million bushels are grown annually. In the Pacific states, 90 per cent of the 20-million-bushel crop is canned. Some commercial pectin is derived from the peach skins.

California, Georgia, Arkansas, North Carolina and Virginia produce peaches by the million bushels. Important areas are along the eastern and southern shores of the Great Lakes in Michigan and Ohio and around the Finger Lakes in New York. There in the spring, the heat absorbed by the lakes retards blooming and lessens the danger of frost. In the winter, the heat released from the water moderates the temperature and prevents wood and bud injury from freezing.

Nowhere, except in America, are peaches grown commercially. In England and on the continent, the fruit is a delicacy, grown under glass or trained on trellises. The results are excellent, but costly, and peaches there are a luxury only for the rich.

According to a number of responsible authorities, there is a definite morale problem in the American Army. Such magazines as Life have sent qualified reporters into Army camps and they have returned to write that a substantial percentage of the conscripts now under arms don't like the Army and are eager to get out of it.

It is inevitable that when hundreds of thousands of men are drafted, a portion of them will remain permanently dissatisfied. However, the reporters state that at the present time there is a comparatively low state of morale among many men who entered the service in the expectation of benefiting from it and enjoying it. The principal causes of unrest are these:

1. There is a lack of martial spirit, due to the fact that we are not at war, and our emotions have not been stirred to the boiling point. As Ernest Lindley puts it, "It is like trying to infuse morale into a football team that has no games scheduled." Unless we actually go to war, this phase of the morale problem will probably remain unsolved.

2. Many conscript soldiers lack confidence in their officers. The Army has on its roles many officers who have no concept of modern warfare, and who have little capacity for leadership or for instilling respect and admiration in the men they command. The General Staff, headed by energetic General Marshall, is said to recognize this, and is gradually weeding out incompetents in the commissioned personnel.

3. Lack of adequate weapons and other materials has been a sore point. Conscripts couldn't make sense out of maneuvers in which broomsticks were used for cannons, cans for shells, and in which ancient trucks were painted "Tank." Now, however, this deficiency is being corrected as arms output increases. Troops are getting more and better equipment and by next year many divisions should possess everything that is needed for modern battle.

4. Most general cause of complaint, say many, is the pay given the soliders. Conscripts get $21 a month for the first three months, and $30 thereafter. Under a new congressional bill, pay at the end of a year's service will advance to $40. That amounts to next to nothing. The soldiers must pay for haircuts, razor blades, clothes pressing, etc. By the time necessary expenses are met, there is little left for recreation or even the simplest luxuries of life. As a result, soldiers have an extremely difficult time finding amusement. The cost of giving the privates a fair wage—$50 to $75 a month—would amount to relatively little, in the light of the gigantic costs the defense program involves. It is probable that laws to substantially raise the Army's wages will be introduced in Congress.

5. Tied in with inadequate pay is the lack of organized recreational facilities. Many major Army camps are located in areas where there are few communities. The United Service Organisations (USO) has raised considerable money through public subscription, but the total produced is far from being sufficient to provide amusement or anything near the desired scale. All the reporters who have investigated Army conditions, tell of finding groups of soldiers loitering on street corners on their evenings off, broke, and with nothing to do.

It should be emphasized, in the interest of fairness, that a high proportion of the Army's enlisted personnel has excellent morale. Further, in the Navy, air corps and marine corps there is no morale problem whatsoever, as these branches of fighting forces have no conscripts. Most of the conscripts have gone into the infantry, and it is there that the morale problem exists. Progress is beig made in bettering the lot of the men, but it looks as if a good deal more must be done if the largest peace-time American Army in our history is to have the morale that is essential to an A-1 fighting force.

Consider The Draftee

When you are doing an extra heavy job of complaining and your electric fan doesn't stir up enough breeze for you, the evening meal is too heavy for Summer consumption and you go to a movie to cool off, just remember the many thousands of soldier boys who are in hotter spots than yours, driving trucks and drilling, carrying packs and digging ditches, in the blazing sun. The case where troops from an Eastern camp marched and waited in the heat of a day to be reviewed by a governor who was over two hours late in showing up, didn't cool us off any either when we heard it. There is no bonus waiting for these lads and although they may carry a heavier coat of tan than you, have a more thoroughly developed sense of routine and a decidedly better physique than both of us, they are perhaps willing to exchange their place in the army for your place on the front porch.

Representation

There are many states that have already elected women to their state defense councils and this is proof that men recognise the ability of women in special work for the nation's need. There are many lines where woman's help is necessary and where she is most talented to lead in community work, which is especially true of education, health and community welfare work. The states are wise to place women on their councils and those states who have not done so should realise that they are overlooking a real contribution. Women today are lining up their forces to assist in the industrial end of the present defense program. They hold important places in industry. They have their hands in airplane manufacture, are employed in mechanical fields that need precision and deftness which they can so ably fill. So as woman assists in the field of labor, in the community scene for national defense, she should by rights have her sex represented on the state councils for defense.

HORSE SENSE

It's easy to over-crowd young pullets when they are housed. Always allow about three and one-half to four square feet of floor space per bird.

Green shelled lima beans, sweet potatoes, potatoes, parsnips and sweet corn contain the highest percentage of carbohydrates found in our more common vegetables.

Fertilizer and lime may cost as much as $5 per acre a year. A complete tile system comes at less than a dollar per acre a year.

Well sharpened knives are a great aid to homemakers in the preparation of foods for cooking and canning.

To avoid mosquitoes, have your picnic where a breeze is blowing.

The best control for peony diseases is to cut the tops of the plants close to the ground and then burn them.

Home is the place where the small are great and the great are small.

Work-in the slopes of gullies, fertilizer the well prepared seed bed, and then seed with timothy and red top now. This area should then be mulched with straw.

The 1941 Indiana General Assembly amended the state weed law and the changes which are fundmental will take effect January 1, 1942. Farmers and dealers are being urged to study these changes before the deadline.

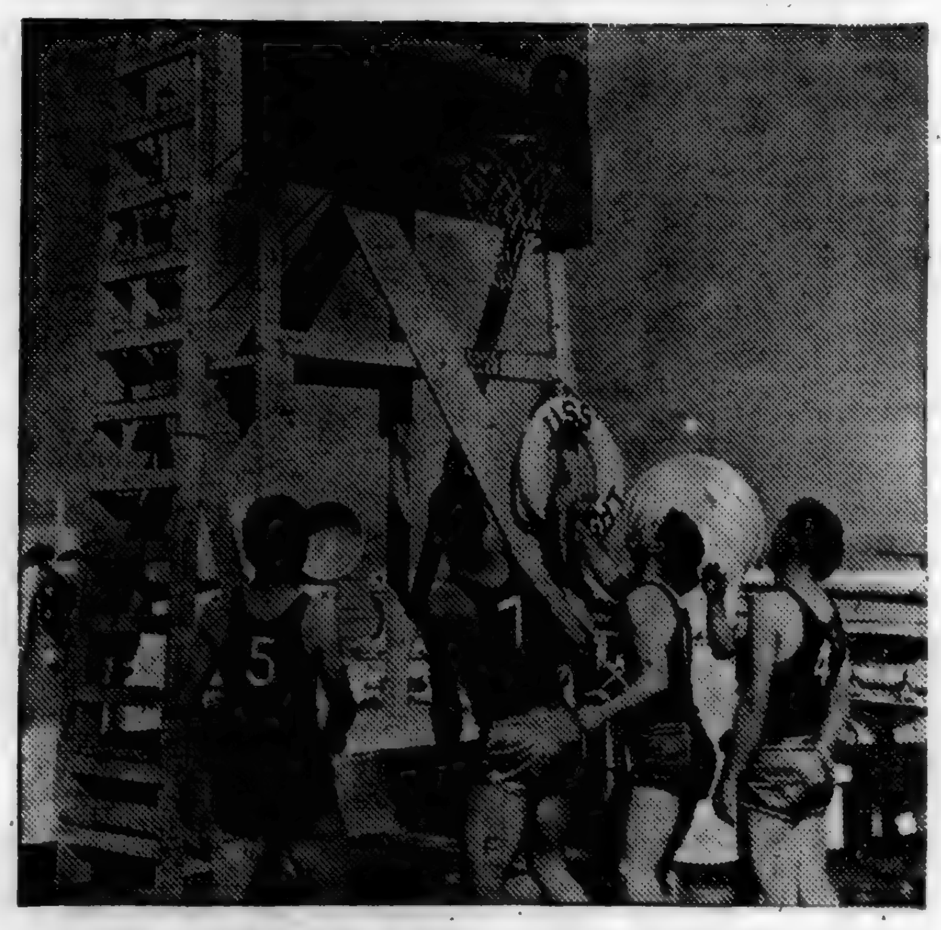
NAVY COURTMEN PRACTICE BASKETBALL ON SHIPBOARD



Perfect physical fitness is required of sailors in the U. S. Navy. Excellent athletic facilities are provided both afloat and ashore.

Pictured above are bluejackets on the aircraft tender U.S.S. Wright holding basketball practice on shipboard. Almost every ship in the U. S. Navy has its own basketball team. Rivalry among the crews of the various crafts runs high. In addition to basketball—football, baseball, boxing, bowling, wrestling and tennis all rank high as sports with Uncle Sam's sailors.

Organized intra-fleet competitions are held for most sports. Trophies and individual awards usually are presented to the championship winning teams and players.

NINE-DAY SEASON ON PHEASANTS FOR HOOSIER NIMRODS

A nine-day open season for pheasants—starting Monday, November 10 and ending Wednesday, November 19—was announced today by C. R. Gutermuth, acting director of the Division of Fish and Game. Bag and possession of limits will be the same as in 1940—a limit of two birds per day including not more than one hen and a possession limit of four birds, not more tha two of which are hens.

Nine actual days of hunting—omitting Sunday, November 16—will give Hoosier nimrods some of the best sport that they have enjoyed since Indiana's first open season on pheasants was staged in 1936. Preliminary to issuing the official proclamation setting dates and bag lmits for the open season, a survey was conducted by the Division of Fish and Game in cooperation with the conservation clubs.

This survey indicated that pheasants are more numerous in most areas than in any preceding year. Favorble weather conditions during the mating and nesting season, combined with the liberation of a record number of birds from the conservation club brooders and the state game farms, assure Hoosier sportsmen a real open season. Since the first open season was held pheasant hunting has become a popular field sport, rivaling quail hunting among many Indiana residents.

While pheasants are found in almost all parts of the state, they apparently find conditions more favorble in the Northern half of Indiana and the heaviest concentrations are north of U. S. 40. However, some of the counties south of U. S. 40 have good pheasant hunting along with the fine quail hunting which predomiates in the Southern part of the state.

Open season dates for the pheasant season and bag limits were approved by the State Conservation Advisory Committee at its last meeting.

HOW DEKALB COUNTY DRIVERS CAN SAVE TIRES

DeKalb County motorists who neglect the air pressure of their tires are wasting approximately 40,950,000 potential miles of auto travel, in the face of urgent government efforts to build up the nation's emergency rubber supplies.

Every pound of under-inflation increases the rate of tread wear 12½ per cent, and a tire 30 per cent underinflated will give only 74 per cent of the mileage built into it.

Motorists who forget to check air pressure rob themselves of as much as 6,500 of the approximately 25,000 miles of service built into today's first-line tires. These figures are based on laboratory tests conducted in reliable plants.

Thus if the 6,300 cars estimated in DeKalb County were driven on underinflated tires all the time, their tires would wear out 40,950,000 miles before their time.

It is the patriotic duty of every American motorist to help the government build up reserve rubber supplies by following driving practices that will guarantee longer tire mileage.

Tire health rules designed to stretch tire miles will help solve our problems. These rules include maintaining correct air pressure, keeping wheels closely aligned, taking corners slowly, braking down gently, and drivig at lower speeds on hot, dry roads.

Canning Factory Busy Place

The St. Joe Canning Kitchen is a busy place these days with the late iain bringing on a fresh crop of tomatoes and sweet corn. With the reputation established in the past years of successful canning, people for miles around are rushing their fruits and vegetables to the St. Joe Cannery. This week, Mr. Guilford landed a large contract for canning peaches for the Rowe Hutchins farm near Farmer Center, Ohio, and another one for a company at Ney, Ohio, and delivery was started Monday afternoon to St. Joe Cannery in lots of 100 bushels. Help has become critical also and people are coming some distance to help in the canning at the local factory.

Two Farms Change Owners

The Harry Reas farm, 80 acres, on Road 8, and better known as the Goldsmith farm, which he purchased four years ago from Marie Goldsmith, of St. Joe, was sold a few days ago to George Goodall, of Auburn, who owns the Swineford-Curie farm on the east. Mr. Reas has purchased the Dix farm of 87 acres, which is located 2½ miles west and south off of Road 8, on the township line. They will move there about March 1st.

God's Guiding Hand.

When the day grows weary and is so long,
And every thing just seems to go wrong,
And no one seems to understand,
'Tis then I feel God's guiding hand.

'Tis then I know that He is near
With comforting words my heart to cheer.
'Tis then my Savior from above
Upholds me in His arms of love,

'Tis when things grow as darkest night
Looking up I see Heaven's light.
And my heart was filled with doubt
But now I know He will bring me out.

I am trusting so sweetly in Him.
Trying some other soul to win
That they may cease from care,
Taking everything to Him in prayer.

Lord, I pray that I may be Always a mirror reflecting Thee.
That others myself may never see
But only Christ shining through me.

INDIANA PRODUCING HER SHARE OF DEFENSE ARTICLES

What are the thousands of men and women doing who have been hired by industry since June, 1940, when America set out to become the "arsenal of democracy?"

Lester Kassing, manager of the Employment Security Office, 121½ W. Washington Street, Fort Wayne, revealed the answer today when he received a long list of vital defense materials made by Hoosier workers in Indiana factories. The statewide report came from Colonel Everett L. Gardner, Indiana Employment Security Division director.

Indiana labor is busy maufacturing an amazing variety of items ranging from tanks to boots, from rubber bands to sub-chasers. And to produce them, defense industries have expanded employment until more persons held jobs in Indiana this Summer than at any other time in the state's history. Additional thousands will get defense jobs before the 50 billion dollars appropriated for rearmaments is spent. More skilled men, and women; will be needed and more persons will take free training to fit them for defense jobs.

Studied at random the defense articles manufactured in the Hoosier state made up a hodge-podge, but fit together, like a jig-saw puzzle, they form the complete picture of an army, navy and aircorps—trained, equipped fed and housed.

The Employment Division survey reveals that Indiana is carrying its full load in equipping the armed forces.

Less than ten months after construction started on the $15,000,000 Kingsbury Ordnance Plant, where millions of shells will be loaded before the emergency passes, the first shell was completed in August. At Charlestown, two huge new plants have contracts for making smokeless powder and packing it in silk bags. Combined, the two Charlestown plants will employ more than 15,000 men and women for operation and maintenance.

Burns City, in Martin County, has the East Coast Naval Ammunition Depot which will manufacture and store bombs, torpedoes, star shells, and TNT. Near Madison is located the 60,000-acre ammunition testing ground.

Shells and bomb casting, bomb sights, timing devices for bombs and mines, and bomb release mechanisms are contracted for with firms in Muncie, Anderson, Fort Wayne, South Bend, and Indianapolis.

Indiana, far from the seacoast, is even helping to equip the navy. At Jeffersonville, submarine chasers are being built. A Kokomo company recently received a $1,500,000 contract for building 1,200 lifeboats for cargo ships, and the steel mills in the Calumet district are turning out steel that will go into ships, guns, tanks and other equipment. In the Calumet, one firm is making mooring buoys.

Indiana is a busy center of the repidly expanding aviation industry. For example, contracts are held in Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, South Bend, and Connersville for airplane engines and parts. The experience of Hoosier automotive manufacturers, engineers and laborers has been utilized to good advantage in the quick change-over to aircraft production.

Indiana's automobile plants also are turning out a wide range of equipment for the ground forces. Army trucks are being made in Indianapolis, South Bend and Fort Wayne. Radio communication trucks are made in Lebanon. Factories in other Hoosier cities make parts which are used in motorized army equipment such as "jeeps." Those towns include New Castle, Connersville and Evansville.

A Mishawaka firm has contracts to make bullet proof fuel tanks. Hammond and Indiana plants have contracts for tanks and gun carriages.

At Washington, Indiana, parachutes are being made and tested. Finished parachutes are attached to dummies which are whirled around on a mechnized tower in a 200-foot circle at a speed of from 70 to 300 miles an hour.

In the Eastern part of the state, a Richmond plant had an unusul contract. It made "mobile machine shops," fully equipped and mounted on trucks to follow mechanized units into battle.

With so much mechanized equipment being built for this new streamline warfare, the Employment Security offices are continually calling for machinists and more machinists. This need results from the fact that Indiana is doing its share to make the tools used to produce this mechanized equipment.

Machine tools, shaving machines, lathes, drill presses, hydraulic presses, gauges to check machine, all are being made in Hoosier factories under defense contracts in such cities as Logansport, Lafayette, South Bend, Richmond and Indianapolis.

Lightning fast communications facilities, to help the modern mechanized army train for blitzkreig warfare, are being manufactured at Fort Wayne, Marion and Indianapolis, where contracts are held for radio receivers, and portable loud speakers. Marion, a wiremaking center, also is producing this essential war article in abundance.

Clothing, feeding and housing the armed forces is just as important a part of the picture as equipping the army. Here too, Indiana is turning her machines to producing, and her men to running the machines.

Seymour has contracts for woolen blankets; Evansville and Anderson for mattresses; Evansville for folding cots; Jeffersonville for tents; South Bend for tent poles.

Producing for defense doesn't all center around machines, however, Hoosier farms are producing food for the soldiers, and with Indiana, long a leader in tomatoo cultivation, swinging into its harvest season, canning plants have increased employment rapidly to preserve food for soldiers and civilians alike.

Stoves and stove parts are being manufactured in plants in Evansville, Richmond, Jeffersonville and Muncie, and these will be used in cooking for the army in warming the troops. Ration boxes are being made at the quartermaster depot in Jeffersonville, butcher saws in Indianapolis, sugar shakers in Dunkirk.

Indiana factories will help clothe soldiers "from the skin out." Factories in Portland, Rochester, Jeffersonville, Terre Haute, Hammond, East Chicago, Richmond, Evansville, La-Porte, and Indianapolis have clothing contracts. They make undershirts and shorts, rubber hip boots, Winter flying shoes, jackets, coats, leggings, overshoes, slip-on work suits, bakers' and cooks' coats and aprons.

Indiana comes in for a share of the work in providing shelter.

Tents and trailers, the latter primarily for defense housing but some for armed forces, are under contract in Elkhart, Evansville, Rochester, Jeffersonville and Indianapolis.

Soldiers are housed at Fort Benjamin Harrison, just outside of Indianapolis, and it is expected that an army cantonment for 30,000 soldiers will be constructed near Columbus.

Indiana is making other contributions, some of them unusual. Anderson is producing fire engines, Evansville is making hospital beds, Indianapolis manufactures drugs, capsules and prescription bottles, and a Wabash plant has a contract for rubber bands. No huge organization could run without rubber bands.

Fort Wayne has contracts for gasoline meters; Huntington for kitchen ware; school room type chairs are being constructed by firms in North Manchester and Seymour. A Warsaw firm has a contract for surgical instruments and an Evansville company is making steel bunks for the navy.

America's front line of defense is her production lines, and Indiana is putting more men and women to work every day to produce tanks, guns, airplanes and ships, and boots and rubber bands to build an army, navy, and air corps completely trained, equipped, fed and housed.

Learn for yourself, when you make this easy-to-sew frock, what a curving basque bodice, a low square neckline, a taut wide waistband and a swirling skirt will do for the feminine figure! The basque silhouette is entirely new, different, quaint.

The men in the service themselves have solved the problem of what they want in the way of gifts from the folks back home. First hand information from enlisted men on shipboard, in camps and barracks indicate that tobacco is first choice in the gift line-up. Actual sales figures from service stores show that the favorite cigarette with men in the Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard is Camel. Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is another special favorite. Local dealers feature Camels by the carton and Prince Albert in the pound tins as doubly welcome gifts to the men in the service from the folks back home.—Adv.

LET'S MAKE A DATE FOR LUNCH
(See Recipes Below)

FALL LUNCHEON

As the leaves begin to crackle and fall's favorite flower, the chrysanthemum, stirs in the sweet smelling earth, and fruit hangs heavy and ripe on the trees—do your thoughts turn to luncheons and bridge?

If they do, prepare to have one now, using as your theme the leaves, fruits or flowers that fall has to offer as a welcome change from summer luncheons you may have had. If you are having a pre-luncheon bridge, try carrying out the fall theme on the bridge tables with small vases of fall flowers, in candies, and decorations. Favors can be had using the autumn theme and prizes may be wrapped in the burnished fall shades or tied with ribbons of that color.

Whatever you do, have your tables and especially the centerpiece stunning enough to stimulate interest and conversation. It'll make luncheon and bridge afterwards a real success, and star you as a smart hostess.

Play up the oranges and yellow in food for luncheon, picking it up here and there in this dish and that with a touch of green to heighten interest. Do something unusual in the main dish by having a frozen or cooked fish fillet lightly creamed and well garnished. Simple to fix, a dream to behold, yet delicate to taste, here's your main dish:

Creamed Fillet of Flounder With Mushrooms.

2 packages quick frozen fillet of flounder, cooked or 2½ cups cooked fish
2½ cups fish liquor or light cream
2½ cups sliced mushrooms
6 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
Watercress

If using frozen flounder, cook in a saucepan, adding 1 cup boiling water and ½ teaspoon salt, and cook until tender. If using cooked fish, be sure it is well drained. Flake fish. Cook mushrooms in butter, until well browned, add flour. Add fish liquor and cream, gradually stirring constantly and cook until thick. Add fish and seasoning. Serve on hot buttered toast or in patty shells. Sprinkle with paprika. Garnish with watercress.

When serving the vegetables, pretty the platter by serving both the green beans, cut in long, lengthwise strips, and the carrots cut lengthwise, side by side. Or have a mound of carrots or beans in the center, and then have alternating mounds of green bean and carrot strips coming out toward the rim of the plate.

If you were to take a poll among your luncheon guests, you would probably be surprised how many women confess to an extraordinary interest in rolls, bread and muffins. Here's a bread which highlights a luncheon perfectly and whose orange flavor gives just the right touch of piquancy to the meal:

THIS WEEK'S MENU

*Creamed Fillet of Flounder
With Mushrooms
Green Beans Corn on Cob
*Orange Honey Bread
Green Salad
Peach Sundae Crisp Cookies
Coffee
*Recipe Given

Orange Honey Bread.
(Makes 1 loaf)

3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
1½ tablespoons grated orange rind
2½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¾ cup orange juice
¾ cup chopped walnuts.

Cream the shortening until light, then add honey gradually, and continue beating until well blended. Stir in the egg and the grated orange rind. Sift the dry ingredients together several times, then add them alternately with the orange juice. Stir in the walnuts. Pour the batter into a well-greased loaf pan and let stand 20 minutes before putting into oven. Bake in a slow (325-degree) oven for 1 hour or until well done when a toothpick comes out clean. If desired, ¾ cup of candied orange peel may be added to the batter to give additional flavor, or may be substituted for the nuts.

I shall pass lightly over the subject of salads. Ours today follow nearly the same pattern as recipes printed in old cookbooks. But I would like to give you a recipe for a dressing. Used on a salad of hard-cooked eggs, lettuce, chopped onions and sliced radishes it's tops.

Rub the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs together with 1 tablespoon of cold water until smooth. To this add 2 tablespoons of salad oil and 1 teaspoon each of salt, powdered sugar and prepared mustard, and blend well. Finally, add 2 tablespoons each of plain and tarragon vinegar.

And last, but not least, here's a recipe for ice cream. Serve this with sliced fresh peaches topped with whipped cream.

Uncooked Custard Ice Cream.

⅓ cup sugar
2 eggs
1⅓ cups top milk
2 tablespoons sugar
Pinch of salt
½ pint whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Dissolve the ⅓ cup of sugar and the salt in the cold milk. Beat the egg white until stiff, add 2 tablespoons sugar and then beat in the egg yolks, one at a time. Combine with the milk and fold in the whipped cream and vanilla. Pour into freezing trays and stir every 15 or 20 minutes until firm. This may also be made in a crank freezer, but the amount should be doubled for the ordinary size of freezer.

If you desire to vary this recipe, here are suggestions:

Maple Ice Cream—Add maple flavoring to taste in place of the vanilla; about 6 drops will be needed.

Butterscotch — Substitute brown sugar for the ⅓ cup of white sugar.

Chocolate—Melt two squares cake chocolate and add to custard mixture. Four additional tablespoons sugar must be added as well.

Peppermint — Peppermint flavoring, oil of peppermint and enough pink coloring to give the desired color are added.

LYNN SAYS:

Sit up and take notice of fall's possibilities for table decoration. Cornucopias and centerpieces of fruits and vegetables interlaced with burnished leaves and brightly colored flowers certainly have a way with them and will do very nicely for your luncheon table.

Take a tip from the outdoors and make the most of the humble squash, apple, pear, or a spray of bittersweet. Let your fruit glisten and shine by rubbing with oil and then polishing to a high luster. For more permanent effects, have the fruit laquered. Arrange pears, apples and grapes on doilies of autumn leaves and set on a mirror for the centerpiece, or have the fruit arranged from the opening of a squash. Dusky red or bright chrysanthemums look effective if arranged in a small squash. Any of these will give your table a smart note and also a piece of grand conversation for luncheon guests.

Speaking of nice touches, put a leaf of deep rich red, brown, or yellow, or a bit of bittersweet to the side of a placecard. This will be just fine to carry out the autumn theme of the centerpiece.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.
These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.
Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON & ROBERT ALLEN

Washington, D. C.

POLITICAL DYNAMITE

There was real political dynamite behind that letter President Roosevelt sent the Young Democrats convention in Louisville blasting Democratic isolationists as "obstructionists who are in the wrong party."

The scorching attack was a tip-off on undercover plans which may make next year's congressional elections the hottest in years.

Nothing has been said about it, but certain administration and Republican leaders have discussed uniting Democratic and Republican forces to oppose all congressional isolationists regardless of party label.

Under the proposed plan, Administration-G.O.P. backing would be thrown behind incumbent anti-isolationist congressmen whether they are Democrats or Republicans. Furthermore strong coalition candidates would be entered against isolationist congressmen seeking re-election.

One of the most significant things about the plan is that it has the hearty approval of Wendell Willkie.

Discussing it with a group of friends the G.O.P. standard bearer declared, "The people should have the opportunity in every senatorial and congressional election next year for a clear-cut expression of opinion on this all-important issue of foreign policy. This referendum should not be cluttered up with phony or inconsequential issues.

"In districts represented by isolationists we should put the strongest candidate in the field we can get, regardless of his party label or economic views. I'd like to see young men and women brought into this campaign. Let's get away from the old political hacks. Let's bring youth into this fight. It's theirs primarily and they should be in the lead in it.

"Personally, I am prepared to support anti-isolationist candidates regardless of their party affiliation or economic views. If they are right on the foreign issue, then I will be for them and will take the stump for them."

SMASHED PLANES

President Roosevelt didn't announce it, but there were two big reasons why Pan American Airways is taking over the ferrying of airplanes across the South Atlantic up the interior of Africa to the Near East.

One reason has since been published, the need of American warplanes to help the British in Iran and thus protect Russian oil fields in the Caucasus.

The other has not been published—namely that the British had been wrecking an extraordinarily large number of brand new planes in flying them across Africa.

As a matter of cold, unpleasant fact, the British have been losing about 20 per cent of the planes we have been giving them.

This was partly because the British did not use their own pilots, but Czech, French, Poles and Dutch. These aviators, sometimes too full of sloe gin, and sometimes not too well trained in the tough job of handling fast war planes, have succeeded in scattering the wrecks over the heart of Africa.

Furthermore, central Africa is one of the most uncharted and difficult flying areas in the world. The hop across the Atlantic has not caused the casualties. It is the remainder of the flight, from Freetown on the west African coast, up to Egypt.

This is why Roosevelt finally called upon Pan American Airways to take over the African hop. Its pilots have done a brilliant job of pioneering the jungles of the Amazon and the peaks of the Andes. And Roosevelt figured that if anyone could fly over Africa, Pan American could do it.

'AMERICA'S ANSWER'

The OPM is just releasing for wide distribution its first post promoting its drive for greater production.

Entitled "America's Answer—Production!" it is a masterpiece of power and drama. It pictures a brawny arm twisting a monkey wrench fastened to the letter "O"—shaped like a machine nut—in the word "prOduction."

The artist is Jean Karlu, as free a Frenchman as ever worked with one arm. He lost his right arm fighting for Democracy in the first World war and, until the fall of France, was doing an expert left-handed job painting posters for the French government.

Recently arrived in this country, Karlu wanted to continue his fight for a free France. He submitted his poster idea in sketch form and OPM officials snapped it up.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Taking a cue from the German Stuka dive bombers, U. S. army engineers have included a powerful siren in the midget M3 tanks. Its shrill shriek freezes green troops, and the army is counting on its scare power, at a 70-mile an hour speed, to make advance breaks through enemy lines.

Phil Baker in his new Broadway show said he will feature a song on how to have a good time in a parked car. The song is titled "Thanks for a lovely evening, Mr. Ickes."

He will make personal appearances with the openings in various cities of "Hold Back the Dawn," and will also display his model of the city of Paris in theater lobbies and department stores. Valued at more than $50,000, the miniature city shows Paris as it was before the German occupation. Part of the proceeds of the tour will go to war relief organizations. When traveling, the city is housed in eight crates; setting it up keeps four men occupied for two days.

Apparently everybody who saw Kathryn Grayson in that last Hardy film wanted to know what her next picture would be. Letters poured into the Metro studios, and out went the word that she will appear in "The Vanishing Virginian." She's but recently returned from her honeymoon—in private life she's now Mrs. John Shelton—and will be back before the cameras soon.

It's rather a shock to realize that Hedy Lamarr has been resting for nearly eight months—hasn't worked since "Ziegfeld Girl." She's beginning a new picture now, "H. M. In "Sullivan's Travels" you'll see a Veronica Lake who'll startle you—a boy hobo, apparently, in turtle-necked sweater, old cap, blue denim work trousers and a coat that's too large for her. Which means that she'll have to take lessons in the art of magic.

"Just order water and a poached egg on toast," says he. Seems that it gets them down every time, especially if they've been urging champagne on you.

HORSE SENSE

The wood from thrifty, second-growth white ash makes better handle stock than the wood from old growth white ash.

Wheat is a good competitive crop for Johnson grass.

Fall rains usually deepen the shades of green on permanent pastures but fail to produce grass with a feeding value equal to the Spring growth.

When the adoption method with baby pigs fails, or when it cannot be put into use, then it is necessary to substitute by feeding the pigs on cows milk.

Nicotine sulphate in soapy water is the most effective control for aphids or plant lice.

The European Corn Boren caused Eastern Indiana corn growers last year more than $600,000 in commercial damge to their crop, and DeKalb County took her share of this loss by the borer.

Many of the injuries and fatalities that occur during the birth period of pigs can be avoided, say Purdue veterinarians.

Winter rye, wheat, or barley will provide ample grazing for dairy cows during the Fall months.

Burning of fodder in the field will insure a better price for clover seed.

White ash logs, 15 to 20 feet in circumference, have the best market demand for handle stock.

Dish water, garbage, and other food materials will attract millions of flies during the Summer. Strict sanitation will produce remarkable results.

By drilling your wheat, rye and barley on the contour, you will save a lot of soil.

Before purchasing any fertilizer this Fall, be sure to read the state fertilizer tag attached to each bag so that no mistake wil be made on the analysis desired.

Adequate ventilation and elimination of dust will help to prevent much of the trouble from colds and roup in your poultry flock.

A note to homemakers: waxed floors and furniture should be dusted with a dry or wax treated mop or cloth. An oiled mop or cloth causes the wax on the surface to be softened and it will then collect and hold the dust.

He spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Indiana Marketing Quota Protest Association.

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1941 NUMBER 38

PASSION PLAY COMING TO FT. WAYNE, OCTOBER 1 TO 5

The mountain has come to Mohammet: where once pilgrimages were made to Europe to behold one of its several Passion Plays, now the world's oldest and largest, the Luenen Passion Play has established herself in the South Dakota Black Hills, "Rechristened" the Black Hills Passion Play, with its home base in Spearfish, South Dakota.

This great drama with all of its old world splendor is being brought to Fort Wayne on its first American tour in English, by the Fort Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce and will be presented with matinee and night performances at the Shrine Auditorium on October 1, through the 5th.

The great Passion Play was established in its new home on the Black Hills in 1937.

Here in the great American Garden of Eden steeped in the tradition of early frontier days in a land where General Custer, Deadwood Dick, Calamity Jane, Wild Bill Hickcock, and many other early American historical names held sway and where the sweeping terrain and the blue black pines reached toward the heavens where the clear, cool mountain streams abundant with trout tinkle through the hills, the largest Passion Play grounds in the world have been erected at a cost of many thousands of dollars. The world famous Passion Play is presented there three times a week on Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday during the Summer months from June 15 through September 4.

The company of more than five hundred present the play against the background of mile high Lookout Mountain, on a stage which is an authentic reproduction of biblical days, two thousand years ago. Supporting the large cast of human players, to add authenticity to the many scenes are beautiful Arabian horses, camels, donkeys, Great Dane dogs and other domestic animals of the period.

The great drama opened its summer season in the Black Hills this year after just concluding a road tour of major American cities where many all-time attendance records were established.

The Black Hills Passion Play was first presented in 1242 A. D. by the Monks of the Cappenburg Manastery. Later the good citizens of Luenen continued to produce the play.

Meier, who plays "Christus" is the descendant of seven generations of Passion Play artists. He first appeared in the production at the age of ten weeks as the Christ child and has been in the play ever since. He is now 37 years of age.

One of the most impressive features are the lighting effects which have produced audible "Ohs" and "Ahs" from audiences all over the world. In scene after scene the special lighting effects show the pale dawn blending into the brilliant light of day, and then into the peaceful calm stillness of night.

The play confines itself to the last seven days of the Life of Christ and is given in twenty-two impressive scenes starting with the triumphal entry into Jerusalem and running smoothly through to one of the great highlights of the production—The Crucifixion of Christ, followed by the Ascension, and has given audiences the world over a true and thrilling conception of this, "The Greatest Story of All Times."

Today in the United States in the tiny village of Spearfish in the Black Hills of South Dakota the largest Passion Play stage in the world has been erected, a stage over three blocks long with a huge amphitheatre seating 8,000 persons.

Proving the success of the American version, more than 500,000 persons flocked to Spearfish last Summer to withness the Americanization of the age-old drama.

Since its removal to this country the play has grown in stature until now it is the largest production of its kind in the world.

Fort Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce announces that for the Fort Wayne showing in the Shrine auditorium, there will be a special student matinee at reduced prices for all out of town students on Saturday, October 4. Tickets will be available at Passion Play Headquarters, 135 West Washington Boulevard.

U. S. S. INDIANA TO BE LAUNHCED IN DECEMBER

Keeping pace with the even increasing tempo of the National Defense program is construction work on the mammoth new 85,000 ton battleship, the USS INDIANA, third ship to bear the name of the Hoosier state.

With the launching date set for December 19 of this year officials of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, Newport News, Va., report no let up in the production schedule to prepare the giant ship for that date. Secretary of Navy Knox has selected Mrs. Lewis C. Robbins, daughter of the Honorable Henry F. Shricker, Governor of the State of Indiana, and Mrs. Schricker, to serve as sponsor and to perform the launching rites.

The new Indiana was laid down November 20, 1939.

In comparison with the new Indiana the first ship to bear that name was of 10,288 tons and was launched February 28, 1893. Capt. Robley D. (Fighting Bob) Evans was the ship's first commanding officer. The ship saw service in the Spanish-American War and as a training ship. The second vessel to bear the name of the Hoosier state was under construction at the time of the Washington Arms Conference and was never completed.

Three sister ships of the new Indiana, the USS South Dakota, USS Washington, and USS North Carolina, already have been commissioned. The Indiana, will, as well as her sisters, mount nine 16-inch guns in three turrets on the main batteries. Secondary batteries of these ships have a large number of small guns to guard against destroyer and cruiser attack. Heavy batteries of anti-aircraft guns also are included.

A size of the Indiana may be had by imagining her stern in the Circle at Indianapolis and her prow at about the center of the Federal Building, approximately one and one-half blocks in length. Her beam (width) is 108 feet, just narrow enough to allow one foot on either side when going through the locks of the Panama Canal. Her speed is reported at approximately 27 knots.

Ray Smith, secretary to Governor Schricker, reports that plans are now under consideration to take an official party to the launching ceremonies. The party would include high ranking state and public officials as well as Navy personnel of the Indiana Area.

MISS MANN ADVISES YOUNG MEN TO JOIN U. S. AIR FORCE

Miss Doris Mann, Ohio State University graduate student, is the honorary sponsor of the September class of Fifth Corps Area Army Aviation Cadets, it was announced at Fort Hayes.

Miss Mann, daughter of Major C. C. Mann, Retired, 1461 Worthington St., Columbus, Ohio, has been the regimental sponsor of the O. S. U. Pershing Rifles.

KEEP 'EM FLYING!

"I have always considered the Air Corps the outstanding branch of the Army," Miss Mann said. "The Air Corps—either for a pilot or a member of a ground unit—is the place for every worthwhile young American who seeks adventure, education and security. Every time I have an opportunity for air travel, I 'fly to it.' I understand why everyone is becoming air-minded. There are still splendid opportunities in the U. S. Army for qualified young men to train as pilots. Young man, go to the nearest Army recruiting station and apply for your $25,000 Army Air Force scholarship," is the wisdom delivered by discerning Doris—just like a Mann!

LADIES LITERARY CLUB ENTERTAINED BY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The executive committee of the Ladies Literary Club, of St. Joe, entertained the club members to a buffet supper at the home of the club president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Wednesday evening, September tenth, at 6:30 DST

The tomato cocktails and red and green napkins were served on a silver tray by Nancy Monroe and Virginia Wilbern. The club collect was read by Mrs. Inez Hadesll. The dining table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a beautiful bouquet of Fall flowers, from this the members served themselves to candied sweet potatoes, ham balls, cauliflower and hot rolls. They were then seated at card tables covered with white luncheon cloths and centered with small bouquets of the Fall flowers. Each place was marked with silver, a red or green napkin and a plate of golden salod.

The new club president, Mrs. Wilbern, gave a short talk and Mrs. Frank Curie then presented Mrs. Fred B. Leighty with a gift from the club in appreciation of her years of club critic.

The last course of the supper was then served, it consisted of red raspberry ice cream, wafers and coffee.

The members were given numbers and exchanged places at the tables. After all were seated several contests were presented, which were enjoyed by all.

There were fifteen members, two emeritus members, Mrs. Delora Curie and Mrs. Loretta Hull, one guest, Miss Nancy Monroe and the executive committee, present.

The next meeting will be held September 24 with Mrs. Frank Stevenson at Spencerville.

Just because a man's collar is white, doesn't mean he always acts that way in front of his acquaintances.

With one zipper manufacturer cutting production to save metal for defense, we may be handed back to the safety pin era.

If you aren't a clock watcher, you are probably a whistle listener.

Why do they test a man on a lie detector when his wife could save them all of that trouble?

That fellow you call a tightwad, will probably never be found in a line waiting for relief.

No more of a pleasant home-coming can be received than when a borrowed book comes back after wandering years from hand to hand.

No party is a success to the hostess who hasn't cleaned up the mess the night before.

Many a man has saved for his old age and his heirs will get the most of it.

Just at a time when the federal government is urging dairymen to increase their production of dairy products as a defense activity, the announced change in the margarine standards and the support to that product by the federal government appears to be a sharp knife in the back of American dairymen.

Now that our government has openly espoused Communist Russia and is throwing "all-out" aid to the Stalin regime, it is interesting to wonder how soon the Communist chief in the United States, Earl Browder, will be released from Atlanta Penitentiary and assume his "rightful" place in our New Deal scheme of things.

Australia produced nearly 84,000,000 bushels of wheat last season, compared with 210,283,000 in 1939-40.

When the news broke that the Federeal Reserve Board was preparing regulations to control installment credit, buyers rushed in to buy cars, refrigerators and similar goods before the deadline, in fear that the new rules would make installment purchasing next to impossible. Now, however, the rules have been issued, and it appears that this fear was generally unjustified. All they do is to prevent the issuance of excessive credit, and to make illegal certain credit practices which industry and financial authorities alike have long considered unsound and potentially dangerous.

You'll have to pay a third down when you buy your new car (the trade-in of your present car may be used for all or part of that third, as in the past) and maximum period of payment is 18 months. If you want a new refrigerator, ironer, stove, electric dishwasher, washing machine, room-unit air conditioner, radio set or musical instrument, you must pay 20 per cent down and the balance in 18 months. For furnaces, furniture, water heaters and pumps and other home items, only 15 per cent need be paid down, an 18 months credit period is allowed. On materials for house improvement or alteration, there is no limitation on the percentage of credit that may be issued, up to $1,000, but the pay-off must be made in 18 months.

Some think that in the future these rules will have to be made far stricter, in order to conserve essential materials, to encourage savings, and to combat price inflation. In the meantime, only the buyer who wants extremely "easy" credit, will be affected.

COMES AUTUMN

And so comes the rains of Fall to carry with them the mists and fog to cloak the hills and dales in a soft screen of Autumn's yearly offering to beauty. The roadside shows much greenery turning to rust, yellow and brown with a wide dash of scarlet here and there to brighten the view. Drops drip from the eaves and drooping wet leaves lift to watch the banks of fleecy clouds whose billowing shapes seem to be stencilled against the sky. Comes the glorious sunset of gold and red that makes man marvel over nature's artistry and her ability to paint the picture so faultlessly true to each season. Such scenes, if duplicated on canvas, would almost heem to be exaggerated by a too enthusiastic painter. We have seen this vision of Autumn and know that as long as we can step out under such glory that whatever life offers us that is difficult to take, if we but keep our eyes on that beauty which is Autumn, our spirit will be strengthened and our individual burdens lightened.

RULE OR RUIN

Electric power is vital to the homes, the farms, and the industries of this country. It is vital to the defense drive. It is one basic service for which there is no substitute. And the United States has been long blessed with the best, the cheapest, and the most abundant electric power supply on earth.

That was an achievement of private initiative, of private capital. Government had nothing to do with the pioneering of electrical development. Many living people can remember when wiseacres were saying that electricity was an interesting phenomenon which would never have any practical use. But a few visionaries risked their energies, their money and their time. They took a long chance. So a great industry was born. And this great industry was developed and perfected by individuals who had faith in electricty's future, and who backed that faith with theier money and their abilities.

Today we are witnessing an extraordinary thing. On the one hand we have the $14,000,000,000 power industry. It is taxed to the hilt and regulated to the limit. It is eager to go ahead, to spend billions for expansion and betterment, to install, on behalf of America's defense, the vast generating and distributing facilities we will need.

On the other hand we have a political attack, carried on by men high in government, whose purpose is to destroy the private power industry, to socialise all electric facilities, and to thus build the greatest patronage machine in our history.

This attack is largely responsible for whatever power shortages now exist. It blocked normal electric development for the past seven years. The socializers of power are far more interested in gaining their ideological ends than they are in assuring an adequate supply of power to America. If electric power development is what they want, private enterprise can produce it faster than political management—and without cost to the taxpayers. Their policy is rule or ruin. Their technique is that of Hitler—divide, isolate and conquer.

The issue is really simple: Does this nation wish to encourage state socialism, which is the background of the whole Hitler program?

It is high time that the Federal government made clear to the people what its electric power policy is to be, instead of promoting socialism by indirection.

LOOK AT THE FACTS

Those who urge socialized medicine seem to blind themselves to facts. For the plain truth is that our system of private, independent medicine has been responsible for practically all of the great medical discoveries and advances of modern times.

It was independent medicine that discovered vaccination, developed abdominal surgery, and has practically abolished diphtheria and typhodi. It is independent medicine that has put tuberculosis, a disease which was once considered incurable and the harbinger of certain death, "on the run." It is independent medicine that has reduced childhood deaths and illnesses to but a fraction of what they were twenty or thirty years ago. And it is independent medicine which is making great strides in combating other bacterial killers.

Under a system of socialized medicine, the doctor is simply a creature of the state. The competitive urge—which makes for progress in every field of life—no longer exists. There is little opportunity for advancement. The security of his position depends on pleasing the politicians in power—not on the success with which he handles his practice. That is not theory—the history of socialized medicine in the many countries in which it has been tried, tells the story.

Americans have become the healthiest, longest-lived people on earth.

THE BEST PLACE TO LIVE

Compared with any other country on the face of the globe the United States is the best place to live.

For instance, in the matter of automobiles, France shows one car to 25 persons, England shows one to 25, Germany one to 55, Italy one to 109, and the United States one to every five persons.

We own 44 per cent of the radios.

We have twice as many homes per thouasnd of population as compared to the other most cultured countries in the world.

The amount of insurance we have in our country is double that of the rest of the world.

With only 6 per cent of the world's area and only 7 per cent of its population, we consume 48 per cent of the worlds' coffee, 53 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, 21 per cent of its sugar, 72 per cent of its silk, 36 per cent of its coal, 42 per cent of its pig iron, 47 per cent of its copper and 70 per cent of its petroleum.

These facts and figures argue more strongly for the American System than the eloquence of the most silver-tongued Fourth-of-July orator.

LOWER TAX RATES IN DEKALB COUNTY

The tax levies in DeKalb County for 1942, as recommended by the tax adjustment board, are lower in nineteen units as compared with 1941 and higher in only four. The rate in Union Township remains the same.

The rates established for next year and the amounts of reductions follow:

Unit	Rate	Reduction
Auburn	$2.32	.04
Ashley	$3.55	.07
Corunna	$2.38	.14
St. Joe	$2.34	.24
Waterloo	$3.15	.29
Butler Twp.	$1.21	.21
Concord	$1.69	.25
Fairfield	$1.70	.16
Franklin	$1.97	.17
Grant	$1.91	.27
Jackson	$1.23	.07
Newville	$1.50	.42
Richland	$1.49	.15
Smithfield	$2.30	.14
Spencer	$1.71	.15
Stafford	$1.02	.36
Troy	$1.27	.19
Wilmington	$1.16	.04

Those units in which increases are made follows:

Unit	Rate	Increase
Garrett	$3.20	.35
Altona	$2.51	.21
Butler City	$3.18	.12
Keyser Twp.	$2.00	.41

The Union Township levy for both 1941 and 1942 is $1.08 on the $100 valuation.

All of Budget Rates Cut

Reductions in all levies from the amounts advertised for 1942 resulted from the meetings of the county council and the adjustment board. Following are the budget rates and the amounts of reductions:

Unit	Levy	Reduction
Auburn	$2.52	.20
Garrett	$3.46	.17
Altona	$2.93	.42
Ashley	$4.01	.46
Butler City	$3.31	.13
Corunna	$2.59	.21
St. Joe	$2.75	.41
Waterloo	$3.36	.21
Butler Twp.	$1.40	.19
Concord	$2.10	.41
Fairfield	$1.95	.25
Franklin	$2.00	.12
Grant	$2.06	.15
Jackson	$1.33	.10
Keyser	$2.31	.22
Newville	$1.69	.19
Richland	$1.63	.14
Smithfield	$2.86	.56
Spencer	$1.82	.11

The poor relief rates for 1942 were reduced in all units by the tax adjusters, who held that it was not necessary to establish such large working balances as had been provided for. The board also decided that the welfare rate could be cut from 16 cents, as set by the council, to 14 cents. The rate advertised was 18 cents, the welfare department stating that it would need that rate to meet the demands under the liberalizing laws passed by the 1941 legislature and the increased cost of living for reipients of assistance.

The council made some decreases in budget items and then cut the levy 2 cents. The adjusters made another similar reduction. They decided that the amount provided by the 14 cent levy would be adequate to meet the department's needs. The levy for 1941 was 7 cents.

The county general fund levy is 26 cents, a reduction of 6 cents under the advertised rate and 2 cents under the rate collected in 1941.

Poor Relief Increases

The poor relief increase in Garrett, Altona and Keyser Township for 1942 as compared with 1941 is 27 cents, from 21 to 48 cents. Ashley had no such levy in 1941, but a rate of 23 cents next year. St. Joe and Concord are increased 1 cent; Waterloo and Grant Township 16 cents; Newville Township 3 cents; and Smithfield Township 23 cents, having no levy for the purpose in 1941.

Units which have no poor relief levy for either 1941 or 1942 follow: Auburn, Jackson, Spencer, Troy and Union. Butler city is reduced from 7 to 6, Corunna from 11 to 10, Butler Township from 14 to 1, Fairfield from 11 to 2, Franklin from 54 to nothing, Richland from 11 to 10.

Those units whose levies will be automatically appealed to the state board of tax commissioners, because of exceeding the legal limits, are Garrett, Ashley, Altona, Butler city, Corunna, St. Joe, Waterloo, Concord Township, Fairfield, Franklin, Grant, Keyser, Newville, Smithfield, Spencer and Union. Other rates also may be appealed by action of taxpayers. It is probable that the welfare department will take an appeal because of the cuts in its levy made by the county council and the tax adjustment board.

Serving as members of the adjustment board were S. O. Devitt, of Wilmington Township, John Zimmerman, of Auburn, Elmer D. Case, of Fairfield Township, and H. M. Van Lear, of Garrett, appointed by Judge W. P. Endicott; Ward Baughman of Keyser Township, representing the county council; Carl F. Stallman, county superintendent of schools, representing the county board of education, and R. Wayne Smith, an Auburn city councilman, designated by Mayor Lodie Potter.

The Three Rs

While modern, streamlined and scientific methods of education have resulted in what seems to be a terrific change from the days of the "little red schoolhouse," the opening of school still spells a return to the three Rs for nation's thousands of school children. Immortalized in the song "School Days," these three Rs—Readin', 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic still form the basis of much that is vital in elementary education. Thus the picture of Young America on the march with their textbooks and the song—herald another "Opening of School."

School Days, School Days,
Dear old Golden Rule days,
Readin' and 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic
Taught to the tune of a hickory stick.
You were my queen in calico,
I was your bashful, barefoot beau,
And you wrote on my slate:
"I love you, Joe"—
When we were a couple of kids.

LOG of the UNITED STATES MARINES

KEEPS LONELY VIGIL

From the life of a bandsman in far-off China to that of a radio operator on the lonely island of Atka, one of the Aleutian group, was the odd transition made by Charles R. Magee, a former U. S. Marine.

Magee and his wife are the only white persons on the island. The remaining eighty-five inhabitants are Aleuts, who in appearance and mode of living resemble the Esquimaux.

From his island outpost Magee sends radio dispatches several times daily and makes daily observations for the Weather Bureaeu. Mrs. Magee, assisted by her husband, conducts a school for the island children.

About twice a year, although its visits are by no means regular, a supply boat reaches Atka and adds some welcome items to a somewhat monotonous bill-of-fare. The only available supply of fresh meat is from reindeer herds on the island.

For years Magee was in the Marine Corps band attached to the American Legation at Peiping, China, and he also served as a musician at several posts in the United States.

When he left the service his comrades lost track of him. He happened to tune in on a band concert given by the Marine Band at Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands, some 2,000 miles away. Magee immediately wrote a letter to his buddies at that naval station, but it took months to reach them.

Like sea soldiers all over the world he remembered the Marine Corps tradition: "Once a marine, always a marine."

Surviving are one adopted daughter, Mrs. Ray Carnahan, of Jackson Township; two brothers, John Griffin, of Huntertown, and Jesse Griffin, of Garrett; three sisters, Mrs. Celia Pepple, of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Anna Rugman, of Garrett and Mrs. Effie Griffin, and five grandchildren.

STREAM POLLUTION RAISES IRE OF MANY CITIZENS

The pollution of the St. Joe River the past two weeks has caused much concern of Conservation Clubs as well as residents along the stream, and it has been traced to Edon, Ohio, canning refuse.

For miles along the stream last week, fish were found dead at the water's edge, crabs were lined along the bank, and clams were all dead as a result. The water has taken on a black appearance and besides being extremely low has wrought havoc to all the life of the river for miles.

Some of the bass have been salvaged by men and placed in gravel pits to recover.

The state has taken action through the health department at Ft. Wayne as the water supply of the city is taken from the St. Joe River.

All the efforts of conservation for 10 years has been wiped out completely.

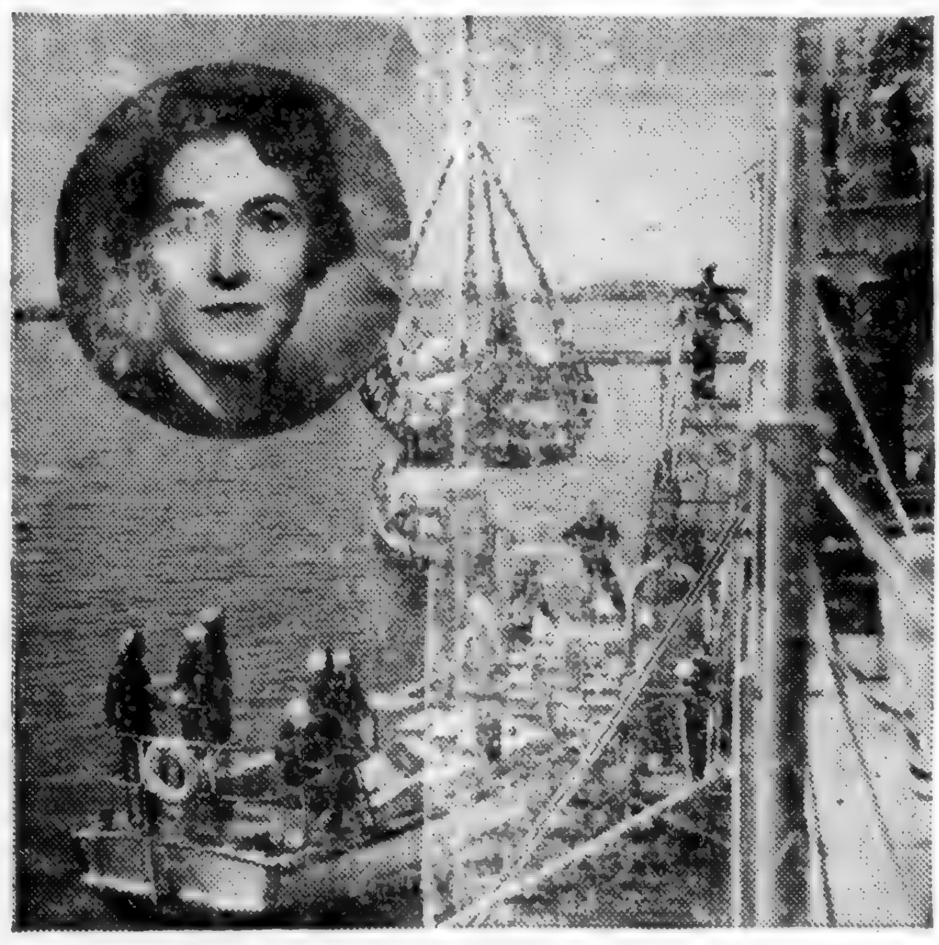
UNCLE SAM'S SAILORS GO MARKETING



"When Uncle Sam's sailors go marketing, they always return with a full market bag," says Dr. Mary de Garmo Bryan (pictured in insert). Dr. Bryan should know for she is chairman of a committee of more than twenty of the country's outstanding food experts who have been appointed to create a new official Navy cook book.

Dr. Bryan's committee has spent more than six months testing recipes for Uncle Sam's Navymen on large groups of civilian athletes and assures us that the United States bluejackets are already the best-fed sailors in the world.

Recruits in both the Navy and the Naval Reserve also are offered opportunities to receive free training to become expert cooks and bakers. "There is always a demand for good Navy-trained cooks and bakers in civilian life," said Dr. Bryan. "In New York City, for example, the usual wage for an expert cook or baker is $40 to $50 a week and $75 is the average weekly salary for chefs at the better hotels and restaurants. In addition to training in cooking and baking, the U. S. Navy and Naval Reserve offer training opportunities in nearly fifty other different skilled trades and vocations. Any patriotic and ambitious young man who wants to serve his country and build his future should look into the opportunities offered for service in our new "Two-Ocean" Navy.

THE SONG OF THE LAZY FARMER

As I was sayin' to my wife, of all the wondrous things in life that make things pleasant on the farm and lighten work on back and arm, electric current is the best. It sure has given us a rest from turnin' cranks; my boyhood was just one bad dream of cranks, because between the grindstone and the churn, it allus was my job to turn them cranks with which the farms abound, with boys to turn 'em round and round. But now them days are gone, instead, we push a button overhead and motors pump and wash and churn and there ain't no more cranks to turn. Now life's worth while, when most our toil is squirtin' on a little oil and watchin' motors work while we can just enjoy ourselves, by gee.

We used to stub our toes and bark our shins, a-workin' in the dark, a-doin' chores by lantern light. Them lanterns allus was a sight, they'd puff and smoke and git so dim you couldn't hardly see a glim. You couldn't see a thing, because, to find out where the lantern was you'd have to strike a match, at night you couldn't see that lantern light from cow to cow, you might as well have gone by feel, you couldn't tell which cow you'd milked, you'd stumble round, and some of them you never found. But now the barn is light as day, you do the chores and pitch down hay as well by night time as at noon, and git your work done half as soon. In less than half the time of yore you are are all through with ev'ry chore, and then when you sit down to read the light's so good you hardly need your spectacles, there ain't a thing I'd trade that current for, by jing.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1941 NUMBER 39

CHILDREN REGARDED AS STATE RESPONSIBILITY

More than 12,000 homeless, abandoned or neglected children under 21 years of age are receiving child welfare services from the state welfare department.

Through the co-operation of the 92 county departments of public welfare and the child welfare workers of the children's division, the state welfare department has been able to provide advisory services and vocational guidance programs for the hundreds of homeless children of the state who have been placed in foster homes.

Of the total number of 12,515 children under care during June, 2,813 children were residents of children's institutions, 4,995 were in foster homes and the remainder were being cared for in their own homes or with relatives.

The director said if we could approach the solution of all our social problems by beginning with the child, we would save untold misery in this world as well as a great burden of public expense. Neglected and homeless children who have been deprived of their own homes are being taken from poor social surroundings and are being placed in a wholesome foster home environment by the welfare department.

Foster homes are obtained through the genuine interest of persons who desire to have children in their own home and who are genuinely interested in community welfare. Hundreds of persons have notified county welfare departments all over the state of their willingness to provide a foster home for a helpless and neglected child.

By care for the child in a foster home is meant more than just food and shelter; it includes those personal services which a parent gives his own child: training him to handle money and to make purchases; to accept responsibility in the household tasks according to his age and ability; giving him wholesome recreational outlets, and, most important, offering him the affection and comradeship of adults.

George Kees, of south of Garrett, has no doubt been reading in The News of the keen competition in the showing of corn in our windows, so this week he entered two stalks of soy beans, and they are in a class by themselves so far. Trips during the week rather than on week ends, are urged this year, as a means of enabling all visitors to enjoy the autumn scenery and the facilities of the parks more fully than when both the highways and parks are crowded.

The great drama has been breaking all time attendance records in major cities all over the nation, and it was witnessed by more than 500,000 tourists this Summer in its permanent home in the Black Hills of Spearfish, South Dakota. The great drama is presented in Fort Wayne under sponsorship of the Fort Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A corps of workmen will meet the vans and immediately start preparations for the premiere scheduled for Wednesday. There will be a special premiere showing for students of the Fort Wayne public schools at 2:00 P. M., and the Fort Wayne premiere, for the first time in the English laguage, will take place at 8:00 Wednesday night. There will be a special student matinee for out of town students on Saturday, October 4, at 2:00.

The equipment used in the production of this great historical drama is said to exceed that of any other production in the world. It was pointed out by members of the Fort Wayne Junior Chamber of Commerce, the sponsors.

Josef Meier is featured as the Christus in the lavish drama which has been produced for years with little regard for expense.

One of the most impressive features is the lighting effects which have produced audible "Ohs" and "Ahs" from audiences all over the world. In scene after scene the special lighting effects show the pale dawn blending into the brilliant light of day and then, into the peaceful, calm stilless of the night. All in all, the twenty-two impressive scenes from this great production starts with the triumphant entry into Jerusalem, and running smoothly through to one of the greatest highlights of the drama, the Crucifixion Scene, followed by the Ascension, has given audiences the world over a true and thrilling conception of this—the greatest story of all times.

The old custom of giving the boy friend a lock of hair is no good today, for they wouldn't know where to carry it.

OLD TIME PHOTOS

Many of today's luxuries through common usage have assumed the proportion of necessities. Photography is one of them. We go back in memory to when it was in the form of stereographs. Those pictures entertained friends in the evenings when the complete sets were taken from their ornate boxs on top of the marble stand in the parlor. There were the stereoptican views on paper and the more expensive ones on glass, all painted in delicate shades to draw ohs and ahs for the glory of American and the history of Europe. Of course the family album had its place on the entertainment program but the views of Niagara and Palestine seemed to outshine in popularity views of Aunt Hepsibah and Uncle Grover. Little did the folks who placed the sterescopes to their eyes, adjusting the slide and pressing the velvet edge close to the cheeks, think that the future would find about everyone running about snapping this and that, with movies and photogenic matter a topic of common interest.

INDIAN DAY

With the season of harvest, the garnering of grain and storing of nature's goods from a winter of frozen ground and barren fields, comes the reminder that the Fourth Friday of each September, and that is tomorrow, is named American Indian Day. As surely as we sow and reap, as certainly as we mill and store, so do we in DeKalb County owe our American Indians this memory. They have had a real struggle to keep alive their individuality, their habits and customs, even the race itself. This is the season of the year when we associate our thots with the Indian for what better season would you give him? The history of the Indian is bound with the symbol of the corn, shock, tassel and the ear. As we trod through autumn woods, praise the harvest moon, sigh over the beauty of a lake and sunset, think of Indian lore, of their poetry and music.

THOSE OLD TIMERS

They tell us that the used car dealers are doing extra business because of the shortage of new cars. Wonder if the used car dealer will be able to sell to the owner of that run down, antiquated model we passed on the road Sunday. Maybe the good used car may take some of these badly worn cars off the highway. A big percentage of auto accidents are traced to worn brake bands, poor tires and lights and so on. Often these models are owned by people who have no insurance to cover an accident. There are many people who can't afford another car. But man has a certain responsibility to others and if he must drive such a car it is his duty to keep it in the safest condition possible, being sure to afford to protect his fellowmen by carrying insurance.

POOR SPELLERS

Each year finds our national school system more efficient. We are proud indeed of our educational advantages offered the young but many people in St. Joe still have one criticism to make that appears to indicate our school system is lacking in one respect. We may have it over our grandparents in a general education but you can bet their generation could spell better than scholars of today. From what we have heard, they used to figure in the old days that spelling was something very important in education even if you could conjugate a lot of Latin verbs. We aren't trying to cast any reflection on the methods employed in our schools but there are a lot of business men who employ a number of graduates every year, who complain about what poor spellers there are coming from our schools.

In recent years there has been a revival of the old-fashioned spelling bee of those long ago days when it was considered something of a disgrace to be a poor speller. Radio stations have used the spelling game for competition and entertainment. If these spelling bees help to make good spellers then we should encourage them. Start noticing how keen are so many of these minds, with what ease they memorize lengthy passages from books, quote figures and facts rapidly and correctly, but then ask them to spell ten ordinary words. Maybe it is because we have a hard time getting the letters in the right place that we want our young ones to do better.

BUTTER'S SUBSTITUTE

They seem to be having their troubles over the issue concerning the laws of coloring and adding vitamins to oleomargarine and giving it to the public as butter's substitute. The people chiefly upset about the situation are the dairymen who protest the move as only leading to sending our butter supplies to England and keeping this newly marked oleo product for our country's use. But probably the thing behind this new act to color and add vitamins to oleo is to increase the sale of it. It is a product that has been widely advertised and there are many people who have used it for a long time. Some wouldn't touch it for nothing could replace the use of butter to them. A good many housewives have used it for cooking purposes for many years. But as long as oleo is marked as to its contents, is not passed as butter, is placed on menus in restaurants that might use it, then we wonder if it is possible to keep this product from entering as competition. Few people in St. Joe who do not prefer butter on their bread but there might be homes where it is economically impossible to buy much of it especially when the price is so high. So what do they do—use oleo and find it eatable, wholesome and far better than using lard or just syrup. To try and keep a substitute for butter off of the shelf will not necessarily put more butter on the shelf. It will only draw more attention to the substitute!

THE SONG OF THE LAZY FARMER

'Bout once a year we have to go to town and spend a week or so with Jane Mirandy's relatives, there ain't a thing we do that gives me such a pain. I like them folks and I can stand their city jokes, but when comes mealtime, there's the rub, a-livin' on their city gdub. For breakfast, they don't have a thing except a little toast, by jing, some coffee and some orange juice, I tell Mirandy what's the use of gittin' up from out the hay if you don't gie to start the day, some fried potatoes and some pie. I like a breakfast that stays by a feller part the way till noon. I wasn't raised upon a spoon. At dinner time they have a lunch, I tell Mirandy I've a hunch that them folks won't know what to say if they could see me stow away the pancakes and the steaks at hum, it isn't worth our while to come a-visitin' them folks for what we git to eat; as like as not, a little olive or beet is them folks' idee of a treat. But as for me, when mealtime's here, I like to see food disappear.

A salad seems to make them feel that they have had a good square meal; then some celery to nibble at just kids them into thinkin' that they've et, it ain't no wonder us poor farmers can't sell our surplus. If city folks would learn to eat the way they should, with spuds and meat for ev'ry meal, our markets would right soon be gittin' pretty good. Then we could sell the stuff we raise and needn't long for better days. There'd be demand for all we grow and plenty more; we'd plow and sow, a-knowin' that come sellin' time the price would be more apt to climb than drop a peg. life sure'd be sweet if city folks would learn to eat.

The DeKalb County Welfare Department announces that no appeal will be taken by it to the state tax board from the action of the county council and tax adjustment board in reducing its budget and levy for 1942. The rate set up by the welfare board was 18 cents on the $100 valuation. The council made a cut of 2 cents and the adjusters took off 2 cents more. The council and adjustment board decided that the department could meet the demands upon it with a lower levy. It is possible that the state welfare department will file an appeal with the state tax commissioners.

THE BEAUTY IN THE SKY THURSDAY NIGHT

Beauty lovers in St. Joe and vicinity were treated Thursday night to a dazzling sky display of aurora borealis, or northern lights. The phenomenon began about 7:30 P. M. and lasted until 11 o'clock. The northeastern sky was a brilliant green, and a brilliant red color lit up the southwest sky. Through this were shot silver shafts of light. The lights also were on display Wednesday night, but as they were not visible until late, few persons witnessed them. The region in which auroral displays occur has been found to be approximately between 50 and 200 miles above the earth's surface. Analysis of the aurorae has shown that it is produced by electrical discharges in oxygen and nitrogen. Its electrical disturbance has been known to affect telegraph communication and radio.

LOG
UNITED STATES
MARINES

MARINES HAVE WIDE AND VARIED EXPERIENCES

Few Marine Corps officers have had as wide a variety of duties in so many different lands as Major Gen. Clayton B. Vogel, of the Keystone State, who commands the 2nd Division of U. S. Marines at San Diego, Calif.

Scores of assignments from China to Panama and from Cuba to Haiti, including service aboard ships of the Navy, have given General Vogel a wide range of experience in military and naval affairs. At one time he served as a special aide at the White House.

Born in Phildelphia in 1882, he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Corps in 1904, and for the first few years was stationed at a number of east coast naval posts.

Then came tours of duty in China, Panama, Cuba and Haiti, followed by service on the U. S. S. Wyoming, where he served on the staff of the commander of the scouting squadron.

General Vogel has been highly successful in organizing and directing native troops in countries which have been occupied by the Marines. In 1917 and 1918 he was an inspector of the constabulary in Haiti, and 10 years later was Chief of Staff of the Guardia Nacional, the native force of Nicaragua.

He was selected for promotion to his present rank last December, and when the 2nd Division of Marines was established at San Diego a few months ago he was given command of that organization, which forms the western unit of the Fleet Marine Force.

During his more than thirty-six years as a Marine scores of honors have been won by this Keystone officer, and those from the Haitian government alone include the Haitian Distinguished Service Medal, Medaille Militaire, and Brevet of Merit. He has also been awarded Mexican, Nicaraguan, expeditionary and other medals.

LACK OF TRAINING CAUSE OF CRIME

Lack of religious training of the youth of America is one of the major causes of crime, the Rev. Otto Mayer, a member of the International Council of Religious Education declares.

Speaking on the first day of observance nationally of Religious Education Week, which ends Oct. 5, the council's research director said:

"Crime draws recruits from a vast reservoir of 15,000,000 youth who don't go to Sunday School or receive religious instruction in camps, vacation or week day church schools.

"Of the 30,000,000 school age boys and girls in the nation, only 15,000,000 attend Protestant, Catholic and Jewish Sunday Schools," he pointed out.

"The solution," Dr. Mayer said, "lies not only in the expansion of church work, but in the rebirth of christian family life."

Analyzing national crime statistics for 1940 he reported 2,900,000 crimes committed by girls and boys of less than 21 years.

The above statement ought to challenge every parent who heads this, and they should see to it that every child in their family be sent to their Sunday School regularly. Look about you, see whether the above statements are a true picture of this section of DeKalb county, which should be convincing to every parent.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. FRANK STEVENSON

The second meeting of the Ladies Literary Club, of St. Joe, was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Stevenson, in Spencerville, on Wedensday evening, September 24.

The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Mrs. Chas. O. Krise, and the collect was read by Mrs. John R. Leighty. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and accepted. A report of the coming activities of the county federation and the various clubs of the county was given by Mrs. Ralph Keeler. The lesson for the evening taken from the Reader's Digest Books and entitled "Wilderness Wife," was given by Mrs. R. Stanley Garman. "Wilderness Wife" is the story of a city girl ignorant of woods lore, who one day found herself faced with the job of establishing a new home in the Canadian wilderness. It is a story filled with relish and good humor, in which she evaluates the life next to nature, telling of its abundant rewards as well as its unceasing demands.

The special work was a panel discussion on "Parks" in charge of Mrs. Chas. O. Krise. She told interesting facts and the names and locations of our National Parks. Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser asked various questions about the parks and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty helped in answering them. Mrs. Fred Hart told about the Yellowstone National Park which they visited last year and showed pictures of the many beautiful and educational things to be seen there. Mrs. Stanley Garman told about Brown County and Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Spring Mill, which are both in our own state.

After all business was taken care of the meeting was adjourned to meet with Mrs. Ed Storer, Wednesday evening, Oct. 8 at 7:30, C. S. T.

There were twenty-two active members present.

Memories: Home-Mother.

In the long, long ago
When I was but a little girl
And came to mother's knee,
With all my bumps and aches and pains,
She gave me sympathy.
The years have come and gone since then,
But memory lingers still.
Back to those happy childhood days
Up on the old sand hill.

The years have come and gone since then,
And I'm a mother now,
With little ones around my knee
And cares upon my brow.
But with God's help I mean to be
What mother's memory was of me,
Brave and true from day to day
Helping others along life's way.

SHILLING

Malinda Sowers Shilling was born in Springfield township, Allen county, Indiana, Sept. 5, 1864, one of eleven children born to Martin and Mary Sowers and passed from this life Sept. 23, 1941 at the home of her son.

On May 20, 1891 she was united in marriage to Adam Shilling of DeKalb county, Indiana, and together they lived on the old Shilling homestead until 1921 when they retired and moved to St. Joe. Her husband preceded her in death in 1934.

Besides the son, Howard, she leaves but one sister, Mrs. Alonzo Brace, of Hicksville, Ohio, and Lucile Wiler Rothgeb, who shared her shelter for several years.

Mrs. Shilling had been a member of the Methodist Church at Concord from 1892 to 1915 when she transferred her membership to the St. Joe congregation.

She was a devout christian and lived the teachings of the church in her daily life. She closed her life with a reaffirmation of faith in her Lord and with words of repentance and forgiveness on her lips.

Funeral services were conducted from the home of her son, Howard, on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 25, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Frank Stevenson, officiating. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery, St. Joe.

SOY BEANS

We thank China for contributing to our life the soy bean crop. Little did the grower who, a few years back, became convinced that soy beans improved the land, ever expect to obtain $1.40 a bushel in June, 1941. This crop has almost doubled its value in a year and has reached a high for a four-year period. Soy beans are becoming big business with their oil being used in soaps, sauces, paints, ice cream, plastics, infant food, flour, linoleum, glue, automobile parts and on and on. The surface of soy bean culture has only been scratched according to our chemists and engineers. The world is needing oil right now so our men of grain are increasing production of the soy bean. The June market quotation from Chicago shows that this bean crop was 40 cts. higher than wheat, 65 cents higher than corn and more than a dollar above oats. So our farmers increase their acreage and their bank accounts.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

Congress has plenty to occupy its time, but there is no chance that its burden will be lightened. In view of the President's desire to arm merchant ships, a repeal or a modifcation of the Neutrality Act may be necessary. In theory, the law against carrying concealed weapons, which exists on land, is perfectly sound. Ostensibly, it takes the pistol out of the hand of the thug. Practically ,it places the law abiding citizen at the mercy of the hold-up man. Axis submarines would be inclined to go softly if they understood thoroughly that sea-going United States, for the time being, has no conscientious scruples about toting a gun.

Before a Congressional investigating committee, officials of the motion picture industry protest that they are not in league with the United States, or any other country, for the production of war propaganda films. The necessity for inciting the country against the Axis is not under discussion in this paragraph. It is simply pleasing to learn that motion pictures are still a free agent, and that the federal government is concerned in mending its somewhat delapidated protective fences, rather than in stirring up its citizens, by devious means, to a campaign grounded in bare hate.

Secretary Morgenthau's plan to set a limit on the earnings of capital perhaps is wise, in view of the tenseness of the times. There is force, too, in the contention that capital will have to do considerable sacrificing before it is down to the level of a dollar-a-day soldier. It is to be regretted that the Secretary stopped short of trimming all the branches that may require pruning. Most of us subsist through the pay check, yet candor forces the admission that Mr. Morgenthau's opposition to setting a ceiling for wages using that word in a very comprehensive sense, leaves the impression that he has put up at the half-way house, instead of pushing thru to the end of the journey.

An affair of no more consequence than a horse trade generally takes time, and calls for proposals, counter-offers and opportunity for reflection. Naturally enough, an important matter, like reaching an understanding with Japan, cannot be taken up after lunch and disposed of before dinner. Those who feel that negotiations with Japan are moving slowly, and those who think that the body politic should be taken more fully into confidence, should fortify their souls with patience. It may be taken for granted that the United States has no notion of permitting Asiatic control of the Pacific or leaving China to her fate. That stand having been taken firmly, the task of keeping Japan out of the Axis ranks is a delicate one. Blitzkreig and blunderbus diplomacy would accompilsh nothing.

The writer of a fourteen line poem, who refers to the swastika as the "crooked cross," deserves to be elevated from an obscure position at the bottom of a newspaper column. It is not recalled that the sinister symbolism of the Nazi emblem has been brought out in that way heretofore. That the conquered nations of Europe are carrying a heavy cross, none but the Judases and Benedict Arnolds of those lands can deny. Repudiation of aggressive intent, coupled with active preparation for aggression at the very moment when international friendship is being promised, gives a definite and positive meaning to the word "crooked."

Since the beginning of the war, Washington has been a popular port of call for European dignitaries, statesmen and ropalty; possibly because Uncle Sam has changed the cut of his whiskers and donned the raiment of Santa Claus. A prince running at large in Washington has come to mean nothing at all. Nevertheless, the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor attracted a good deal of attention, based on a sincere feeling of good-will. England now does not entrust its former king with even so small a mission as dickering for aid. He has stepped down from his high estate. Withal, the Duke is assured of a warm welcome whenever he crosses American soil. It is all well enough to say that kings are no better than anyone else; yet most persons are pleased to discover that such merchandise as love, sentiment and romance has so high a value that exchanging a throne for it is not considered a bad bargain.

BUYING ON TIME

The extent of installment-buying extends to every hamlet of the nation. It is estimated that the installment paying public owes manufacturers and retailers about $8,800,000,000. That is a part of the credit system of our people. The destruction of that form of financing would mean that millions of persons with small incomes will be deprived of the only way in which they have to gain credit.

If the United States Government is going to continue to sponsor the idea of buying a home with 15 per cent down, and the balance on very long term credits then why doesn't the same principle hold good in the way it has been practiced by merchants, manufacturers and financial concerns who have built up their business along those lines? Young married couples buy their houses, furniture and automobiles on the installment plan; the merchants everywhere sell clothing and all kinds of goods and supplies on the installment basis. Electric refrigerators, radios and hundreds of articles of merchandise are part of this $8,800,000,000 credit system, which the installment-paying public wants, and uses.

Who is to be benefitted by cracking down on those same 4,911,000 young people who will pay income taxes for the first time the coming year?

Officer: Where d'ya think you're going, to a fire?

Driver: Well, in a way, Officer. They just 'phoned me that the Martins have had a fire. Kitchen ruined . . . maid's hands burned. Mr. Martin's away . . . and his wife's all upset. So, I'm hurrying over. Did come up a little fast . . . I'm sorry.

Officer: And what are you—friend of the family?

Driver: More than that, Officer. I'm their insurance agent, too, and naturally they expect me to be on the job at a time like this.

I have to admit you're right—there's no need for hurry. Their insurance protection was worked out carefully months ago, just as you fellows plan in advance against all kinds of law breakers. Bet the Martins never before appreciated the importance of this as fully as they do now!

Officer: Gosh, Mister, I guess it is your fire!

Tulip Poplar Seed to be Collected By Scouts for State Nurseries

Boy Scouts throughout Indiana are leading a state-wide campaign this month for the collection of tulip poplar seed which will be planted in the state forest nurseries, Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, announced.

Cooperation of the Scouts in the collection of seed from Indiana's state tree was arranged by John S. Wright, chairman of the tree and roadside planting committee of the Indiana Historical Society. Awards will be made to the Scout Troops making the best record in the state-wide campaign.

Difficulty has been experienced by the Division of Forestry in securing tulip poplar seed for the state nurseries with the result that the production of this species was insufficient to meet the demands for planting stock at a time when many organizations and individuals were interested in planting tulip poplar trees. The cooperation of the Scouts is expected to provide a large quantity of seed and make it possible to furnish enough "state" trees to meet the demand.

Scores of Scout Troops have written the Division of Forestry, announcing their participation in the campaign. Each Troop has been furnished a set of detailed instructions on the proper methods of collecting, handling and shipping the seed to the state forest nurseries.

This is another example, Mr. Barnhart pointed out, of the contribution which Indiana's Boy Scouts are making to the conservation program as an organization and as individuals.

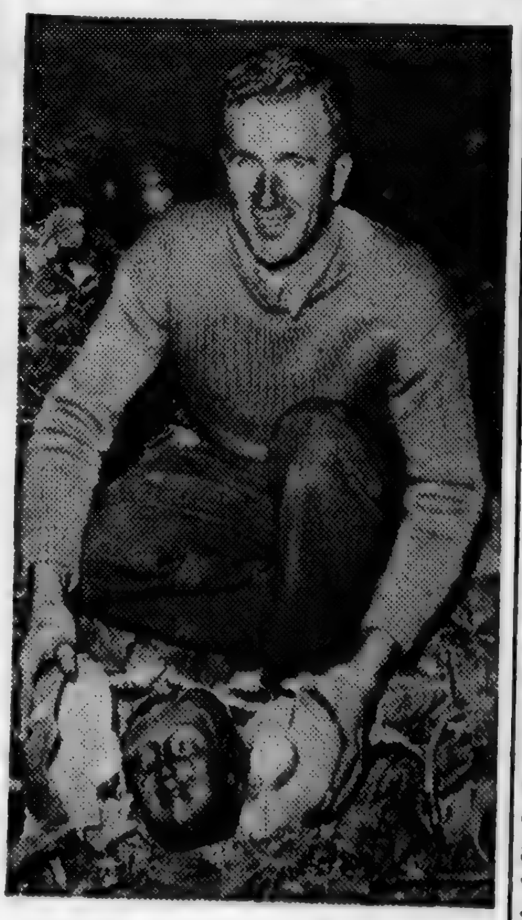
Some Pumpkins!

Pumpkins with faces! Don't you believe it?

Well, it's true.

An agricultural wizard by the name of John Cz (and we do mean Cz) of Madison, Ohio, is actually growing pumpkins that resemble anyone that Farmer Cz chooses to caricature. Take a look!



Smiling at you here is Farmer Cz who induces Mother Nature to produce pumpkins that resemble Jimmy Durante, Clark Gable, Greta Garbo, or—but just name your celebrity. He calls them "personality pumpkins" and finds growing them a lark. (Incidentally, he finds it quite profitable.) Here's the procedure:

Mr Cz first makes a plaster mold of the face he is wishing on the pumpkin, and then an aluminum cast from this mold. While the pumpkin is in its early stages of growth he imprisons it in the mold. Nature does the rest. When maturity is reached the mold is removed (as shown above) and Mr. Cz inserts eyes, skilfully tinted, and teeth. The result is striking, if not alarming.

Mr. Cz does not "personalize" all his pumpkins. People still like their pumpkin pie impersonal.

MARINES' REAL BATTLES RIVAL MOVIE THRILLERS

Film thrillers, which depict the U. S. Marines engaged in some fanciful adventures, have become a stock product of the Hollywood studios, but the real aventures of the leathernecks rival those of the screen.

At present, a revival of "Devil Dogs of the Air" shows some marvelous flying scenes and is filled with hair-raising thrills. This is not surprisng as no group of flying men have spread their wings over more different lands or have encountered more exciting adventures than the flying leathernecks.

Sea soldiers had a real test of their flying skill when they flew over the mountainous districts of Haiti and Nicaragua, where a forced landing meant an unavoidable crack-up.

They have taken off or landed on the decks of warships, have bombed bandits from the air, and have flown over the Mississippi to aid flood victims. Using their planes as ambulances, they have flown out to sea to transport the sick back to the medical attention they needed ashore.

Marine air scouts in Central America found a marooned garrison besieged by bandits, and their pilots sped back to their base to muster a squadron of planes which routed the foe and saved the garrison. These affairs are a part of their official record.

No matter how fanciful some service films have been, the most exciting adventures of the flying marines have occured far from the movie lots, Klieg lights and cameras of Hollywood.

MOVIE STAR JOINS U.S. NAVY

Ensign Wayne Morris Seeks Wings

Wayne Morris, recent star of "I Wanted Wings," became a member of Uncle Sam's Navy in May, 1941, when he was appointed to the rank of Ensign.

When asked what he thought of the United States Navy, Morris said, "I think every man who is considering joining a military service should look into the 'chance of a lifetime' which the Navy offers to get into the big pay field of the future—aviation. In the Navy you can attend the finest flight training schools in the world, and receive instruction from Navy pilots who introduced dive bombing, aircraft carriers and catapult take-offs to the rest of the world. Also, there are opportunities in Naval Aviation for men who don't want to fly. They can be trained as aviation machinists, metalsmiths, photographers, observers, or they can receive instruction in many other trades. It's a great life in the Navy."

Ensign Wayne Morris is pictured here in his line of duty as a member of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at the Long Beach Naval Reserve Air Base.

"Go 'way, Nifty. If you felt as dopey as I do after trying to do homework by that dim old lamp . . . guess you wouldn't want to play, either. Gee, if I only had an I.E.S. lamp like Butch!"

How To Make Homework Easier

If your children are having trouble with their homework it may be due to poor lighting. Better check up on it today and see what a difference good light can make. A certified I.E.S. lamp with at least a 100-watt bulb supplies scientifically designed lighting that is kind to young eyes, makes homework easier, and may even produce better grades.

STATE ERADICATING NOXIOUS WEEDS

Six noxious weeds are being fought by State Highway maintenance workers to prevent establishment of these species on the right-of-way and in adjacent fields. Classified as noxious weeds are: dodder, Johnson grass, Canada thistle, quack grass, wild garlic and bindweed. In their fight against these weeds the maintenance workers are using sodium chlorate or borax. A solution, using one of the other of these chemicals, is sprayed on the weeds wherever they appear on the state highway right-of-way.

TO WIDEN 117 MILES OF PAVEMENT

Widening of 117 miles of state highway pavement from 16 and 18 feet to 22 feet is planned by the State Highway Commission as another step to developing a modern, safe system of roads in Indiana. Bids on the widening will be received by the Commission on Tuesday, Oct. 7. The construction of the additional pavement width will contribute materially to the movement of traffic and will be an even greater contribution to the safety of motorists traveling these rotues, members of the commission believe. The sections of highways selected for widening now have pavement which is only 16 or 18 feet in width and have, as a rule, high accident ratings.

ASK COURT TO SET ASIDE WILL

A complaint to contest the will of the late Rosa High, of Jackson township, was filed in the DeKalb Circuit Court Monday by Alice Farver and H. M. Phillips.

Mrs. High died last June 10. By a will signed Feb. 16, 1940, she devised her estate, valued by the plaintiffs at $3,500, to Albert Yoder and the Rehoboth Methodist Church in equal shares. Mrs. High stated in the will that she made the bequest to Mr. Yoder as compensation for his services to her.

Mrs. Farver and Mr. Phillips were a sister and brother of Mrs. High and they claim she was of unsound mind when she made the will and that the will was unduly executed.

THE MILK AND HONEY

The mysteries of inflation are so interwoven with political and economic conditions and so complicated in the affairs of the Republic that the average man frankly admits that he doesn't know what the word means.

But a man who does know has told the American public that "inflation is no natural calamity that falls upon men unaware and helpless. . . it is something that we make ourselves and that we ourselves can guard against." Those are the words of the Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, who asserted: "The United States has been historically a land of milk and honey. There is still plenty of milk and honey, but too much of it is in the warehouses. Let's make it flow. If we are to let it flow to the public, we would not only help in keeping prices stable, but we would be doing something to keep them more important: we would be helping to make our people healthier and happier."

Farm commodities are 66 per cent above the level of 2 years ago, and 12 basic food commodities are more than 70 per cent. These increased prices of fundamentals which enter directly into the cost of living have influenced all other prices, are held to be at the root of inflation, according to Morgenthau and informed officials and citizens who know the symptoms that produce inflation.

Henry Morgenthau is a pretty big farmer himself and he owns broad acres of cultivated land in upper New York state. That is one of his qualifications to say that "the farmer suffered cruelly for 12 long years after the collapse" of twenty years ago, and "should not be made to suffer again." He flatly declares that it is "sheer folly" to pile up farm products in warehouses and create artificial scarcities.

The dangers of rapidly rising prices throughout the country, which have invited inflation, are perfectly obvious to everyone. The leaders in private business, and our officials have been able to get together for once and agree that something must be done about it at once.

The average price of basic materials has advanced more than 25 per cent, and wholesale prices are up 11 per cent since the first of this year. Everybody knows that increased retail prices result from high wholesale prices.

The analysis of conditions which threaten inflation are made plain to officials, as well as business men. There are many remedies proposed including price-control, regulation of installment credits, putting a curb on the production of non-essentials and ironing out defense and non-defense problems, and any other possibility that looks like inflation. Of course, we must meet very heavy increased taxes. It is important to heed Mr. Morgenthau's warnings about the folly of piling up surpluses in granaries and making successive boosts in wages.

Sock 'Em

Now, everybody knows why we gals wear cotton hose,
It's for defense.
And they know as well as I, there's another reason why—
It's less expense. (mance
They used to say there was a chance for a gal to have ro-
In silken frocks. (tle
But today the guys all whistle as we trip as light as this-
In cotton socks. (—if any,
So come on gals and join the many, wearing cotton socks
Be patriotic.
Your country calls, so heed its calling,
Wear cotton socks—it sounds appalling
Most idiotic.
But then you know we're in a war,
We don't know who we're fighting for,
Or where or why.
But cotton socks will win the fight
So get in gals with main and might—
WE'll do or die!

GERTRUDE BORTHWICK,

-:- TRIBUTE -:-

Written by Mrs. Fred E. Hart, and Read at the Home-Coming Celebration at Coburn's Corners Church, Sunday, October 5, 1941.

Dear life-long members of Christ's own Church
We honor you today;
Your lives are an inspiration
To others along the way.
May all the kind words you have said
And kind deeds you have done
Guide others in the Christian Way,
'Till their life work is done.
You have labored long in the Church you love,
Always been faithful and true,
And so this day we have set apart
To especially honor you.
'Tis great to live for ninety years
And note the changes made,
Where once the Indians used to roam
In thickest forest shade.
Now modern homes and smooth paved roads
Cover the country-side.
No more the small log cabins, where
Our forefathers did reside.
They all have vanished from our sight
And the red school house of yore,
No more we see the children gather
'Round its open door.
The building where this brother taught
That stood across the way,
Its walls have all been taken down
Its timbers hauled away.
Perhaps 'tis best these changes.
We'll try to think it so,
And see God's hand is leading
As on through life we go.
Your lives shall give us courage
To strive to do the right,
We'll win life's future battles
By trusting in God's might.
May I present this little gift
From friends that you hold dear:
Who love to have you with them
And see your smies of cheer.
May the dear Lord keep you always
In His protecting care;
And may you hear the glad "Well done"
And in His glory share.

HOME COMING

The Coburn Corners Church of Christ observed its annual home coming Sunday with a capacity crowd attending the specially prepared services.

The church opened its festive day with the morning session, the regular Sunday Bible study school, holy communion, and the sermon by the pastor, E. Messimer, speaking on the topic, "Whom did the Lord Jesus come to save?" He said in part that the "whosoever" includes all men. Salvation is for all people.

The afternoon message was given by Daniel Eyenon, pastor of the Auburn Church of Christ. For his text he chose Acts 5: 12-32, with emphasis on the 20th verse as follows: "Go, stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words of this life."

Mr. Eyenon addressed the congregation in part as follows: "There are times in life, God would have us simply to stand. To stand faithful to our precious heritage with which we have been entrusted, namely, the privilege of being children of the kingdom." He said in tribute to the honored guests, "The most beautiful thing on earth, is the man or woman who has grown old in the faith."

In addition to the sermon, an elaborate program of sacred selections by local and Ft. Wayne talent was presented, the numbers being vocal and instrumental. Congregational singing and a session of reminiscing by the older visitors is also a feature of these home comings. It was recalled that the local church has produced both ministers and missionaries, and many laymen who have gone out to carry on the gospel message.

The Coburn Church is unique in the fact that it claims four honored members, Mr. Evans Dermott, Coldwater, Mich., Mr. Calvin Coburn, Hicksville, Ohio, Mrs. Flora Wilmot and Mrs. Alice Hart, Rt. 1, St. Joe, all past 90 years of age, holding membership in the church from 50 to 75 years. Around this fact the celebration theme, "Faith of our Fathers" was chosen. Gold and old ivory floral offerings were in keeping with the harvest season. At the conclusion of the service the honor guests were felicitated in poem and each received a gift from the congregation.

The benediction was pronounced by Elder Messimer. Fred Hart was general chairman.

RAILROADS FACE BATTLE TO SURVIVE

American railroads face a battle for survival when the present defense effort ends, according to A. F. Cleveland, noted traffic expert who appeared before the President's Fact Finding Commission.

Except for the current temporary boom in rail traffic, Cleveland testified that the trend since the first World War had been away from the rails toward publicly subsidized highway, water and air transport. Acceleration of this trend was seen after the preeant emergency of rising freight and passenger rates result from railway labor's demand for 30 percent wage hikes.

Cleveland pointed out that while the roads are handling more ton miles of freight than in any previous year, the revenue is substantially below the previous peak year of 1929. This, he indicated, would necessitate increased rates to take care of additional costs arising from wage hikes.

OPEN LETTER TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC

Dear Friends:

It is with sincere gratitude to you that this letter of farewell is written:

Words are inadequate to express my appreciation of your patronage, your friendship and your loyalty. All three have made it possible for me to enjoy a pleasant association in St. Joe. I shall never forget your loyalty to me a year ago when you went to the polls and made a reality of something I never could have conceived.

I have now made a decision to enter another field of work. This is something I have desired to do for the past several years and realize I must do so now or time will soon see me too old to make the change.

As a result, my mother will continue the funeral home as in the past. She has employed Richard L. Rupp as embalmer and assistant. Mr. Rupp is well known here in St. Joe and surrounding territory as he graduated from our local high school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rupp, who live east of St. Joe.

Nov. 1st, I am moving my family to Los Angeles, Calif. I shall be happy to see any of you—the door will always be open.

The Hardware & Furniture store will continue under the management of my brother, Earl, who has a sincere desire to serve St. Joe and surrounding territory. I am sure Earl, with the able assistance of my mother and step-father, will merit wour confidence by their willingness to serve you.

My only hope is that you will see fit to give him the same loyal support you have given me during my term of management.

Again assuring you of my deep gratitude I shall always hold a dear spot in my heart for my birthplace and the many happy years I was able to enjoy while here in St. Joe.

I remain as always,
Your friend,
E. DuWayne Kinsey.

Virgilia and Thomas join me in wishing you all a prosperous and happy future.

LOCAL YOUTH CAPTURES GRAND CHAMPION

Beef and pork went at high figures last Thursday morning at the auction of DeKalb county 4-H calves and pigs at the county fair at Auburn. A large crowd of buyers and spectators jammed around the auction ring at the sheep tent as E. E. Turner, auctioneer, urged the bidders up and up. The Auburn Live Stock Sales Co. conducted the auction gratis.

Top price in the yearling fat steer sales went for Eugene Baker's 975-pound grand champion, $28 per hundredweight, or a total of $273. It was bought by the Ft. Wayne Union Stockyards. It was no wonder that the Concord township youth was all grins as he led his steer from the ring to be photographed. To get an idea of just how good a price $28 is compare it with Wednesday's best yearling quotation at Chicago—$12.65 a hundredweight.

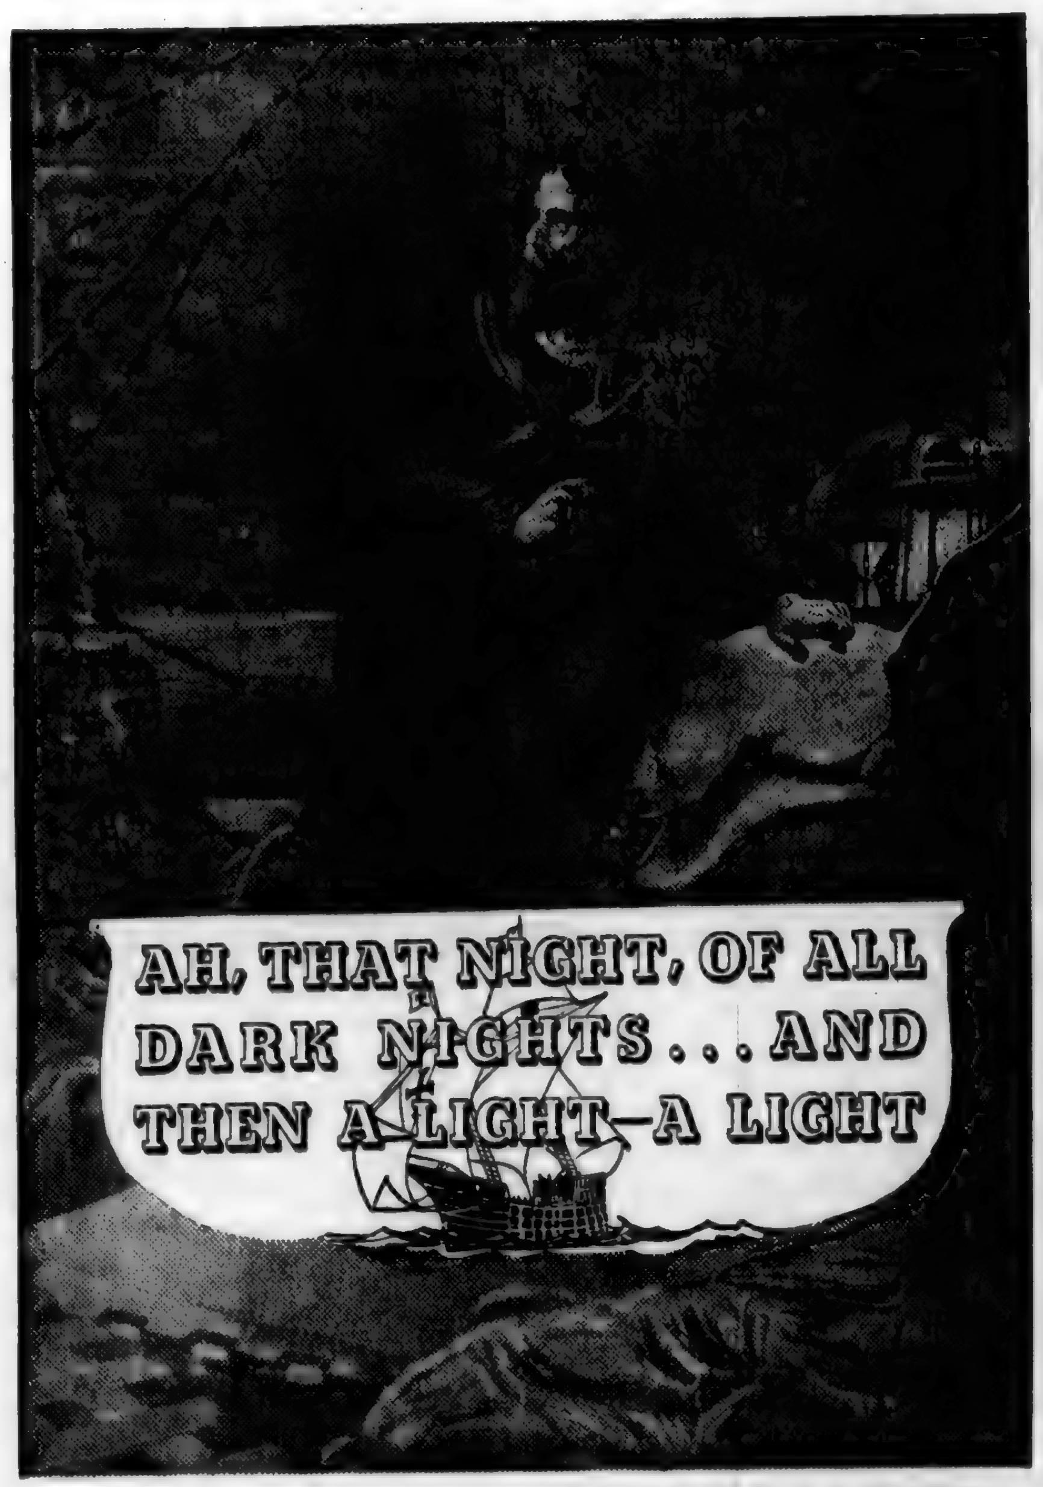
1492—Columbus Day—1941



AH, THAT NIGHT, OF ALL DARK NIGHTS . . . AND THEN A LIGHT—A LIGHT

—From wood cut of an old painting.

SYMBOLIC of our own dark nights and the light of day for which all humanity hopes, is the painting shown here and the lines quoted from Joaquin Miller's famous poem about Columbus.

That was a dark night—before the sight of land and the great discovery that the world need not be the narrow, pinched, uninspired thing it had been thought to be. "Pale and wan," Columbus was on deck and "peered through darkness." It took a long time for the light to break through. There were harrowing hours. There were moments of doubt and despair before October 12, 1492 dawned—four hundred and forty-nine years ago.

"And then a light—a light." Even as now we pray for it. When it came after that fearful night for Columbus, "it grew to be time's burst of dawn," and he gained a world! No darkness but what has its dawn—whether in 1492 or in our own times.

OCTOBER 12

A date familiar to each American which stands for more today than it did last year and the year before, when it comes to location. When Columbus discovered America on this side of the ocean there isn't a citizen of St. Joe who isn't glad that he let it stay here! Hail to the founder of a country where men live to labor for their lives, ideals and traditions. We observe Columbus Day in honor of a man who never knew the importance of his discovery, who never lived to see the development of this land from unapproachable frontiers and wilderness to its present glory. And glorious it is as well you would discover were you to lose it.

We are accused of being a sentimental people and so we run true to form and become sentimental over the idea of Columbus setting forth on that memorable voyage. We deal with the thought of a gusty wind forecasting a bit of weather ahead, of a silver-lined surf cutting and breaking on a deserted beach, of a boat sailing a rolling sea perhaps under the same sort of fleecy clouds and under such a moon as comes with October today. There might have been bleakness there, with tossed leaves sweeping before a cold rain that warned of hardship to come for those who would try to conquer the wilderness. But what a day for Americans!

ANTUMN SKIDS

Trees drop their leaves maybe because they are tired out. They are sort of planning to get a well-earned rest before exhibiting a new crop for our pleasure. Around St. Joe there will be piles of dead leaves waiting to be burned and others that will clog up sewers and drains if they aren't burned. When leaves drop on the highways and a rain comes along to wet them down the motorist is careful and slows his speed to keep from skidding. Pedestrians are also aware of this slippery condition as they tramp along. When driving a car extra caution must be taken in using the brakes for a sudden stop for wet leaves when packed will help a car to slide and leads to some pretty bad accidents. Oil streaks on the pavement that normally the motorist would see, when hidden under wet leaves offers another hazard. So watch your step and watch your slide.

FIRE PREVENTION

Few in St. Joe who do not every day during the year attend to duties that will help prevent fire from destroying their property. A housewife doesn't wait until just housecleaning time to get rid of rubbish that is a definite fire hazard. The man of the house doesn't wait until something happens to the furnace to catch the house on fire, before he checks over the heating system ere it is put to use. Children don't play with matches, fan fires childishly or monkey with the stove to be disobedient. Education regarding fire makes us wiser regarding fire precautions and a people's folly stacks up each year a huge toll of lives and property damage, much of it due to our negligence. But all who read this can look about and probably, in their attic, basement, garage or yard, will find something collected that would delight the appetite of a hungry flame.

OLD SETTLERS' DAY REGISTERED 457

Four hundred and fifty-seven DeKalb County old settlers registered Saturday in the court house in Auburn for the annual Old Settlers day in connection with the county fair. There were 13 guests, former residents of the county, and 12 of the registrants were more than 85 years old.

Believed to be the oldest old settler present was Thomas C. Kiser, of Butler, age 94. Mr. Kiser was born Oct. 19, 1847, at Beaver Dam, Allen County. Ohio. When eight months old, he moved to DeKalb County with his parents. They settled June 11, 1848, on land purchased from the government five years earlier. Their first home on that site was a log cabin in the woods. Just six more years and Mr. Kiser will have spent an entire century in this county.

Rain upset the afternoon program but Capt. Walter D. Stump braved the rain to make his address to the settlers and we reproduce it as follows:

The DeKalb County Fair affords much favorable auspices for the celebration of Old Settlers Day. We are surrounded by the material achievements of the people of DeKalb County that tell the history of continued progress and faith. On every hand we witness exhibitions of the noble pursuits that have made DeKalb County worthy of emulation everywhere. Despite the desolation and ruin that war has inflicted on much of the world, it is deeply refreshing to note here the many assurances that our people still cling to the ancient virtues and enterprises that have made this a great nation. The extraordinary exhibits from our farms, factories, business firms, schools and churches are prophetic of strength and endurance. Back of all these indications of material resources we see the union of our people for the promotion of the common good of all. The farmer, the employee in our factories, the business men and the professisonal men have all joined hands in a sincere, fraternal respect for each other, wherein each recognizes the other as a fellow-builder of our community. We see in this Fair the indisputable proofs that the resolute will of the pioneer still lives; that the farms, the mills and the factories of DeKalb County afford the true basis for permanent contentment, prosperity, and happiness, and that our people are sustained by ideals of industry, thrift, devotion and patriotism that makes our future secure. The success of this Fair is due to the united efforts of all men and women of all trades, professions and callings. It portrays thousands of rural and urban scenes of peace, honest toil, thrift and progress all presented as an inspiring panoramic view. How much better off the world would be today if it could simply adopt the pattern that DeKalb County has set!

All the growth and development that is pictured here today has taken place in the short space of one hundred years. The very first enterprise of the county was the building of a saw mill on Fish Creek by Samuel Houlton and Isaac Hughs in 1827. In 1829, the land of this county was first surveyed. The first settlement was made in 1834. It is almost unbelieveable that only one hundred years ago this county was an untamed wilderness, inhabited by Indians, wild beasts and a few daring white adventurers. Today all that scene is changed. The bleak, unbroken forest has given way to a country side of rare and signal beauty, everywhere decorated by welcoming homesteads and lovely cities. The rolling hills and the valleys which were once a warning of danger to the intruder have bloomed forth as the rose and are today covered with waving fields of grain and corn fields.

The true heroes of all this inspiring picture were a race of sturdy adventurers. As we look back over the years, we see the least conspicuous one of all, standing beside a team of dull-eyed oxen at the Atlantic sea-board. He is the same type of adventurer who sailed with Columbus and thrilled with joy at the sharp command "sail on, sail on, and on;" the type of those who landed at Plymouth Rock and later suffered with Washington at Valley Forge. The oxen are hitched to a wagon covered by a canopy in which we see a trusting wife and children. There is no road map to guide this daring wayfarer. Indeed, there were no roads. We see them peering apprehensively, yet resolutely, to the West where lies the trackless forest. This humble procession slowly moves westward—through forests where the storms of a thousand years conspired to block their way; over rugged mountains, thru swift and treacherous streams; always in the very presence of lurking dangers, until he and his family learn to scorn the hazards that would overwhelm a less resolute spirit. He is the strong, valient, confident, venturesome spirit of the American pioneer. Having faced danger and death in a thousand forms and indescribable privation and suffering, yet with heads unbowed, this little group finally arrive at a place in the wilderness which they seelct as their home and the home of their childrens' children. They anchor their quaint, covered wagons to the soil and soon they rise, triumphantly transformed into what we, their children, proudly call DeKalb County. How fortunate it would be if every American could sit for just one evening at the same camp fire of those rugged pioneers. A first hand acquaintance with those devoted men and women and the hardships they endured would immeasurably deepen the appreciation of the living generation for the sacrifices from which the rich heritage of American life was produced. The relentless forces of nature and the constant struggle for existence by these men and women developed in them the strength of the storm resisting oaks of their forest home. The environment of pioneer life instilled in our grandfathers and grandmothers a zealous devotion to their homes and their liberties.

This great epoch in the conquest of the middle west occurred only one generation after the Revolution and the adoption of the Constitution. The men and women who redeemed this country from the wilderness were children of the soldiers of Washington's Continental Army. They were thrilled by the rise of American Democracy and the new doctrine of freedom to which it was dedicated, viz: "that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these ends, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." This new freedom not only released men from the shackles of political bondage, but it freed their minds as well for startling conquests of nature. This doctrine of human liberty, coupled with the boundless wealth of the middle west, inspired ment to challenge the forces of their own environment before which they had previously lived in fear and slavery. In the matter of the conquest of the forces of nature and making them become the willing servants of mankind, greater achievements have been made since the first settlements of this county than were made in all of the two thousand years that preceded. Today, the average DeKalb County home enjoyes a far higher measure of comfort than could be found in the palaces of the Kings of the previous century. Wealth is more widely diffused and distributed and the average citizen enjoys higher standards of living than was ever known in the history of the wrold. This is indeed a rich heritage. It should be guarded with a jealous care. Its future is secure in the hands of the descendants of the pioneers to whose everlasting glory this great achievement must be credited. But, during the past several decades our country was invaded by foreigners who had no part in this glorious accomplishment and little or no appreciation of its value. It is among this latter influx that we today find the so called Fifth Column. To our shame we must admit that we have among us, a few in our own county, who openly or secretly endorse the crack-pot theories of Hitler and Mussolini and who would substitute the vile debauchery of these dictators in place of our enlightened Constitutional Democracy. They are either men of low or disordered mentality, treasonable inclinations or paid propagandists. They are not the warp and woof from which this great Republic was made. They look with contempt on the sacrifices of the American pioneers and the achievements of their descendants; Valley Forge, Geettysburg and Chatteau Thierry mean nothing to them. They are oblivious to the toil, sacrifice, blood and tears that entered into the building of the nation; they make a mockery of the rich tradition of the American Republic. We have no use for them under the Stars and Stripes. They are a festering sore on the body politic. They should be completely eradicated. If they don't like our system, why did they come here? The exits are open. Let us usher them out and bar the entrances.

The Democratic way of life, bequeathed to us by the rugged pioneers, is deeply embedded in the very soil on which we stand. Yet, it is the right to this way of life that is being challenged on terrible battle fields. Brute forces of To-

STATE FAIR GRAND CHAMPION STEER

At the 4-H Calf Club Auction Sale, held at the Indiana State Fairgrounds, Armour and Company again purchased for the Wm. H. Block Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, the Grand Champion Steer fed by James Hallar, Lafayette, Indiana, Tippecanoe County.

This is the third consecutive year that the Wm. H. Block Company has purchased the Grand Champion Steer of this show.

Competitive bidding brought the price of this calf up to $1.30 per pound. This in itself fully demonstrates the tremendous interest shown in this 4-H Club work by processor, purveyors and distributors of high grade beef.

The calf brought approximately $1,250, which is the major part of the expense of college education.

This Angus calf weighed 945 pounds and in keeping with the champion showed a very high yield.

talitarianism, imbued with the discarded despotism of Louis XIV, have reappeared. Totalitarianism looks solely to the glory of the state; whereas democracies foster the dignity and well being of the individuals who constitute the state. The Totalitarian completely rejects the idealism of the Psalmist of Old who said: "What is Man that Thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that Thou visitest him? Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels and hast crowned him with glory and honor." The tragic sacrifice on Calvary's cross was not made for the glorification of the state, but for the redemption of the individuals everywhere who make up the state. This ideal of Man's dignity and worth, under Christian phylosophy, is the Keystone of modern Democracies. Therefore, this generation occupies a position of high responsibility in the World's History in preserving the idealism eloquently set forth in the Declaration of Independence. Let us all stand united in the face of threatening dangers. The America of tomorrow is up to us today.

The struggle for freedom is an ancient struggle. It has never been long enjoyed by a people who did not deserve it. George Washington, and the brave men of the Revolution established Constitutional gavernment on our shores. But each succeeding generation must be willing to live and sacrifice to preserve it. Each generation must be the guardian of constitutional liberty.

On that bleak November day in 1863, on the blood-stained field of Gettysburg, Lincoln did not venture the prophecy that Constitutional Government would not perish from the earth. He simply expressed the high resolve that it should not perish.

Let us tell the story of the grandeur of this great Constitutional Democracy 'til all men shall feel the just pride that should be theirs in the simple fact of American citizenship; tell it 'til there shall be such an awakening of patriotic devotion that all Fifth Column groups shall be banished from our shores forever; 'til the rising generation shall fully appreciate the great sacrifices made by our mothers and fathers that we may enjoy the rich blessings that we see manifested here today; tell it 'til dumb tongues speak and dead feet start; tell it 'til there shall be a new resurrection of confidence, peace and security in the hearts of Americans everywhere.

CO. COMMISSIONERS MAKE FRANK STATEMENT

The Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County has authorized the issuance of the following statement:

The attention of the Board of Commsisioners has been called to a circular distributed in DeKalb County over the signature of Dr. Peter Rasmussen in reference to the DeKalb County Infirmary.

It is not the intention of the Board to enter into any controversy with Dr. Rasmussen as this Board is accountable to the State Board of Health and the people of this county and not to Dr. Rasmussen, but we do deem it proper to call the attention of the people of this county to the fact that conditions are unusual at the infirmary due to the fact that we do have at all times at least a half dozed aged inmates that are definitely and sometimes violently insane. It becomes necessary to keep these persons at the county farm until they can be admitted to an asylum and this period may be several months and, in some instances, they are never admitted. It therefore becomes necessary to confine the worst cases in cells and creates a very difficult problem, which we think is being handled in the best possible manner, considering the buildings and equipment available. Conditions could only be improved by the building and equipping of a modern hospital where the inmates could have the same care as in a hospital. In this respect may we call attention to the fact that, as shown by the reports of the State Board of Health and the Department of Public Welfare, that our infirmary and the care of the inmates, rates favorably with the infirmaries in other counties of this state.

May we call attention to the fact that Dr. Rasmussen has stated that he would get even with the County Officials unless he received part of the business in attending the inmates and has apparently chosen this method. We are required by law to appoint a physician for the poor to treat county patients and this we have done and can go no further.

We do not care to duscuss the many unfair and prejudiced statements in the circular. We only ask the people of DeKalb County to visit the infirmary and judge for themselves as to the truth of the statements.

ON WRITING LETTERS

Just another one of those commercial stunts to make some money, you no doubt remark when we mention that an organization of stationers name a week in October for observance of national letter writing. There aren't many of us who don't owe somebody a letter and maybe this would be a good enough time to get it off of the chest. Some folks are pretty prompt in correspondence and others who would rather take a beating than a pen in hand. All of us appreciate receiving letters from family and friends and you consider this business of letter writing a fine thing until it is time to answer the missive. In case you wonder who it was that started this custom you must go back a long time ago to a man named Dr. Chanca who came with Columbus on his second expedition and the docfor mailed the first letter from San Domingo in 1494. But the first letter written in English is credited to Ralph Lane who commanded Raleigh's first colony. His letter was dated 1595. Maybe some of us have correspondents who have been waiting almost that long to hear from us!

G.O.P. WOMEN TO MARK BIRTH OF UNIVERSAL VOTE

INDIANAPOLIS—A barrage of old-fashioned Republican oratory will mark the observance of the 21st anniversary of universal suffrage for women in the United States on Oct. 18, when the Indiana Federation of Women's Republican Clubs holds its annual meeting at the Claypool hotel here.

MRS. JESSIE SUMNER

Plans for the convention were announced today by Mrs. Eleanor Barker Snodgrass, vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee and president of the federated clubs.

Sharing the platform as headline speakers will be James E. Watson, former United States Senator from Indiana, who steered the woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution successfully through its legislative channels, and Mrs. Jessie Sumner, now serving her second term as Representative in Congress from the 18th Illinois district. They will address the luncheon meeting to be held in the Riley room of the Claypool, when more than 1,000 Republican women workers from throughout the state will be present.

Others on the speaking program include Ralph F. Gates of Columbia City, Republican state chairman, and Mrs. Snodgrass, with many state officials and several members of the Indiana Republican Congressional delegation, including Senator Raymond E. Willis, at the speakers' table.

Mrs. Snodgrass announced that Mrs. Arthur R. Robinson, wife of the former United States Senator, is in general charge of arrangements for the meeting. She will announce additional committee personnel soon.

Mrs. Sumner is a practicing attorney and has had a successful career in politics in her home county and state, having served as county judge. She was elected to Congress in 1938 and re-elected in 1940.

It was 21 years ago that women were permitted for the first time to cast a ballot in a national election. That year marked the return of control of the national government from the Democratic party under Woodrow Wilson, to Republican principles which were in force for 12 successive years. The Oct. 18 meeting also is expected to be the firing of the first big guns in preparation for the 1942 off-year Congressional, state, county and township elections in Indiana.

A business meeting of the delegates to the Federation convention will be held in the morning, followed by the luncheon and an afternoon business session, Mrs. Snodgrass said.

VALUE OF HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION TODAY

Young men in the Civilian Conservation Corps with less than eighth grade education have only one-half the chance of those of more schooling to get a job outside the CCC, results of a survey made in the Sixth Corps Area indicate, according to a report received recently by Thurman A. Gottschalk, state welfare administrator, from the national CCC office. The Sixth Corps Area comprises the states of Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Records of 5,408 CCC enrollees who left the Sixth Corps Area CCC camps to accept jobs before completing their term of enrollment in the calendar year 1940 were studied, Mr. Gottschalk said. The survey was made in order to secure information that would aid CCC officials in planning their future guidance and placement program for enrollees.

About one-third of the young men who enroll in the CCC have not completed the elementary grades but they form only nine percent of the men who left the Corps to take jobs. "It is important," said Mr. Gottschalk, "that CCC officials do everything in their power to repair the academic deficiencies of the enrollees. The Corps is the last opportunity which many of these men will have to complete their schooling."

Immaturity is another serious obstacle in the way of securing employment, the survey revealed. While about forty percent of the enrollees in the camps were 17 years old only seven percent of the men discharged to accept employment were in this age group.

Today county welfare departments are enrolling CCC applicants immediately placing them in nearby camps, Mr. Gottschalk said.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

Big news for a long time has been the vast amount of new employment created by the multi-billion dollar national defense and aid-to-the-Allies programs. Now considerable publicity and thought is being given to the unemployment which these same programs are creating.

As everyone knows, we have finally reached the point where defense needs are severely dislocating our peacetime economy. The period of "business as usual" is definitely over. The dislocations will grow greater as time moves on and more and more of our resources are turned into the instruments of war. Way the wind blows is indicated by the fact that automobile production for December will be cut 48 per cent below that of the same month last year. And most economists believe that it will be necessary to make substantially greater cuts in the future.

The result is that tens of thousands of men are being discharged by factories which have a low priority rating and cannot obtain supplies, for the reason that they are not engaged in defense work. Some of these men, of course, find jobs elsewhere. But a very high proportion of them cannot. And as a consequence, this "war unemployment" is becoming a serious problem.

The bulk of the businesses affected in this instance are relatively small. Big businesses, for the most part, are able to more readily turn to defense work, and naturally are in a better position to obtain favorable attention from the powers-that-be in Washington. So a definite movement has started on the part of little business to put up a fight for its survival—and the survival of the jobs of its employes. A short time ago, a Conference on Unemployment Due to Priorities was held in Chicago. Delegates came from eleven Mid-western states, and included mayors, manufacturers, members of Congress, labor leaders, etc. Action taken consisted of requesting that a larger proportion of defense work be allotted to small business, and that a new system of priority allotment be established with a view to maintaining employment in "peace" industries until they could change over to a war basis.

So far, government defense heads seem to have done little to solve the problems of small business and its workers. According to Newsweek, top defense executives Donald Nelson, Leon Henderson, and Floyd Odlum rejected bids to the Chicago meeting. It is apparently the Washington view that maximum results in minimum time can be obtained by allocating defense production primarily to large industry, which is geared to top production, and which has the machines, the plants, the skilled workmen, and the engineering talent necessary.

There is, obviously, a great deal of logic in this point of view. At the same time, it is also obvious that our American economy cannot be perpetuated if this vast defense effort results in the death of "little business." And in some informed quarters, there is a strong belief that the priorities system can undergo considerable overhauling without slowing or endangering the arms drive. It is clear that there has been excessive overbuying in some quarters—and overbuying is only one step short of hoarding. Some companies, according to authoritative surveys, have been allowed to make purchases of strategic materials in quantities which they cannot use up for years. In the meantime, other businesses must go without. In short, there has been a lack of equitability in the distribution of suppiles.

The tremendous haste that has characterized the development of the defense program is of course partly responsible for this. There has been waste and there has been much confusion. Also, many think, there cannot be maximum effiiciency until there is a consolidation of the multitudinous defense boards, and until real power is placed in the hands of one man. In the meantime, there is a fast growing demand that something be done to keep war priorities from completely disrupting the American industrial system. The head of a musical instrument company recently declared that his industry "could run on the scrap the armament industries in this state throw away, but I can't even get that." Many an observer believes it is time stern corrective measures were applied.

The growing number of imprisonments and executions in France is grim evidence of the size and scope of the underground anti-Nazi movement in occupied Europe.

The Allies believe this movement will continue to expand, and they frankly place great hopes on it as one of the weapons which may help defeat Hitler. Sabotage in factories slows production. Assassination of Germans makes it necessary for Hitler to use more and more troops for police duty. Britain is doing everything in her power to make this "third front" a major factor in the war.

WILMOT

Mrs. Florence D. (Coburn) Wilmot, widow of Ella Wilmot and daughter of William and Lovesta Coburn, was born in the northeastern part of Allen County, Indiana, November 15, 1852, and died at her residence in DeKalb County, Indiana, October 9, 1941, at the age of 88 years, 11 months and 12 days.

November 15, 1874, she and Ella Wilmot, deceased, were united in marriage, and to this union seven children were born, five of whom are living. George Wilmot, Mrs. Leona Mason, Mrs. Edna Jenkins, of St. Joe; Fred Wilmot, of near Flint, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Donley at home. There are also thirty grandchildren, eighteen great grandchildren, and one great great grandchild in the complete family.

Mrs. Wilmot lived constantly in the vicinity of Coburntown, where she fully shared the fortunes and fellowship of the Coburntown people. From early childhood she was a member of the Church of Christ, and always in good standing with the congregation. She never shared greatly in what the world calls wealth, but was rich in faith and grace. Motherhood was a holy office to her, worthy of her richest devotion.

The funeral was from the Coburntown Church of Christ, Sunday, Oct. 12, and was conducted by J. N. Scholes, assisted by Rev. Erby Messimer, minister of the congregation. Interment was made in Alton cemetery by Richard Rupp.

Mrs. Ferdericks and children will return with them for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie. They expect to call on Rev. and Mrs. Stoll while on the trip.

A good sized crowd attended the musical program Sunday afternoon at the gym, put on by a group of Hawaiian guitar players, of which number St. Joe furnished several young folks. The group was made up of students studying for one year on Hawaiian guitars and it was remarkable how they could play together. The parents were all proud of their youngsters.

CORN HUSKING CONTEST SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18

The annual DeKalb County Corn Husking Contest and Field Day will be held Saturday, October 18th on the farm of John Smith, located one mile east of Auburn. This field was selected by a committee composed of Jim Rugman, Earl Stimman and C. E. Baker. This is the same location as last year, but the corn field has been moved further east and according to the committee, it is an excellent site for a contest of this sort.

9:00 the teams will be weighed at the Farm Bureau elevator in Auburn and paraded to the field where the heavy weight horse pulling contest will be started as promptly as possible after the parade.

11:00 the Men's Corn Husking contest.

12:30 the Light weight horse pulling contest.

2:00 Women's Corn husking contest.

Teams will be used on the corn husking wagons again this year through the sponsorship of the DeKalb County Horsemen's Association. The Corn Growers Association will pay cash prizes for the contests. These prizes are to be as follows:

In the men's corn husking contest $15 will be paid for first prize; $10 for 2nd; $5 for 3rd; $3 for 4th; $2 for 5th and $1 for the 6th place. In the women's corn husking contest $5 will be paid for first prize and $3 for 2nd; $2 for 3rd and each additional contestant will receive $1.

In the horse pulling contest in each weight—first prize $10 plus 1 bushel Hybrid seed corn; second prize $5 and 1-2 bushel of Hybrid seed corn; 3rd prize $3 and 1-2 bushel of Hybrid corn. The Hybrid seed corn is being donated by the DeKalb County Hybrid Seed Corn Growers Association—1 bushel of Glancy's Hybrid seed corn; 1 bushel of DeKalb Co. Agricultural Association Seed corn, and 1 bushel by the Pioneer Co. In addition to these prizes $2:50 will be paid to the best decorated team in the parade and $2.50 for the best driver in the horse pulling contest.

Lunch will be served by the wives of the DeKalb County Corn Grower's Association. It is the proceeds from this eating stand that defrays the expenses of the contest.

LIONS FAREWELL DINNER AND RECEPTION

Twenty-one men enjoyed the Lions Club dinner at the Akins Tea Room Monday nite. The affair was a farewell for DuWayne Kinsey, who served the club as secretary for one year and is now leaving for Los Angeles, Calif. A past secretary emblem was awarded for his faithful services, in a very fitting ceremony. Two men, Franklin Robinson and Everett Paschen, of Spencerville, were taken into full membership by the club and the official pin was given each one at the close of a ceremony in which the purposes and ideals of the Lions Club were made plain. Next meeting promises to be one of interest as the program committee has announced a special program.

NOT HEREDITARY

Dr. Kendall Emerson has written a very informative article on the causes of tuberculosis, in a late issue of Life and Health magazine. He endeavors to answer some of the leading questions which often remain a mystery to the average person.

"No matter how poor, run down, malnourished, overworked, or badly housed you may be, you will not have tuberculosis unless the germ gains entrance to your body," he says. "It is the tubercle bacillus alone that causes tuberculosis, and the only way to prevent the disease form developing is to eradicate these germs from the world.

"Tuberculosis is eminently a family disease. Obviously the reason for this is that tuberculosis, being an infectious disease, is most likely to pass from one member of the family to others with whom he is in intimate contact.

"The old belief that tuberculosis 'runs in families' and is hereditary has long since been exploded. If we look on the germ of tuberculosis as the seed and the human lungs as the soil, we may say that the soil varies in its fertility for the growth of the germ from person to person. Thus there may be some family lack of ability to inhibit this growth or to kill off even a small number of invaders. The lesson from this is that those in whose families tuberculosis has been prevalent for some generations are under special obligation to watch their health and avoid contact with known cases of the disease."

Dr. Emerson points out that keeping physically fit is important in combating tuberculosis, and that being run down opens channels for the entrance of disease, precisely as the holes in worn-out shoes allow moisture to enter.

If you suffer from "that tired feeling" or have other symptoms indicating a physical maladjustment, see your doctor at once. It it to the credit of the medical profession that it is as much interested in preventing disease, as it is in effecting cures when disease has been contracted.

NO TEACHER'S PETS NOW

Testifying before the House Banking Committee, Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, said that inflation could not be prevented if wages and salaries, which constitute the main factor in establishing prices, are allowed to rise indiscriminately. In addition, he added, Congress should consider suspension of the 40-hour work week during the emergency, and, if necessary, extend the week to 48 hours.

Mr. Eccles' views are reflected by most economists. The fast-rising wage trend has been a strong and growing influence for price inflation in all fields. If labor continues to demand higher wages, it may find out before long that it will suffer, not gain. It avails a man nothing if his income rises, for instance $2 a day, while the cost of living advances as much or more.

So far as the work week is concerned, it is ridiculous to suppose that we can keep defense production to scedule while working on a peace-time basis. In some very vital industries, of which coal is an outstanding example, the work week is as low as 35 hours. This definitely imperils the nation's supply of basic materials.

Labor, like all other groups, must make some sacrifices, too. Mr. Eccles simply pointed to the inevitable. The period of "business as usual" and "politics as usual" is over for the duration of the emergency. And that includes the activities of racketeering labor leaders, no less than profiteering capital, or vote-seeking politicians.

"Oil Shortage" Backfires

The so-called "oil shortage" scarce on the Eastern seaboard, promoted for reasons hard to understand, has vanished like a morning mist. According to a congressional committee investigation, there is no serious shortage in the foreseeable future.

The productive capacity of the American oil industry is more than adequate to meet today's enormous military demand, as well as the normal civilian demand. A transportation problem was created by the transfer of tankers to Great Britain. That problem is now being met by moving oil by rail even though the cost to the industry is higher; by the construction of additional pipelines, and, in many cases, by using coal instead of oil in industrial operations.

This country produces more than 60 per cent of all the oil in the world. It produces oils of a quality unequaled elsewhere. That is what private enterprise has done—and all the politically-inspired rumors of "grave shortages" can't hide it. Friendly co-operation with industry as dislocation problems arise, due to defense needs, will do more to solve them than autocrative, punitive action.

GOOD HUNTING

With the first twang of frost in the air there follows the sound of gunfire as millions of sportsmen enter the hunting season. We yearly enter a plea for care at this time and repeat the warning to look before you fire, knowing what it is at which you are aiming. Unload your gun when it is not in use. Don't drag a loaded gun with you when you are climbing over or under fences. Watch the newspapers which tell of hunting season accidents and you will understand why all the caution. This business of hunting is a test to show whether a man is a sport just when the game warden is around. It finds out if a man will respect another's property and whether or not a man is in the class with "game hogs." Yes, the hunting season will show you that some fellows called sportsmen are it in name only.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

Next March 1, a good many Americans will have a rude awakening. They will learn, for the first time, that war and defense are an incredibly costly business. For, on that date, the highest income taxes ever levied in this country will be due and payable. Everyone knows that the new tax bill is severe—but it is probable that relatively few know just how much of their income it will take.

A comparison of the old tax bill with the new tells the story. Under the old law, a single person with $3,000 net income paid the Federal government $84 in direct taxes—under the new law he must pay $197. Under the old law a married person with no dependants and a $10,000 income, paid $528—under the new law he must pay $1,305. And the new tax bill reaches down into income levels which were never touched before. For instance, under the old law a married person earning $2,000 a year was not taxed at all. Under the new law, he must pay $37.

In the upper income brackets, very substantial increases have also gone into effect. A married man, for example, without dependents and earning $25,000 a year, paid $3,843 under the old law. Next year he must pay $6,864—an increase of more than 50 per cent.

In the highest income brackets, the increases are proportionately much less—and for a sound reason. That reason is that people with incomes of great size have long been taxed to the very hilt. An example: Under the old law, a married person with an income of $1,000,000 a year had to pay the Federal Treasury close to three-quarters of it—$717,000, Under the new law, he will pay something over $732,000.

The heaviest burden of the new law, however, falls on corporations, rather than on individuals. The regular corporation income tax rates have been upped, and, in addition, very large increases in corporation excess profits taxes have been enacted. A corporation with a net income of $25,000 a year or more must pay a regular tax of 24 per cent. On excess profits of $50,000 it must pay 45 per cent in addition, here the old rate was 35 per cent. When excess profits pass $500,000, it must pay 60 per cent. Furthermore the new law contains a provision which makes the burden on corporations considerably higher than the percentage figures indicate. To quote the U. S. News, "Under the old law, the normal taxes came out first, and the excess profits taxes were levied on what was left. The new law provides that the excess profits taxes come out first, and the normal taxes apply to what is left. Since the excess profits rates are much higher than the normal rates, the corporation fares much worse by the change."

Heavy as this tax bill is, the Treasury estimates that it will mean an increase in Federal revenue of only $3,550,000,000 a year. So far, we have appropriated aboue $60,000,000,000 for military purposes— of which $50,000,000,000 is for our own defense, and $10,000,000,000 is for Aid for Britain. In short, the revenue produced by the record-breaking new taxes will be only a drop in the bucket in relation to the cost of our arms policy program. The general opinion is that a far tougher tax bill will have to be enacted before very long—possibly next year. Current English income taxes, which are three or four times as heavy as ours, indicate what happens when a nation goes to war in the mechanized modern manner.

The individual will not have met his share of new taxes when he signs his check for his income tax and sends it in to the Collector of Internal Revenue. In addition, the new bill levies a large number of commodity taxes. Liquor, automobiles, household machinery, amusement enterprises, etc., are to be substantially taxed. And the consumer, of course, will have to pay.

As this column has pointed out before, there are two facets of heavy taxation. One—the obvious one—is the production of more revenue. The other is to reduce the public's purchasing power and so help prevent, or slow price inflation. But some believe that the new tax bill does not go far enough so far as the last goal is concerned. They believe that a system of compulsory savings will have to be put into effect during this period of rising incomes and declining supply of commodities. Whatever happens, it is clear that we are just beginning to learn, at first hand, the financial sacrifices that the defense of our hemisphere makes unavoidable.

Hitler's last speech, on the occasion of the opening of the Nazi winter relief drive, was in a sense a confession of failure. He admitted that the German General Staff had tremendously underestimated the Russians.

Hitler's gains in Russia have been relatively minor and have been won at a terrific cost. The world has been shown, at last, that the German military machine is not irresistible.

Yellow Lines which Glow at Night Increase Driving Safety

Applying Yellow Lines on a State Highway

Yellow lines, glowing under the headlights of automobiles and trucks traveling Indiana's state highway system at night, have proven a major contribution to motoring safety, it was pointed out by James D. Adams chairman of the State Highway Commission.

These yellow lines, when on the driver's side of the black center stripe, mean that sight distance ahead is too limited to permit safe passing of other vehicles moving in the same direction and thus designate "no-Passing zones" on the state highway system. Introduced as an experiment by the State Highway Commission in 1935, use of the yellow line has become a part of the standard marking of roads in the state system which carry a heavy volume of traffic.

Originally yellow paint was used to mark the no-passing zones but the resulting line was difficult to see at night and frequently motorists found themselves across the yellow line on curves or grades. Now the yellow line has been made visible for night drivers by mixing tiny glass beads with a specially prepared paint, resulting in a line which glows under the approaching headlights and warns the driver that he is entering a no-passing zone.

In applying the reflectorized yellow line, highway engineers have utilized the same machine which they developed for marking the centerline on Indiana highways. A special container is added for the beads and tubes carry these particles of glass into smaller containers from which they are sprinkled onto the freshly-painted yellow line. The equipment makes it possible to apply the beaded line on either side of the center line or on both sides at the same time.

Every mile of road is "logged" preparatory to the marking of no-passing zones, with the beginning and end of the zone checked on the pavement. This marking also indicates whether the yellow line is to be applied on the right or left side of the center line or on both sides. The marking requires a crew of five men; one to drive the machine, one to start and stop the flow of paint and beads at the proper points, a third who places warning flags on the new line to keep motorists from driving over the paint until it is dried, and a truck with driver and helper to pick up the flags and carry extra supplies of paint and beads.

Marking no-passing zones, using the special paint and beads to obtain better visibility at night, requires the expenditure of between $40,000 and $60,000 annually but highway officials regard this expenditure as a worthwhile investment in safety for the motorists.

Mrs. Dilley remained for the entire session which lasts through Thursday forenoon.

Russia is fighting bravely. It may be that, unaided, she will be able to wage the winter war that Hitler so much dreads. Yet there is ground for anxiety in the urgent call which went from Moscow to Britain, asking for an active campaign on the Western front, to ease the pressure in the East. It would be strange indeed if Russia were so completely free from the selfish instincts of the mankind as to disregard the advantages which flow from letting George do it. Nevertheless, the Macedonian tone to the message to England indicates that Russia is actuated by some motive stronger than a mere desire to conserve her own resources. The need is pressing and the crisis grave.

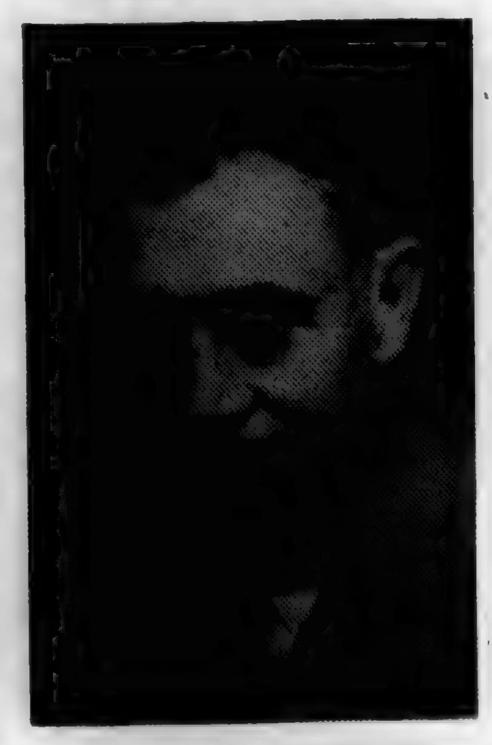
EDITORS' OUTING PROGRAM OFFERS POLITICS AND FUN

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Republican editors will cast aside journalistic troubles and revel in fun and politics with their Republican brethren when they gather at French Lick Springs Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, in their annual fall outing.



WILLIAM B. HARGRAVE

William B. Hargrave of Rockville, president of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, has announced the program at the famous Hoosier spa will be for recreation purposes only, with a full round of entertainment to occupy the time of the editors and their families and friends for the entire two-day period of the outing.

Golf, horseback riding and other entertainment will occupy the first day, with an address by Ralph F. Gates, Republican state chairman, as the speaker at a luncheon meeting on Saturday, Nov. 1, and Peter Grant, noted WLW radio columnist and narrator, scheduled as the principal speaker at the closing night banquet.

A novel entertainment program has been planned for the dinner-meeting, according to Neil D. McCallum, secretary of the editorial association and of the Republican State Committee. One of the principal features of the dinner will be the performance of F. Harold Van Orman of Evansville, former Lieutenant Governor of Indiana, who again will preside as toastmaster. A number of artists from the WLW staff, including Lucille Norman, operatic star; Ronnie Mansfield and Paul Arnold, singers, with Herschel Luecke at the piano, will entertain during the dinner hour.

Mr. Grant will conduct his nightly broadcast from the dining room, and following the broadcast will conduct an interview program from among the audience.

Numerous party leaders and workers, in addition to state and national officials, are to attend the gathering. The two-day outing will wind up Sunday morning with a horse show, in charge of William D. Murray of Bicknell.

Mr. Hargrave today announced appointment of James E. Montgomery of New Albany as chairman of the reception committee for the outing. Serving with Mr. Montgomery will be Edwin V. O'Neel of Hagerstown, Walter S. Crim of Salem, Paul R. Bausman of Washington and E. J. Hancock of Greensburg.

GILLIE OPPOSES AMENDMENT OF NEUTRALITY ACT

Opposition to President Roosevelt's plan to revise the neutrality Act and send armed American merchant ships into European war zones was announced today by Rep. George W. Gillie, of Indiana.

In revealing his reasons for opposing the President's recommendations, Congressman Gillie said:

"Repeal of the Neutrality Act, in my opinion, would inevitably be followed by our participation in the European War as an active belligerent. This would be the next natural step and even the interventionists, who in the past have described every war measure as a measure to keep us out of war, do not deny it.

"The issue as I see it is simple and clear-cut. It is war or peace. For who is to doubt that if we arm our merchant ships, load them with munitions, and send them shooting into the Atlantic war zones, we will not be in the war before the snow flies."

Congressman Gillie criticized the tactics of the Administration in attempting to get rid of the Neutrality Act piece by piece. Repeal of the provision against armed merchant vessels is now sought and the only reason the President's request for repeal of the combat zone restriction also is not pressed at this time, he said, is "the feeling that the American people have not fully been conditioned to take the final, shooting step."

Congressman Gillie predicted, however, that repeal of the armed-ship ban would be followed by elimination of the war zones provision "as surely as day follows night."

"This is a typical Administration trick," he pointed out. "If the pople won't take their medicine in one big gulp, they believe in giving it to them in little, sugar coated doses. It all adds up to the same thing—active participation in the war.

"I am convinced," he added, "that the American people prefer to be dealt with honestly and openly. They are against fighting an undeclared war, and feel that if we are going to get into this fight it should only be after a formal declaration by Congress. They might oppose such a declaration, of course, but if it were adopted by a majority of Congress they would give their unqualified support to the subsequent war effort."

OPEN SEASON FOR DUCKS AND GEESE BEGINS

With Indiana's open season on ducks, geese and other migratory waterfowl beginning at sunrise Thursday (Oct. 16) morning, Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, today called attention to the special regulations which cover the taking of these species of birds.

Ducks, geese, brant and coot may be taken in Indiana from Oct. 16 to Dec. 14—both dates inclusive—between the hours of sunrise and 4 P. M., C. S. T. Special attention is called to the fact that there is no open season in Indiana on Rose's geese, wood ducks, Wilson's snipe or jacksnipe, swans, cranes and mourning or turtle doves.

A hunter may take ten ducks daily, not more than three of which are of the Redhead and Bufflehead species. He may possess 20 ducks, not more than six of which are of the Redhead and Bufflehead species.

A hunter may take a combination of three geese and brant daily and may possess six of these birds. In addition he may take three blue geese daily and have six in possession. If a hunter takes only blue geese, he may take six per day and possess 12.

Among special regulations which the hunters should know, are:

Taking waterfowl by means of bait, or live duck or goose decoys is prohibited regardless of the distance between the bait or decoys and the hunter.

Rifles are prohibited but shotguns—not larger than 10 gauge and incapable of holding more than three shells at one time—and bows and arrows, may be used.

All persons over 16 years of age must have a 1941 Federal Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp, validated by their signature, to hunt ducks, geese and brant. These stamps are issued at United tSates Post-offices at a fee of $1.00.

All hunters, regardless of age, must carry a 1941 Indiana hunting license and must secure permission to enter upon the lands of another.

Advance reports on the prospects for the duck season are not especially favorable, no migration of these birds from the Northern feeding grounds having occurred to dates. Cold weather will be necessary to send the ducks and geese into Indiana enroute to the South for the winter months.

INDIANA OBSERVES NAVY DAY MONDAY

Navy Day, Monday, Oct. 27, will be observed throughout Indiana by numerous speeches, radio programs, and movies as planned by state and local Navy Day committees, Paul E. Fisher, State Chairman, announces.

Oct. 27 is annually selected as Navy Day because on that date in 1775 the Continental Congress received the first Navy bill providing for the original United States fleet. This is also the birth date of Theodore Roosevelt who constantly fought for a strong Navy adequate to our national need. Since 1922 Navy Day has been sponsored by the Navy League of the United States.

This year's slogan for Navy Day is "The Nation Salutes The Navy."

Highlight of the state wide program will be two addresses made by Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, before students of the University of Notre Dame, and the Indianapolis Navy Day banquet. His first speech will be given at the university in Notre Dame, Ind., and the second that evening in the Riley room of the Claypool Hotel.

Admiral Nimitz also will swear in some 325 men recruited during the past month for the Navy, by as many American Legion Posts in the state. The campaign, part of a nation wide drive by the legion to recruit 11,826 men, will come to a close with the Navy oath ceremonies in the Monument Circle Navy Day at 4:30 P. M.

Governor Henry F. Schricker, Mr. Fisher, W. Carl Graham, State Legion Commander, and William E. Sayer, State Legion Adjutant, and Naval officers will greet the Admiral upon his arrival in the Hoosier capitol.

Special Navy Day programs have been planned for most of the major cities and towns in Indiana with local committees in charge of arrangements. Radio programs throughout the day may be heard over WOWO Ft. Wayne; also at Elkhart, Lafayette, South Bend, Terre Haute, Hammond, Evansville, Kokomo, and Indianapolis.

CONCORD RESIDENT DIES IN HOSPITAL

Lockus VanLear, 84, retired farmer of 2½ miles northwest of St. Joe, and a foster brother of H. M. VanLear, of Garrett, died at the Souder Hospital in Auburn Sunday noon of uremic poisoning. He had been ill for two weeks and a patient at the hospital for one week.

Mr. VanLear was born at Auburn May 9, 1857 and for years operated a shoe repair shop in connection with his home, corner of Ensley Ave. and Van Buren St. He married Esther Knight of Auburn in 1920. The body was taken to the Forrest Zimmerman funeral home in Garrett where arrangements for services were made to be held at the mortuary at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Carl G. Adams officiated and burial followed in Union cemetery northwest of Garrett.

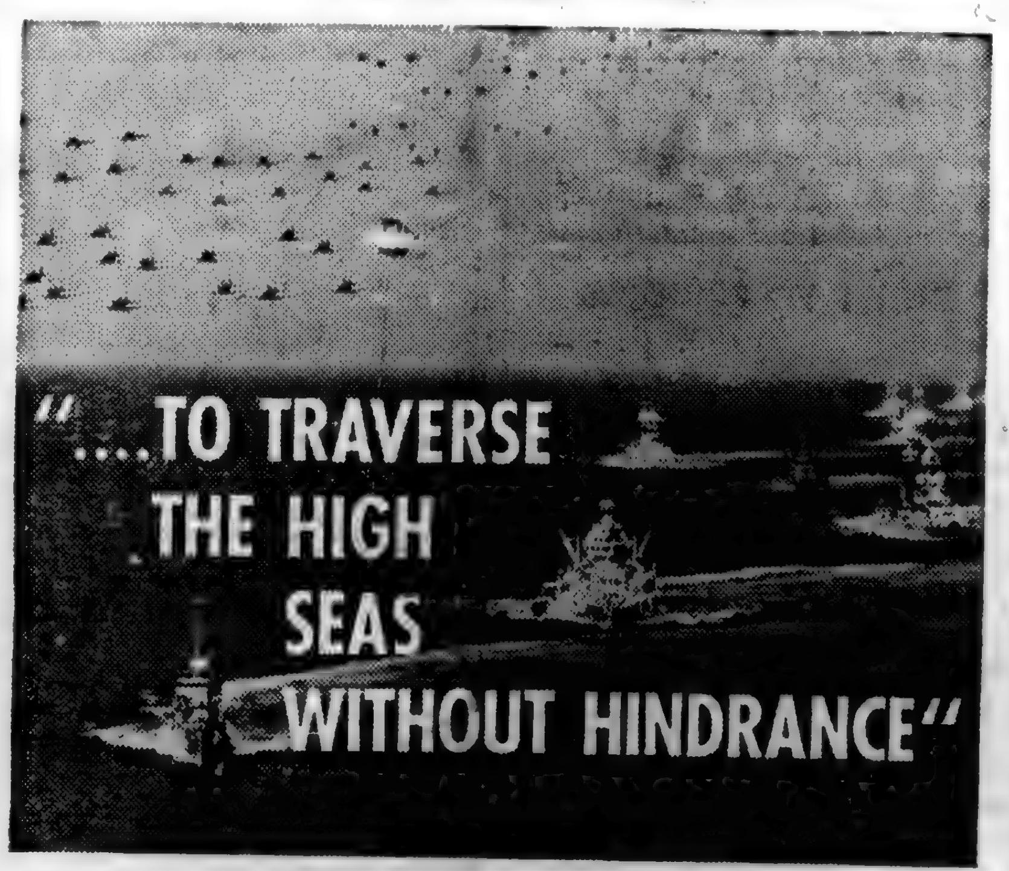
Survivors besides the widow and Mr. VanLear are three nieces, Mrs. W. A. Rinehold, Mrs. Wilbur Campbell and Mrs. Dorothy Gramling of Auburn, and two nephews, John H. Chitenden of near Garrett and John VanLear of Kendallville.

Card Of Thanks

Thanks to the many neighbors and friends who assisted in the care of Mr. VanLear and for the beautiful flowers which express the real spirit of friendship. — H. M. VanLear, Mrs. Esther VanLear.

Frank Meese returned Monday from a two weeks trip to Philadelphia, where he visited his son, Fred and wife. He has many interesting things to tell concerning the ship yards and the defense industries of the East.

—Navy Day October 27, 1941—



Here you see a thrilling scene of American battleships in line. The navy, our first line of defense, will help preserve the right "to traverse the high seas without hindrance," as pledged by President Roosevelt in collaboration with Prime Minister Churchill in their famous eight points. The pledge is not new for America. It is "the freedom of the seas" pledge given by Woodrow Wilson in 1917 and by President Madison in the War of 1812 and by President Adams in our undeclared naval war against France in 1798. Proud as America has always been of its navy, it willingly scrapped many ships in a program for disarmament in the early twenties. But the world wasn't ready. For 18 years not a single warship of capital size was built by the U. S. Now America's navy is to be brought to greater strength than ever before. The battleship North Carolina was finished earlier this year. Others are on the way.

A FRENCHMAN AND HIS THOUGHTS

Two years ago a Frenchman was as free as you are. Today what does he think——as he humbly steps into the gutter to let his conquerors swagger past,

—as he works 53 hours a week for 30 hours' pay,

—as he sees all trade unions outlawed and all the "rights" for which he sacrificed his country trampled by his foreign masters,

What does that Frenchman —soldier, workman, politician or business man—think today? Probably it's something like this: "I wish I had been less greedy for myself and more anxious for my country; I wish I had realized you can't beat off a determined invader by a quarreling, disunited people at home; I wish I had been willing to give in on some of my rights to other Frenchmen instead of giving up all of them to a foreigner; I wish I had realized other Frenchmen had rights, too; I wish I had known that patriotism is work, not talk; giving, not getting."

And if that Frenchman could read our newspapers today, showing pressure groups each demanding things be done for them instead of for our country, wouldn't he say to American business men, politicians, soldiers and workmen: "If you knew the horrible penalty your action is bound to bring, you'd bury your differences now before they bury you; you'd work for your country as you never worked before; and wait for your private ambitions until your country is safe. Look at me . . . I worked too little and too late."—From The Canner. Oct. 11 '41.

TWO YOUNG COUPLES GIVEN PARTY BY CLASS

The Young People of the St. Joe Church of Christ held a class meeting with their teacher Dennis Geris last Thursday evening. EVENING SCHOOL FOR LOCAL FARMERS

Adult Evening Schools will again be offered to the farmers in the patronage area of the two local High Schools. These schools will meet for twelve consecutive weeks, one night a week. Each meeting will last from one and a half to two hours. Any farmer actively engaged in farming is eligible to attend. There is no expense to any individual member.

The Evening School Course at Spencerville High School will begin Nov. 5 at 7:30 o'clock, Central Standard Time, and will consider those problems in Hog Production that the Evening School Group feels are important.

The Evening School Course at the High School at St. Joe will begin Nov. 6 at 7:30 o'clock, C. S. T., and will consider those problems in Dairy Production that the Evening School Group feels are important.

Anyone interested in attending these schools should attend the first meeting in order that he may be able to help make the course content interesting and of value to the entire group. Any farmer, regardless of where he lives may attend the school, but it is intended that these courses be switched next year. That is, Dairy Production will be offered at Spencerville next year and Hog Production will be offered at St. Joe. Therefore it will be possible for anyone to go to his local high school and receive each course in a period of two years.

Plan to be with your neighbor for three months of practical production information.

NAVY DAY, OCT. 27

Our Continental Congress founded the American Navy in 1775, in the month of October and since then this nation has built battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aircraft carriers to establish her force on the water. In 1922 the Navy League officially named Oct. 27 in tribute to the sea heroes of our land and to remind us of the great part the navy has played in making us a great country. It is the time to review past naval history and the present program for appropriations for ships. Back in 1915 we spent the least for our navy in the last 25 years. In 1918-19 we put on pressure and hopped up the bill ten times what it was in 1915. After '21 we relaxed and spent only twice as much in '23 as in '15. In '36 we stirred and yearly increased our spending until we were equalling in 1940 just half of what we were spending in the year of 1919 and war. What the close of 1941 will show is an item that puts us with the major navy of the world.

HALLOWEEN

Comes the last of October and the frolicsome holiday which we term Halloween. There will be the usual harvest festivals at this time and masquerade parties bringing out weird and charming costumes from the attic trunks. Busy the hands making goblins out of pumpkins, tic-tacs out of spools, preparing for apple ducking, making games of fortunes and gathering in autumn leaves and corn shocks for decorations. Each year you believe you have outgrown the enjoyment of October 31st. You feel you are too old to appreciate and laugh off the deviltry that seems to accompany the occasion and each year you decide you won't stand for any nonsense next year from the neighborhood children. And here we are again taking in the porch furniture, locking the garage door, leaving the screens on the windows until after the soaping stunt is over. Pop some corn and have apples and candy on hand to give the youthful "beggars" on their night. Of course you aren't too old for Halloween, at least not until next year.

RIGHT TO RELIGION

We are having some discussion right now regarding a country's curtailment of a citizen's rights to his religious belief. It has always been a subject to cause argument anytime for religion like politics is sacred ground to many a man. We thumb back thru history and woven thru its pages always is a struggle over religion. Perhaps it was a primitive belief with a sun or rain god, or a god who demanded bloody sacrifices to appease his wrath. History shows us that religion has been accused of doing more harm than good. It has been mocked by men who point to catastrophes where innocent lives are snuffed out, to war which tears the man faith, and the sceptic asks if religion is this. Men have grown a bit independent of their church for as they prosper they grow less conscious of their need for religion. It seems to take hardship to bring man closer to his god, whatever his god may be.

Science in its great discoveries undermines many of the mysteries that have bewildered man through history, and it helps to push man's religion into the background. King David said, "For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow."

Up to 1936 our religious denominations in this country had fifty-five million members. The population of our country increased more than eight million in the ten years from 1926-36, so you can see that the church membership slumped. History points to the fact that a nation's culture and conduct sets the level upon which that nation's churches stand. Should we not polish up our own Christian principles shining and bright before we criticise another country? They haven't the right to worship and we have but don't exercise it to its full capacity.

APPLE DAYS

This is the time of year sweetest to the heart of the apple eater. Take what you will away from American originality, you must cede her the right to claim the apple for her very own. A bag of Jonathans will cause the various schools of thought to speak of the qualities of Grimes Golden, MacIntosh or Northern Spy. We make poetry about the odor of apples stored in a basement during months of cold. We decorate our boards with polished arrays of apples to tempt the appetite and gladden the artistic eye. But in our appreciation we forget to draw our children about us and tell them the story of a quaint frontiersman of the early 1800's who tramped his way from cider mills in Pennsylvania, loaded his pack horse with appleseeds, and covered the middle west with neat rows of appleseeds to give birth to orchards that were to live and thrive for the settlers who followed him. His name was Jonathan Chapman but was popularly called Johnny Appleseed. At 25 years of age he followed Indian trails and cast the apple seeds through Ohio and Indian territory, moving always onward to keep his trees healthy and see that the Indians cultivated them properly. He was an oddity in character, habits, dress and belief. He helped the white men to stave off many Indian attacks and lived to a ripe old age, continuing to plant and tend about 100,000 square miles of apple orchards in the middle west. His story is interesting to those who relish tales of frontier days. His efforts in giving us our nurseries of apple orchards are appreciated by the man who likes his bowl of popcorn and apples at his radio.

WORLD TRADE

About 50 per cent of world trade is within the control of the United States and Great Britain, and it is likely to remain in that proportion. Most of the basic raw materials, and the World's gold are in the hands of the United States and friendly countries.

It is an open question whether the old forms of tariffs, or the new plan of trade treaties, will be employed in post war years in the methods of reconstructing foreign trade. But it is improbable to even suppose the Axis nations will be able to gobble the trade of South America, or of any major spot in the Western Hemisphere, or in the Dominions of the British Empire.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The drive to amend, change, or totally repeal the Neutrality Act will in all probability succeed—though there will be plenty of debate in Congress before the isolationist group of senators and representatives is finished with the opposition. And the fact that success is likely, is a striking indication of the tremendous change in American public opinion that has taken place in the last two years.

The Neutrality Act was passed at a time when the sentiment of this country was over whelmingly opposed to direct or indirect intervention in the war. The bulk of the people felt that the war was purely Europe's business, and none of ours. For the most part, they hoped that Hitler would be defeated, but they didn't see any reason for spending their money, their resources, and perhaps their lives to beat him. They wanted to keep American ships and American citizens out of the war zone, and they wanted their country's foreign trade to be on a cash-and-carry basis, with foreign buyers taking their purchases home in their own ships.

The change that has taken place since those days is nothing short of revolutionary. Every poll shows that this country is now violently partisan—it wants to see Hitler licked to a standstill, and it is willing to do everything, except send another A. E. F. abroad, to achieve that end. The lend-lease bill went a long way toward making the Neutrality Act a dead letter, in that it threw the cash-and-carry principle overboard with scant ceremony. In all sections of the country, the polls indicate that the nation is strongly interventionist. Even in the Middle West, where isolationist sentiment is strongest, those who believe that this country's destiny will be largely decided by what happens to Hitler, have a heavy majority. In the East, South and Far West, isolatinoists are outnumbered by interventionists in a ration of about eight to one.

The country's political leadership has done much to bring this about. When it comes to foreign policy, the views of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie are practically identical. Both are for all-out effort against the Axis—both are convinced that the defeat of England would be ruinous to us in the long run. On top of that, the press of America, big and little, generally holds that it is no longer possible for us to disregard what goes on in Europe—that, whether we like it or not, our destiny is tied in with the destiny of the world. And the influential press and radio commentators are likewise interventionist almost without exception.

So far as amending the Neutrality Act is concerned, the main effort will be given to eliminating the stipulation that American ships cannot be armed and cannot enter war zones. Whether merchant ships can be given sufficient armament to do any good, is a moot point which is vigorously debated by both sides. Irrespective of that, it seems true that changing or amending the Act is primarily designed by the Administration and the Republican followers of Mr. Willkie, as a vital act of policy. In other words, it would place our cards on the table, and make our position absolutely clear to the whole world. That position can be stated in a sentence. "The U. S. is going to do everything in its power to lick the Axis, and all legal pretenses of non-partisanship must be abandoned."

The argument for repeal of the Neutrality Act was well put recently by pundit Walter Lippman, most scholarly of the major columnists. By adopting it, he wrote, we gave up our long-establisehd, basic policy of freedom of the seas. In effect, we surrendered to Germany. In conclusion, he said: "Having been taught to believe by our neutrality law that what Germany declares to be her purposes will in the end become accepted as American law, the Nazis have been preying on ships well outside our own self-imposed combat zone. It just happens that their combat zone is bigger than ours, and therefore, according to Berlin, it is legal to sink ships there without warning. . . .The neutrality law has proved itself to be an act of self-abasement, a mortifying submission to force, without logic, without honor, and without value even to achieve the purpose for which it was originally intended."

Strongest argument against changing the Neutrality Act is based on the belief that the arming of merchant ships and the entry of our vessels into combat waters would be the prelude to an all-out shooting war which, in time, would make the sending of American troops abroad inevitable. Many of the backers of the interventionist policy are frankly urging a declaration of war by us against Germany now.

Mr. Willkie has called upon members of his party in Congress to take the lead in amending or repealing the Neutrality Act. That shows the way the wind blows. The principal Republican newspapers, such as the New York Herald Tribune, are denouncing the members of that party who still hold to isolationist principles. The Democrats, with few exceptions, are following the President.

Red Cross Helps Solve Problems Of Our Recruits

Through Its Directors In Camps Red Cross Links Men With Home

Washington, D. C.—On the home and military fronts the American Red Cross is turning its focus on the man in uniform. In his behalf, more than 10,000 nurses are being recruited. Volunteers are donating their blood for a huge plasma bank. Red Cross women in chapters throughout the country are making 40,000,000 surgical dressings, and knitting sweaters for men in outlying posts and sailors on patrol.

But these are just fragments of the story. In military and naval stations, the Red Cross is concerning itself with the personal problems of the service man, helping him adjust himself to military life. For the disabled, the Red Cross is on the job in service hospitals, helping to speed recovery of the sick through a morale-building program.

In mobilizing a 2,000,000-man fighting force, the personal problems of the able-bodied man in uniform have in turn become problems of the morale divisions. Red Cross field directors stationed in all camps and reservations have been entrusted with the task of helping to solve these problems.

Speaking in a nation-wide broadcast recently, Chief of Staff Marshall, of the Army, addressed the following words to Red Cross field directors:

"When you help straighten out any of the great variety of tangles that human beings seem unable to avoid, you are helping to maintain morale on the home front and on the military front; you are helping us in training for defense."

The disabled man in a service hospital also can look to the Red Cross for help in speeding recovery. Medical-social workers, trained for their specialized assignment, are on duty at Army general and Navy hospitals to aid service physicians, to act as a medium of communication with the families of hospitalized men and to conduct recreational programs for convalescents.

The Red Cross provides recreational service for patients in all Army and Navy hospitals. Sixty-five new hospitals are under construction by the Army, and their recreation buildings are being equipped and staffed by the Red Cross as each one opens.

As part of the Army and Navy safety programs, members of the national Red Cross staff are qualifying instructors in First Aid and Water Safety among the ranks of the enlisted man. Instructors taught by the Red Cross in turn conduct classes on the reservations.

The number of Army and Navy cases assisted by Red Cross field directors has increased in volume 140 per cent since Selective Service has been in operation. During the past year 126,515 cases involving active service men have been handled in the camps.

The Red Cross recently made available $1,000,000 to meet an emergency need for athletic equipment for the Army and Navy. This need arose when Government appropriations for the purpose became exhausted.

In addition to providing the Army and Navy with an official reservoir of nurses, the Red Cross is cataloging the nation's medical technologists. Through this program, in which approximately 3,000 technicians have registered, the Army and Navy will select such professional personnel as laboratory workers, dietitians, dental technicians, pharmacists and other categories of trained technologists.

Included among the fifty-odd trade and vocational training courses open to Navy recruits who pass the required examination is dental technician schooling. This course, like all Navy trade and vocational courses, is free and provides an excellent groundwork for a future career in later civilian life. All recruits receive their regular Navy pay during the period they are at a Navy trade school. This training is valued at $1500.

Red Cross, OCD Look to Volunteers For Civil Defense

Washington, D. C. — To the question, "What can I do for America?" the Red Cross is providing an answer for hundreds of thousands of men and women who want to do their part on the civilian defense front.

For women, the Red Cross is providing an 80-hour training course to recruit a corps of 100,000 Nurse's Aides. It is the Red Cross' newest project, undertaken at the request of the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense to relieve the current pressure on nursing facilities.

With thousands of nurses being taken into military service with our armed forces, civilian nursing has suffered a direct blow, the Red Cross points out. Moreover, the defense program has created additional health problems which has heightened the need for civilian nursing.

Red Cross Nurse's Aides will serve as assistants to registered nurses, performing scores of important duties which will enable nurses to care for more cases. The Red Cross stresses that Nurse's Aides will not take the place of the registered nurse, but will serve in an auxiliary capacity.

On the more dramatic side of civilian defense, the Red Cross is gearing its far-flung disaster fighting machine to handle mass feeding, housing and clothing of exacuees under wartime conditions. In cooperation with the Office of Civilian Defense, chapters are strengthening disaster relief committees to cope with man-made disaster much on the same scale as relief operations following natural catastrophe. Organization along these lines include preparedness measures for fires, explosions and epidemics which may be expected to result from accelerated industrial activity incident to national defense or sabotage.

Strictly as a precautionary measure, the Red Cross is devising means of confronting emergency relief in the event of sporadic air or sea attacks, considered conceivable hazards in some coastal and boundary areas.

The need for First Aid in civilian defense has not been neglected by the Red Cross. Last year nearly 600,000 were trained in emergency treatment of the injured. This year the figure is expected to go much higher with special emphasis being placed on the formation of detachments which would serve as units in factories, office buildings, schools and other places where persons are concentrated.

Red Cross courses in Home Nursing and in Nutrition also are being expanded as a feature of the civilian defense program, it was pointed out. Mounting health hasards and the shortage of civilian nurses may at any time obligate the housewife—or even the man of the house—to assist in caring for the sick. Likewise, the Red Cross is placing greater emphasis on Nutrition courses designed to teach house holders the art of purchasing and preparing well-balanced meals within the range of the family pocketbook.

NEW AUTO LAW IS EXPLAINED

The new law provides that you may drive on your 1941 operator's license until March 1, 1942. This will prevent confusion in securing licenses as both plate and operator's licenses will go on sale on the same date and expire on the same date. Attention is called at this time to the new law governing the issuance of licenses to prevent delay in securing your licenses the first of the year.

House Bill S109 approved February 27, 1941, provides that all persons who are residents of the State of Indiana must submit a receipt or other evidence showing that such applicant has paid his poll and personal property tax in full which accrued and fell due and payable during the year previous to the year in which such license is issued; in other words, the poll and personal property tax for 1940 and prior, payable in 1941, must be paid in full before license plates or operator's license can be issued for 1942.

When personal property is owned jointly, the man and woman both must present the paid tax receipts. If the automobile is in the husband's name, the wife must present the paid personal property tax of her husband and when the car is assessed in the name of the wife, the husband must present the paid personal property tax together with his paid poll tax receipt if he was between the ages of 21 and 50 on March 1, 1940. When any other member of the family makes application for an operator's license, the paid personal property tax receipts must accompany the application. This means that the tax receipts may make three or more thips to the License Bureau.

ASK the average man what he spends for books and periodicals—he will agree that it isn't even "cigarette money." And he's right, for the nation spends twice as much annually on tobacco as on literature—the cost of books and periodicals amounts to only $850,000,000* a year . . .

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, OCT. 30, 1941 NUMBER 44

THEY'RE TRYING HARD TO PRINT TRUE FACTS

You hear every now and then a criticism about the amount of propaganda that is dished out by the American press and how one item will refute another that is right beside it on the same page. But you will also find much of the reading public appreciative of the hard task the newspaper has on its hands. To give its readers the exact news as it occurs is pretty near impossible when the sources from whence cometh much of it sends out just what it wants you to read. Though the American press does not claim perfection yet it is working with thoroughness and skill to satisfy the American reader as best it may through integrity in news, photos and advertising. With the various departments you find in your paper there is some feature that appeals to everyone. With the press reporting through so many mediums the news events from foreign lands we find the reading public here more familiar with what is going on abroad than most Europeans are themselves. About sixty years ago one copy of a daily paper was printed for every sixth family. Today we have one and one-quarter copies for every family. But this doesn't mean the press will rest on its laurels. They have many improvements to make and knowing of the amount of influence they carry, must continually strive to insure for themselves respect from their readers to merit the appreciation they deserve.

News changes rapidly and we want the paper of today when we read it and not one that is twenty-four hours old. This applies more particularly to the daily papers. You can get a pretty fair idea as to the problem confronting the weekly newspaper when it comes to branching out for news beyond its confines. Rumors cannot make a newspaper, because in the first place the facts are not well grounded.

Only recently in our own community, rumors had it, that the federal government was about to take over a vast territory here for the establishment of a powder plant, taking over all the lands between the New York Central Railroad on the north and the B. & O. on the south and extending along the Wabash Railroad on the west as far south as the County Line; that some of the farmers had already sold their land to the government; that no persons would be allowed to live within 9 miles of this territory, and many other wild statements were made daily since the first rumor was started on its way.

People began to inquire as to why the newspapers did not put out propaganda regarding this, and upon making some inquiry in regards to the matter, officials who were in a position to know, were unable to give out any information confirming such a report.

Newspapers generally seek the truth in reports before they put them out in print as a fact.

"RESIDENT" LICENSE QUALIFICATIONS

Legal qualifications determining who is eligible for a "resident" Indiana hunting, fishing and trapping license are set out in a 1937 Act of the General Assembly and govern the issuance of all licenses by the Division of Fish and Game, Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, said today.

The law defines as a "resident" a person who is at the time and who has been continuously for a full period of six months preceding the date of application for a license or permit issued under the provisions of this Act (Chapter 2, Acts of 1937) a bona fide resident of this state. Proof that any person is not a qualified voter of the county in which he claims residence shall constitute prima facie evidence that such person is not a resident of the state within the meaning of this act.

L. L. C. MEETS WITH MRS. ALLEN HALLER

The Ladies Literary Club of St. Joe met at the home of Mrs. Allen Haller, Wednesday evening, Oct. 22.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, and the collect was read by Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser. The lesson for the evening from the Readers Digest Books entitled "Alone" by Richard E. Byrd, was presented by Mrs. C. C. Woodcox. "Alone" is a book that Admiral Byrd was four years deciding whether to write: the account of an Antarctic experience so intimate that for a long time he could not bring himself to tell it. It is one of the most intense and moving dramas of our time, a great and living book.

A parliamentary drill was given by Mrs. Allen Haller with the assistance of Mrs. C. O. Krise. Special work on "Art" was given by Mrs. Wilbern. The critic's report for the evening was presented by Mrs. Fred B. Leighty. The secretary's report by Mrs. Ralph Keeler was read and accepted.

After all business was taken care of the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. O. K. Shull, Wednesday evening, Nov. 5.

There were fifteen active members and one honorary member, Mrs. Carleton Shull, present. The hostess served smack cheese sandwiches pickles, pumpkin pie topped with whipped cream, coffee and candy corn.

MRS. NELLIE PERRY SUCCUMBS TO HEART ATTACK

Services for Mrs. Nellie L. Perry, aged 67 years, wife of Alvey Perry, of one and one-half miles north of Garrett on Road 327, were held Wednesday afternoon at the Coburntown Church east of St. Joe, the Rev. Walter Coburn, of North Liberty, Ind., officiating and burial was made in Alton cemetery.

The death of Mrs. Perry took place from heart attack at her home Monday morning at 1:30 o'clock and came as a real surprise to her family. The body was removed to the Kinsey funeral home where it remained until time for the services. Mr. and Mrs. Perry moved to their present home from St. Joe two years ago and built the home they occupied on a plot adjoining the property of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Busz.

Other survivors include a son, Paul Perry, and another daughter, Mrs. Ray Herrick, both of Fort Wayne. There are also six grandchildren.

Mrs. Perry's maiden name was Coburn and she and Mr. Perry celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in the summer of 1940.

Her entire life had been spent in DeKalb County, having been born in Newville Tp.

First Anniversary of Lions Club Celebrated Monday Evening

Thirty-nine Lions and Lionesses enjoyed the first anniversary program and chicken dinner at the Akins Tea Room, Monday night, with Ralph Sechler as the chairman for the year, the program moved off in good style. Clyde Hart was appointed tail twister for the evening, due to absence of Stanley Garman, who was elected to the official position. Many amusing incidents occurred during the evening which caused some of the members to part with their dimes.

Arthur Lyon was called upon to recite a poem and upon refusing to do so, because of his timidity, he was assessed a fine of 50 cents by the trustee, and by refusing to pay, his necktie was cut in two as payment. Later in the evening Durwood Ridgway was called upon to sing a solo, and he stalled and began to argue as to why he should be called to do the impossible, and he likewise was fined 50c by the tail twister, and upon further arguing the injustice of such a request, he likewise parted with half of his necktie.

The crowd was in good spirits for such an evening, and the songs led by Lion Wilbern, kept the spirit of fellowship at high pitch.

With a speech of eloquence Lion Sechler mentioned the fact that F. R. Bowman, past president, was to be honored with a turkey dinner while the rest would eat chicken. The waitress immediately presented Mr. Bowman with a plate of corn.

No business was transacted other than a historical report by Lion Wicoff, as to the organization, its purposes, and membership.

Lion Sechler in introducing the speaker, Pastor Frank Stevenson, of the Lutheran Church, stated that he did not know upon what theme he would talk, and the speaker said in that case he would at least talk upon a subject which was of interest to himself.

Pastor Stevenson, speaking on the general theme of Christian patriotism, urged the members and guests of the Lions' Club to take the lead in true Americanism by maintaining tolerance and open-mindedness, which, he said, are characterized by the willingness to hear both sides of every question, checking any extreme statement with a "Yes, but—"

Proceeding to apply this critical attitude toward three popular expressions of patriotic fervor, he said in part:

"I Am An American, yes, but what is an American? If I mean simply that I am a citizen of a particular nation, what reason do I have to boast. I just happened to be born here and not in less favored land....Or if I mean that I am an American in that I favor the preservation of things as they are economically and politically, that I'm not seeking to change my government's policies, I'm probably riding on the band wagon and don't want anything to change what favors me....But if I am truly American, I use this phrase to express a certain philosophy of life, which in a Christian spirit, seeks liberty and justice and mercy for all men everywhere, —not just for me and mine.

"America First," yes, but first in what and before what? If this two-word blast of propaganda is simply an expression of national selfishness, or of personal cowardice, then it is far distant from true Americanism. Behind the screen in front of which most "America Firster" are screeming their plea, will usually be found a philosophy rooted in "Myself First." On a national scale this attitude approaches the "sick 'em" policy of the British government throughout the past two years. But if by America first we mean America first in reform, in politincal harmony, in economic freedom and justice, that is, if we mean that we believe we should "cast the beam out of our own national eye before trying to remove the mote that is in our brothers' eyes," then it is truly American to shout, "America First."

" God Bless America," yes, but are we willing to fulfil the prerequisites of the plessing? There could be no higher prayer, no better expression of patriotism, than to desire God's blessing for our nation, but there isn't any hocus-pocus about how His blessing is given. Sentimentalism is often a cloud to hide a lac kof sincere feelings. Millions of people who so heartily sing this little ditty, are preventing the coming of God's blessing, actually damning our nation, by their own unrighteous living. God's blessing comes to only those who seek to do God's will and obey His law. "Not everyone that crieth, Lord, Lord, shal lenter into the Kingdom of Heaven, but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven." To clamor for "God Bless America" by wearing our patriotism on our clothing or in our hair, or plastered all over our automobiles is little more than mass superstition unless we are ready to say, "Thy will be done on earth...." To expect that God will bless America on any other conditions is not only shallow Americanism but it is also a revelation that our religious beliefs are no higher than those of the primitive pagan who believes that each nation has its indulgent god and if he can but arouse his own god, his nation will win the war.

"I AM AN AMERICAN," I believe in "America First," and I do seek to have "God Bless America, yes, but I say it with all the implications of truly American Christian Patriotism set clearly before my eyes."

"NIGHT" DOGS TO BE KEPT UP 15 DAYS

Attention was called today by Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, to a provision in the Indiana fish and game laws which provides that all night-running dogs shall be kept up for a period of fifteen days prior to the opening of the trapping season.

The law provides: "It shall be unlawful for any person for a period of fifteen days prior to the open season on raccoon to run or chase any raccoon or any other furbearing animal protected by this act (Chapter 154, Acts 1941) with or by use of dogs or to permit his dog or dogs to chase or run any such furbearing animals between the hours of sunset and sunrise."

With the trapping season opening throughout Indiana on Nov. 15, the ban on night-running dogs becomes effective October 31.

CORN HUSKING

This is the eighteenth year for the annual husking contest to take place here in the United States. It draws a large following and is considered an event on the national calendar of sports. After training for many weeks ahead in order to develop speed and the ability to husk corn clean and smooth, the contest finally arrives and the huskers move along the rows of corn to strip the stalks as rapidly as possible. The gleaner who follows and picks off the corn the husker misses, doesn't find much left since all of those that remain count against the contestant's score. There is an art to this nubbin picking and a champion may well be proud. The fact that corn husking exacts a sustained speed for a longer period of time than any other sport contest, makes of it an event for an athlete.

BUTCHERING

The man who has always lived in the city, can know little of what we call "butchering days" around St. Joe. He figures it probably as a nasty business of slaughtering animals. He will take his across the city market counter! He might not have the nerve to see one through if he can't stand even the idea. But to rural America there is an appreciation for the symbol of butchering days, since it means preparation of food for family and sale, a provender for days ahead. With the butchering friends come from far and near to help, the men to kill and the women to cook. They try a hand at solving national problems outside while the women pursue their many housewifely topics inside. Greeting and gathering they renew touch with some folks who only have this time to spare. Butchering is a business but it is also a time for fellowship.

THEY MEAN BUSINESS

We understand from one worthy source that as a whole the college students of today are more earnest than usual. That some universities are crowding three years training into two would alone mean extra concentration on the student's part. As older ones are taking the world more seriously so are our young, especially those of the college age. Military service perhaps might take the youth from his studies. The reflection of the times is to cast a shadow on the irresponsible who have taken college with a whoop and a couple of rah-rahs. Young folks who have gone to college for the pennants, the cheers and fraternities, can still clown in the dormitory and caper on the campus. But any student will tell you that acquiring an education is a more arduous task. Since none of us know when we might return to a sane road for living, we might expect there will be military training for our American youths for some time to come. So they are tackling the present job of getting their college while they have the chance to do so and are getting as much from it as they can.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

Current events have made the public flag-conscious, and it looks as though that consciousness were destined to increase, rather than diminish. Many bills designed to prohibit improper use of the flag generally, have been introduced in Congress. Thus far, none of these has reached the stage of enactment. The fact that Congress has not chosen to legislate on the subject, does not preclude the States from taking action. As a matter of fact, all of the States of the Union, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii have specified laws prohibiting the desecration and other misuse of the flag. The only piece of Fedelar law-making that is in point is an Act of Congress which forbids the use of the flag as a trade mark for goods. As was said by Mr. Justice Harlan of the Supreme Court of the United States, the flag is the emblem of freedom in its truest sense, and was hardly intended for use on merchandise.

Those wishing to pursue the matter further, will do well to read "The Flag of the United States," a pamphlet to be had from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. in return for a ten cent money order. The Government Printing Office perhaps is the largest book publisher in the country. Advantage is not taken of its resources as fully as might be. A request for a catalogue of publications along a specified line, in most instances will result in the receipt of helpful information. The Department of Agriculture likwise is a mine of advice.

Hitler is not interested in the flag, other than that he would like to have it reduced to the status of a museum piece: or in the Government Printing Office, aside from the circumstance that he could use it to run off Nazi leaflets. His notice, however, must have been attracted to a recent Senate vote of 59 to 13, approving a lend-lease appropriation of almost six billion dollars, the money to be sent for industrial or agricultural products of the United States. Opponents of the measure branded it as a ratification of all of the steps taken by the President without submission to Congress, and Congressional approval of an undeclared war. The favorite majority was known to be heavy, and a vote was deferred by no more than a few hours debate.

Although Nazi Germany furnishes the chief target for most of the international hard feeling in the United States, Japan also is in the line of fire. It was natural enough, therefore, that the proposed shipping of war goods to Archangel rather than to Vladivostok should have kindled indignation here, especially since the Japanese were markedly sore on the use of the port of Vladivostok for that purpose. The White House and the State Department are alleged to feel that the announcement by the Maritime Commission of a Change of route had some of the characteristics of letting the cat out of the bag. If, as stated, Japanese-American tension had been lessened, something has been accomplished, and if, as claimed, Archangel is the better and more available point of delivery, no harm has been done. After all, the end in view is to deliver the material to Russia in the most expeditious manner.

Orators are taking the stump to insist that, here and there, the business of war is not being prosecuted with the diligence recommended by Benjamin Franklin in connection with other pursuits. Mr. Bullitt, sometime Ambassador to France, demands an instant declaration of war on Germany, and finds, according to the newspapers, that "we have handled our war preparations over a period of years so ineffectively that we are not ready. The tanks that should be on the battle line now are not produced and not even half produced." Without going into the merits of the case, perhaps Mr. Bullitt has not made sufficient allowance for the very practical maxim that it makes a good deal of difference whose ox is being gored. Mr. Churchill, usually regarded as a go-aheader, is called upon by the Labor Party in Parliament to land an expeditionary force in Russia. His deliberation in making a reply, coupled with hints let fall by some of his brother-statesmen, lead one to think that the British ministry has that very move in mind.

THE GREAT PROBLEM OF ACCIDENTS

"Killed on his way to work." That phrase is appearing more and more often in newspaper stories of traffic accidents these days.

The National Safety Council says that off-the-job accidents to defense workers are one of the most critical problems in the Emergency Safety Campaign the Council is conducting at the request of President Roosevelt.

Occupational deaths in the first eight months of this year totaled 12,400, while off-the-job accidents killed 19,000 workers.

Occupational deaths and injuries in the same period represented a loss of productive time sufficient to build 19 battleships or 33,000 fighter planes. But off-the-job deaths and injuries of workers represented a loss of 30 additional battleships or 50,000 more fighter planes.

"It makes little difference whether a worker is killed at his lathe or in his car after the factory whistle blows, so far as the effect on the defense program is concerned," said Col. John Stilwell, president of the Council. "Safety authorities recognize that all-out production requires 24-hour safety."

FARM BUREAU

The Tri-Township Farm Bureau will hold its November meeting on Tuesday evening, Nov. 4. The program will open with community singing, followed by devotions by Rev. Nice, of the Newville Christian Church. Next will be the business session.

A program celebrating Thanksgiving and Armistice Day will be featured. A talk will be given by a high school teacher on "American Farmers as Statesmen."

"The War in Song," a pantomime which suggests the various stages through which the soldiers passed from the time before America entered the war until the Armistice, will be presented by the American Legion. Wayne Hook will entertain with a song. Smithfield township will then present a playlet, which will be followed by contests.

Ladies please bring pie. Coffee will be furnished by the association.

Mrs. Elva Hook,
Newville Twp. S. & E. Leader.

COMPENSATION DROPS

Unemployment compensation claimed by DeKalb County workers amounted to $178.00 in September, compared with $262.00 in August, and $1,485.00 in September, 1940, the manager of the Fort Wayne Employment Security states.

Although she has an assortment of hats, she wants a new one.

(That's the woman of it.)

He says, not if he knows it.

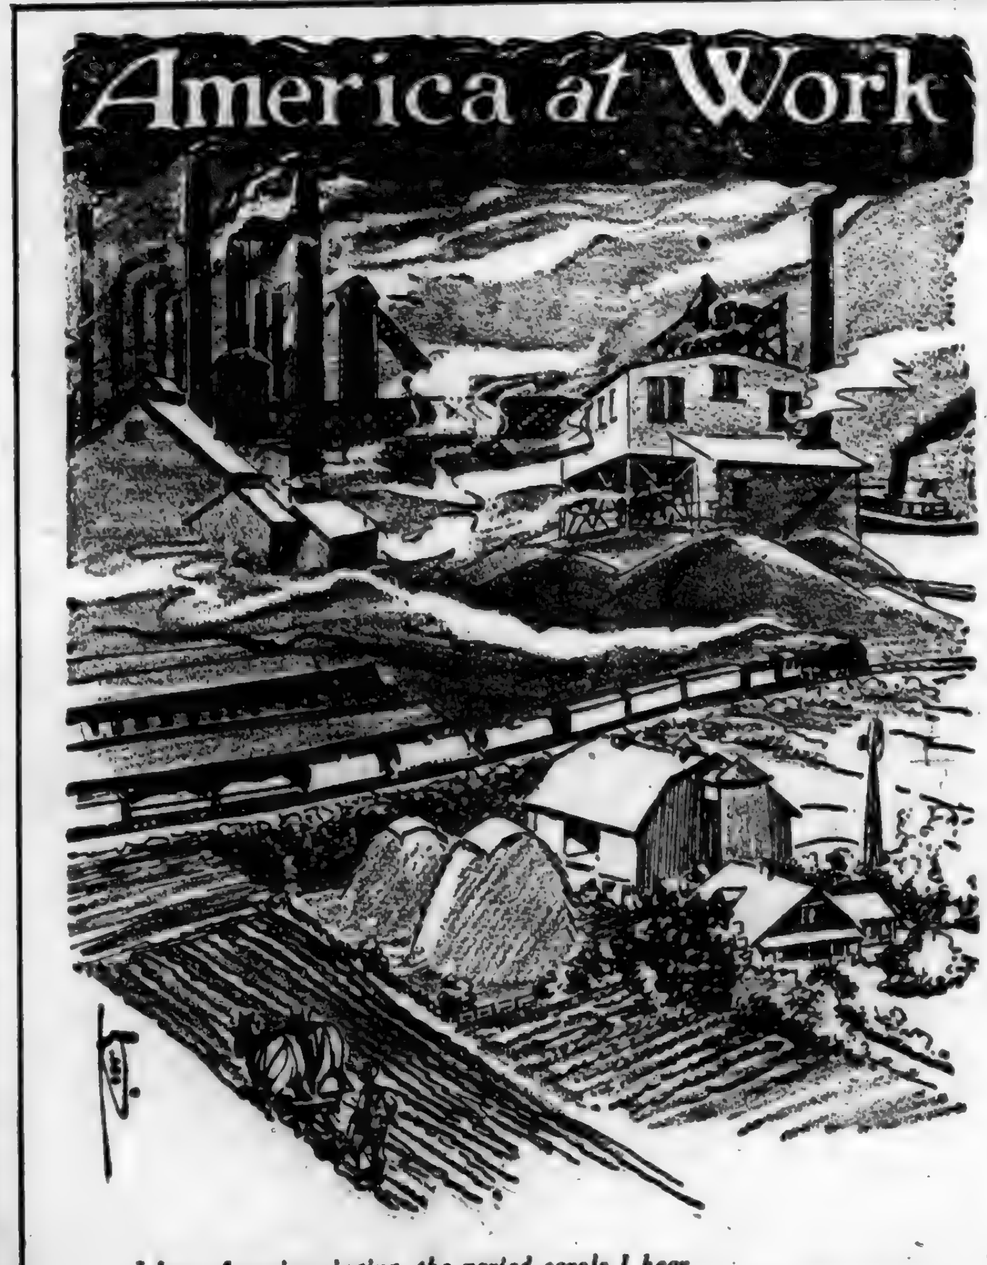
(That's the man of it.)

She breaks down and weeps.

(That's the woman of it.)

He gives in.

(That's the end of it.)—From Quest.



I hear America singing, the varied carols I hear,
Those of mechanics, each one singing as it should be blithe and strong,
The carpenter singing his as he measures his plank or beam,
The mason singing his as he makes ready for work or leaves off work,
The boatman singing what belongs to him in his boat, the deckhand singing on the steamboat deck,
The shoemaker singing as he sits on his bench, the hatter singing as he stands,
The wood-cutter's song, the ploughboy on his way in the morning, or at noon intermission or at sundown,
The delicious singing of the mother, or of the young wife at work, or of the girl sewing or washing. . . . .

* * *

SO SANG WALT WHITMAN. He sang of America and of a tradition of honest toil that is as American as The Star Spangled Banner. He called his song "I Hear America Singing," because in this country the workers are in every walk of life, even among the richest. No idle rich can win American respect. It is to the industrious, in whatever position, that America pays traditional honor.

No caste system hinders American youth from the pursuit of burning ambition to fight his way to the top; no aristocracy clutters the pages of American history; no dictator's iron heel drags labor to the level of slavery.

To Americans, labor is all-important, all-inclusive. All income groups take pride in the knowledge that their work, their job of earning a living is what makes democracy click—is the solid backbone of a great republic.

As the nation once more pays tribute to this great force which is labor, the words of Walt Whitman's poem, written over eighty years ago, sound what could well be a theme-song of "the American way"—1941 style.

Government....can curb abuses in the field of labor as it curbs abuses in other fields—by penalizing those abuses and making them illegal....It can punish union leaders, as it punishes ordinary mortals, for conspiring to restrain trade. It can, by proper legislation, enormously reduce labor racketeering. All that is required is the courage to act.

Million Red Cross Volunteers Aid Defense Program

Washington, D. C.—Behind the front lines of U. S. defenses more than 1,200,000 Red Cross volunteers are on the job—making surgical dressings, knitting sweaters and giving comfort articles, learning the rudiments of emergency mass feeding and scores of other duties in an all-out effort for national defense.

The largest defense task now being undertaken by Red Cross volunteers is the production of 40,000,000 surgical dressings for the Army and Navy, according to Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, national director of Volunteer Special Services.

Home Service volunteers and Gray Ladies, whose duties are directly concerned with the man in uniform also are expanding their programs, Mrs. Davis said.

As a preparedness measure, thousands of women throughout the country are learning mass feeding and nutrition as members of the Red Cross Canteen Corps. Added thousands are being trained in the Motor Corps to serve as emergency drivers.

LOG of the UNITED STATES MARINES

TRAVEL ON SLOW CRUISER

Camels, mules, ox-carts and airplanes have been used by the U. S. Marines as modes of transportation, but at least four of Uncle Sam's sea soldiers know how it feels to travel in a snow cruiser—the first craft of this type ever made.

The Marines were with the Admiral Byrd expedition to the Antarctic and were selected to make the trip because of their abilities as radio operators, mechanics, or airplane pilots. The strange craft in which they made their home at the faraway Southern base was called the "Penguin."

Built like a huge trailer, approximately 50 feet long and 20 feet wide, it was powered by two Cummins diesel engines. The odd conveyance included cooking, living and sleeping quarters, machine shop, engine room and other compartments.

Huge rubber-tired wheels, weighing three tons each, enabled the snow cruiser to pass over wide spaces in broken ice fields without making detours, and the cruiser also was able to carry an airplane on its ample roof.

Living in the odd craft was fairly comfortable, the Marines say, except when it became colder than 40 below zero and the kerosene in the cruiser wouldn't burn. At such times they were forced to seek shelter where coal was available.

Minerals which promise to prove valuable were found by geologists with the expedition, and new shore lines and mountains were discovered. The Marines had a good opportunity to test extremes of temperature, most of them having served previously in the tropics.

MOORE FIRST TO ENTER INTERNATIONAL SHOW

DeKalb county's first entries for the 1941 International Live Stock Exposition, to be held at the Chicago Stock Yards Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, were made last week by A. J. Moore, prominent Indiana sheep breeder of Butler.

He will exhibit a show flock of 12 pure bred Shropshires in the contest for this breed at Chicago this year.

The forthcoming Exposition will celebrate its 42nd annual renewal as the largest agricultural show in the country. Held in conjunction with the Exposition is the International Grain and Hay Show, world's largest farm crops show. It will be the 23rd anniversary of this event.

According to the management, entries have thus far been received from prospective exhibitors in 27 states and Canada. It is anticipated that all past records for the size of the entry will be broken by the closing dates for listing them, which officials of the show announce will be Nov. 1st for the live stock classes and Nov. 10 for the crops show.

If kerosene is added to the water with which linoleum is washed, it will loosen dirt and make washing easier. Also, when the children forget to bring the roller skates into the house and they become rusty, soak the rust from the wheels with kerosene. This will help your linoleum too since few are the roller skates that don't ride it.

Saucy Hot Puddings

By Frances Lee Barton

A HOT pudding certainly fits into the menu when the temperature is getting colder day by day. Serve the pudding with a hot foamy sauce and you really have a dessert for the men folks. There's no doubt about it—they say "seconds please!" every time.

Chocolate Fruit Pudding

1 cup coarsely chopped candied cherries; 1 cup coarsely chopped candied pineapple; ⅓ cup coarsely chopped candied orange peel; 1 cup finely cut seedless raisins; 2½ tablespoons rum extract; 2 cups sifted flour; 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; ½ teaspoon soda; ¼ teaspoon salt; ½ cup butter or other shortening; ¾ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed; 1 egg, well beaten; 3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted; 1 cup milk.

Combine cherries, pineapple, orange peel, raisins, and flavoring. Let stand in tightly covered jar 24 hours, stirring fruit occasionally to distribute flavoring.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together thoroughly. Add egg and chocolate, beating until smooth. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating well after each addition. Fold in fruit mixture. Turn into one 2-quart or two 1-quart molds. Cover tightly and steam 2½ to 3½ hours, depending on size of mold. Serve hot with your favorite sauce.

GEOLOGISTS SEEK TRACES OF OIL DEPOSITS

A group of geologists, working for a Texas oil research company, have been making a survey in the vicinity of Butler for the past several weeks, in the hope of finding some mineral deposits.

The group making the survey have completed surveys in LaGrange and Steuben counties the past summer, and expect to have their survey completed here in the near future. The results of these surveys are not made public, but if any satisfactory findings are made, the reports will be offered for sale to oil prospectors and developers.

The group making the survey employs several trucks in the work. As a rule they follow the public highways. The first group determines the spot where the test is to be made, by measurement. The second group drills a hole in the ground and a sample of the earth is sent to the head office in Texas where laboratory tests determine the possibility of finding oil. An accurate chart of the territory tested is kept and should a sample show signs of an oil deposit, they can tell exactly from which spot the sample was taken. Those conducting the actual survey, do not get a report on the findings from the home office, and of course would not dare to report it if they did. It is said that this is the manner in which the new oil fields around Dorr and Holland, Michigan were found.

Oil companies have long desired to find oil in paying quantities in this section of the country, inasmuch as it is so far from oil producing territories, and the cost of getting the product here is an ever mounting problem.

After satisfactory oil deposits had been found in Michigan, the first well was not drilled until ten years later, or until all the land in the section had been leased.

Many rumors and wild stories have been making the rounds because those making the survey refused to tell of their work, and because of the national defense program. Current stories were that the territory was being surveyed for an ordinance proving ground, ammunition dump, artillery range, airplane bombing range, and other defense expansions.

A number of years ago a gas well was drilled in the northeast part of the city, on the site of the new high school athletic field. A small amount of gas was found and was used by several homes in the immediate vicinity for a short time, until it gave out. This is the only such attempt made in the immediate vicinity of Butler.

Several wells have been drilled in the vicinity of Ashley the past few years and altho oil was found, it was not in sufficient quantities to pay for the pumping. The first well, a mile west of Ashley was blown and capped about twelve years ago. The second well, about a mile east of the town, was never completed because of lack of funds and the unwillingness of the stockholders to "sink" any more money in the venture. In both instances the drillers claimed the rock formation showed signs of "black gold." These Ashley wells are the only attempt made to find oil in DeKalb County in recent years.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT ST. JOE

There will be a Union Thanksgiving Service held on Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at 7:30 in the St. Joe Church of Christ. The High School, the Lutheran Church, the St. Joe and Coburn Corners Churches of Christ participating. There is being planned a very worthwhile and interesting program.

This union service is being planned with the definite idea in mind of showing our thankfulness to God for our blessings by helping those who are in need. There will be a special offering taken for China Relief. Why an offering for China relief? Because the suffering in China is greater than that of all the other war-torn countries put together. The struggle has lasted three times as long, the casualties have been much more numerous and there are far fewer hospitals to serve the wounded. More cities have been burned and the number of refugees has reached an appalling total of at least forty-five million. China is becoming an aggressive nation. A great rebirth is taking place in China, and constructive measures are going on, which will enable China to make rapid progress once the war is over.

Not only is China beginning to make advance in the economic world but also in the religious world. It is said by missionaries that China is much more receptable to the Gospel of Jesus Christ now than ever before. With a leader like Generalissimo Chiank Kai-shek and a christian wife, and the special work that is being done by the churches in helping to relieve the suffering we can expect to see great advances in the Kingdom of God.

Since all the churches have united in an effort through their misson stations, hospitals and missionaries to help relieve the suffering of those who have been unduly punished and are suffering such hardships, we in America should unite our forces in helping such a worthy cause.

There are similar services being held all over the county. Consult your paper for the place, time and date and attend one of them.

VISITS ST. JOE AFTER 44 YEARS

Mrs. George A. Barton, of St. Paul, Minn., and sister, Mrs. Wm. De Larue, of White Bear Lake, Minn., are here guests in the F. R. Bowman home and calling on their relatives, the Leightys and the Thayers, many of whom they had never seen. Perhaps many of our readers in St. Joe might well remember about 44 years ago that Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Bowman were visited during one summer by a young lady by the name of Catherine Riley. Her grandmother was Catherine Leighty, who was married to George Thayer. Miss Riley, now Mrs. Barton, had never made a visit to St. Joe during these years, and the two ladies are thoroughly enjoying this short stay in the Bowman home. They went to the Chas. Thayer home at Hicksville Wednesday, where they will leave by B. & O. for their return home.

Dies at South Bend

Guy Walker, 57, son of Mrs. J. F. Walker, of South Bend, and a former St. Joe resident by birth, died in a South Bend hospital Monday forenoon following an operation of about ten days. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at South Bend. Mrs. J. C. Hull and F. B. Leighty and wife will be attending from St. Joe, together with Auburn, Fort Wayne and Hicksville relatives. Mr. Walker was an employe of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Company and supervised special work for the company all over the Indiana and Michigan territory served by this company. Besides his mother, he leaves his wife, one brother and four sons and four daughters.

CLUB MEMBERS ENJOY HALLOWEEN PARTY

The ladies of the Culture Club and their husbands spent an evening of fun at Alton Park, where ghosts and goblins held full sway, and pointed scrawny fingers to the place where roasted weiner sandwiches with all their trimmings and toasted marshmallows, potato chips, doughnuts and cider were being served at the out door oven.

Three witches whispered in low, mournful tones that there were treasures to be found round about. The group first to bring in their sack of treasures were to receive a prize.

The ghosts then invited all inside the building where a nice warm fire was brightly burning. Jack o' lanterns and low lights made spooky shadows. The ghosts were then silent and the committee continued by leading a "get together" song. Then the gentlemen, balancing themselves on a broomstick, swept the cobwebs from the ghosts of Paul Carpenter and Willard Hurni.

"Tagging the cat tail" was the next game. Then "The Moon, the Moon," "Indians and Traders" came next. Then "Harvesting Beans" and ghost stories with several shrill shrieks which seemed to come from everywhere. There were a few chosen words from the president. Some one started singing a song, everybody joined in singing all the songs they could think of.

After the cider was gone and the candles burned low, they all departed to their homes, after bidding the committees Mrs. Lyon, Mrs. Schondelmayer, Mrs. E. Jenkins, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Hurni and Mrs. Wineland a good, good night.

THE RECEIPT FOR TRUE RICHES

I don't mean how much money you have in the bank or how much your real estate is worth—there are other riches more valuable than these. Every man and woman may be rich right now, today, in the things that really count.

"You are richer today than you were yesterday if you have laughed often, given something, forgiven even more, made a new friend, or made stepping-stones of stumbling blocks; if you have thought more in terms of "thyself" than "myself," or if you have managed to be cheerful even if you were weary. You are richer tonight than you were this morning if you have taken time to trace the handiwork of God in the commonplace things of life, or if you have learned to count out things that really don't count, or if you have been a little blinder to the faults of friend and foe. You are richer if a little child has smiled at you, and a stray dog has licked your hand, or if you have looked for the best in others and have given others the best in you.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the quartet, the ladies who prepared the dinner, the flower girls, Rev. Coburn and Rev. Messemer.—Alvy Perry, and Children.

"HERE RESTS IN HONORED GLORY
AN AMERICAN SOLDIER KNOWN BUT TO GOD" HERE RESTS IN HONORED GLORY
AN AMERICAN SOLDIER
KNOWN BUT TO GOD

A HUSH comes over the land . . . the clock strikes eleven! Traffic halts, wheels stop, work ceases. Men, women and children throughout America face the East. A bugle blows. Taps . . . for America's sons who made the supreme sacrifice on the battlefields of freedom.

With bowed heads we recall another November 11th when the last shot was fired in France. We pay tribute to the Unknown Soldier who sleeps in Arlington cemetery, and to the unnumbered thousands of our sons and big brothers who sleep, not in the glory of Arlington, but in the greater glory of autumn, on wooded slope or in sunny field, beneath the quiet stars.

> "On fame's eternal camping ground their silent tents are spread,
> And glory guards with solemn round the bivouac of the dead."

Amid the imploring silence of this solemn hour comes the realization that the flower of America's manhood died not in vain, though the world is once more engulfed in the throes of war. They gave reality to the word, freedom. They gave us a rich heritage —to hold high the torch of liberty. The spark inherited from the legions of the fallen, who died in manhood's morning on the grand highway of freedom still glows in all American hearts today!

It doesn't seem to matter how serious becomes the international situation, you still find women wearing those silly hats.

It's really becoming quite a problem to find anything at the dime store that doesn't cost you more than a dime.

There isn't a great change in conversation. It is now: "Is it cold enough for you?"

In The Name of Education

November 9-15 is heralded as National Education Week and is to be observed in all the land. All of us are affected by what educational advantages are offered in this country. It reflects upon us since it developes material that becomes the foundation of the principles of our way of life. Those parents in the Tri-Township who have children in schools at the present, should especially co-operate with the institutions to bring parents, teachers and students closer together on a basis of respect and understanding. A teacher will appreciate you coming to her with problems dealing with your child and she will give her help to work out the difficulty with you. There is one particular responsibility that a parent owes a teacher, that of visiting the school to see what work they are doing there. Show that you are interested in their system, bring outside help and ideas that make it easier for education to take effect. Don't forget that this school is your child's environment and here is where he works and plays with his fellows for a number of years. A child takes more interest if his parents are interested. Do keep abreast with what the school is doing for it is not wise nor safe to have the school program beyond the understanding of the parents. You keep informed and exhibit concern and you will bring your child not only much closer to his school and educational problems, but you bring the child closer to you in the home.

And So November

A pile of leaves and a line of naked trees, points to approaching winter. Busily you rake and pile the brush either to burn or pile around the shrubbery for protection from winter's blast. They skip and prance about, these elusive oak and chestnut, poplar and maple leaves, defying the rake to catch them as they crackle and sweep across the lawn. Down the road the gardner carefully unwraps the new bulbs or brings up from the cellar those old ones he stored there since last spring. Remember the beauty of his Early Darwins that nodded their heads so gracefully on their slender stems? He stoops to plant deep the Breeder tulips and shoos aside that inquisitive squirrel which becomes so meddlesome and persistent around the autumn time. Busy little creatures scurrying about making ready for the months ahead. The planter digs into the soil to place that hyacinth and daffodil to give them rest under a blanket of snow before awakening you to spring's beauty after many weeks of dreary days. Bustling November when birds who have waited until the last moment before taking off to the southlands, chirp about the eaves and scratch around the clump of marigolds that stand in the garden defying the cool nights, a golden glory soon to add to the rubbish pile as their blossoms die. Halt at the arbor to pick a bunch of those purple clusters of fragrance and flavor. Soon their brothers become velvety jelly to line the fruit storage shelf. Rake and leaf and bonfire, bulbs, squirrels and grapes, truly't is November.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

It was on the twenty-seventh of last May that the President declared that a national emergency existed, and called upon all good citizens to aid in speeding up national defense preparations. Since that date, there have been three seizures of industrial plants in which the spirit of the Executive order was not being carried out. In one instance, at Kearney, New Jersey, army aid was unnecessary. A California case called for more drastic handling. The Bendix, N. J. matter presented a peculiar aspect. The non-strikers struck because the strikers were to be taken back, the result being that the original strikers welcomed the taking over of the plant by the government.

The country was startled schocked when it learned that Mr. Lewis intended to call a strike, defense or no defense. There was, however, a reaction along a different line, namely, that "there ought to be a law." Editorial comment is marked by a similarity of opinion, at least along broad lines. It is said that Congress has talked a great deal, but has failed to saw wood in the form of appropriate legislation. The Wagner Act needs an overhauling, and a law which makes for the control of wages is needed. In some or all of those plans, the remedy is alleged to reside.

A bill under consideration by Congress and intended to ward off inflation, provides for a ceiling limit on prices in connection with selected commodities. The House committee having the measure in charge voted down an amendment making the limit applicable to all goods. What the House as a whole would do if given an opportunity, is a matter of conjecture; but a three-to-one turn-down in committee gave general price fixing a hard blow in the first round.

In the matter of mere defense, Russia is doing better than was expected, but to say the least, there is no certainty at this date that Hitler ultimately will be expelled. With Russia out of the running, Japan would have no powerful neighbor to keep on eye on her. The United States has reasons other than an aspiration to put down Hitler, for desiring Russian success in the present conflict. With Russia sudbued, the task of preventing the Pacific from becoming a Nipponese ocean would rest, in practical entirety, on American shoulders.

Mr. Lindbergh and his associates continue to carry on, along a line which is too well known to need identification. There is nothing essentially immoral in arguing against war, either generally or in specific instances: yet the feeling is widespread that Mr. Lindbergh like Mr. Lewis, is out of step. The Colonel is quoted as saying that there is no danger to this nation from without, the only danger being from within. As Horace Greeley was wont to remark: "This is important if true." If the United States has nothing to fear from those outside its borders, the land certainly is in a condition of security for which history furnishes no parallel.

Without going into details, and with no intimation that he had established a precedent, the Secretary of the Navy has released a statement about the shooting-up of the United States warship Kearny. It appears that there was not one Nazi submarine on hand, but many. Moreover, the Kearny had assisting company. The phrase "running battle" is used in print, though without clarity as to whether or not Secretary Knox expressed himself in precisely that way. The sinking of the Reuben James forms still more recent news. It may be assumed that the government did not deliberately make mountains out of molehills, and it looks as though we were in the war already. If that is the case, nothing remains but to make the very best out of an unfortunate situation.

Some time ago, Mr. Churchill said that the people of this country must be prepared to endure sacrifices. It now appears that the British think that we are too loose-mouthed about defense and kindred affairs. It is hard to please everybody, and perhaps England should be thankful for past and present benefits and let it go at that. Along with a feeling of goodwill toward England there goes the sentiment that there is virtue in keeping one's nose out other folks' business.

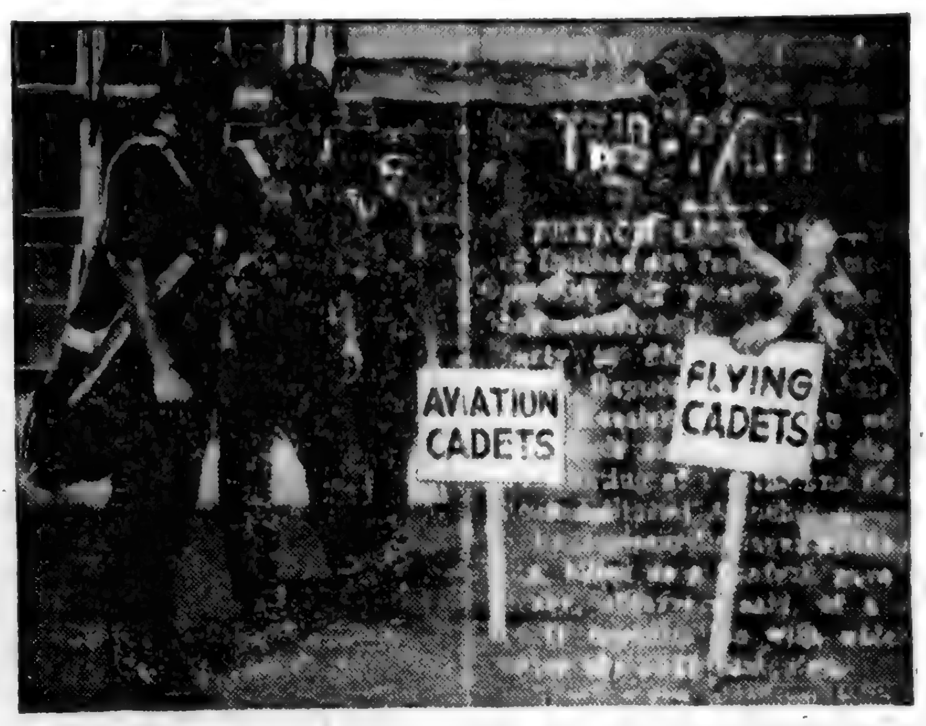
What's in a Name?



The picked young men who will one day fly Uncle Sam's military airplanes woke up one morning recently to find themselves called "Aviation Cadets" instead of "Flying Cadets," by War Department order. It made little difference to them. They changed a few signs around, as the group above is doing, then went right on plugging for their "Wings" and commissions in the Air Corps.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

It is significant that the most aggressive opposition to Winston Churchill in England has developed from his refusal to open a new front in Europe. The demand for this has largely come from Labor M. P.'s, but they have been given the support of a number of Conservatives and Liberals. The feeling is growing in many quarters that Hitler's Russian campaign has, for the first time, sufficiently diverted his energies and resources so that it may be possible to carry the war to Germany.

The military problems involved in this are enormous, and no layman is in a position to discuss them. There is, however, a problem of morale involved which is of the utmost importance. Unrest in the nations which Hitler has occupied is obviously growing. The horrible toll of executions in occupied France is evidence of that—Hitler's henchmen aren't killing French citizens for fun, but because they endanger the purposes and policies of the Reich. So it is argued that if the Allies could start an aggressive military campaign against Hitler on the continent, the subjugated peoples would be immensely encouraged, and would increase the extent and scope of their opposition.

There is little doubt but what that argument has validity. If, for instance, British troops could effect a landing on French soil and push the Germans back, the democratic world would take it as a miraculous tonic. But it is apparent that Mr. Churchill and his high command, even though they realize this, believe that the time is not right. And here again, a morale as well as a military problem is involved.

The hard truth is that England has had nothing but failure in her land operations against Germany during this war. Her navy and air force have done wonders. Her infantry and her artillery and her mechanized divisions, on the other hand, have been completely unable to cope with their German enemies. This is no criticism of the courage or resolve of Tommy Atkins. Kipling's "Thin red line of 'eroes" still remains. But Britain simply hasn't the equipment and we haven't been able to deliver it to her in sufficient quantity. The German army, whether we like it or not is still the best in the world.

Englands debacles at Dunkirk and in Crete and Norway tell the story. There soldiers did all and more than could be expected of them. But a man with a gun in his hand is no match for a tank. A trooper with a few months of training can't equal a ruthless superbly-trained soldier of the Reichswehr with seven or more years of intensive military development behind him. The finest British pilot can't last long in a sky which holds 20 Luftwaffe planes for each one of the R. A. F.

Mr. Churchill's much criticized policy is thus easy to understand. He is apparently conserving all the military resources England can obtain. As he said some time ago, the difficulties Hitler is experiencing in the Russian campaign provide no guarantee that Germany will not attempt a major invasion of the British Isles before long. England is sending planes and tanks to Russia. Mr. Churchill and his advisors know that the British public must not be unnecessarily subjected to the morale-damaging effects which follows a defeat.

On top of that, England has a big job to do in Africa. Here Hitler is weakest. The Italian troops in Africa have proven themselves easily vincible. And no man can rule the world, as German militarists have written for generations, unless he first rules Africa. General Wavell, ablest of the British commanders is in charge in the East. And rumor has it that the British war office, which is headed by aggressive, Nazi-hating Anthony Eden, is planning a surprise move in Africa, in conjunction with the De Gaulle Free French forces.

In the meantime, the Allies are encouraged by the terrible losses Hitler is taking in Russia. Even if you discount Soviet claims of killed, wounded and captured to the minimum, it is apparent that many of the finest Nazi troops have died in the endless spaces of the U. S. S. R. The hope remains that the news of this will eventually filter home, despite Herr Goebbels' propaganda and the work of the Gestapo terrorists. There is certainly no reason now for believing that the German civilian population will revolt. But a civilian population which is disillusioned and without enthusiasm is of little service to the kind of military machine Hitler must obtain. Those who argue that this war can be won without the dispatch of millions of Allied troops to Europe, base their argument on the supposition that in time the German people will get a bellyfull and will simply give up. That happened in World War I. But there is no guarantee that it will happen this time.

Washington reports indicate that there will be major shakeups in the defense bureaus. It is said that the President is dissatisfied with results, is growing sensitive to growing criticism, and wants action.

In the meantime, the figures show improvement in arms production in many fields. Best results are being obtained in aircraft manufacture. Output of tanks is being materially stepped-up. But we haven't yet reached the peaks forecast a year ago by a long way, and uncontrolled strikes continue to disorganize and delay production.

In preparation for the concert, the group met with other DeKalb Co. singers for rehearsals uner the direction of Miss Mary Brandon. Five hours practice on Thursday and two hours Friday morning with Mr. Tallman resulted in a program of music which was presented in a most commendable manner.

Armistice Day

We come to another November 11th as a free people, observing it in prayerful silence. There is no less reverence today than other years but perhaps more scepticism with regard to peace, progress and achieving to live together as civilized people. The symbol of Armistice Day is handed to another generation and with it there might come hope out of despair. If the international consciences would function for the best interests of all races then indeed would Armistice Day be a memory of the price we paid for ignorance in the dark ages. We should pause to reflect upon the errors of mankind, that made it necessary to observe such a memorial. Some feel that hate has been the larger factor in provoking war but perhaps that hate has been caused by a lack of understanding each other. Maybe we have been so wrapped up in our mortal lives that we have forgotten the immortality of nations. There has always been a hope for some means at arriving at peaceful settlements rather than the killing off of innocents. There are many ways of correcting children who won't mind and a wise parent uses strategy rather than force and the result is perhaps more effective than a bodily punishment.

We conisder that we have progressed in almost all lines of endeavor, but in this one of living together as brothers finds us at a standstill. So far we have only HOPED for a solution. Would peace parleys, pacts, leagues and allied powers work if we were to throw aside our ignorance and start to revive our understanding and perhaps make peace a common cause. Do we progress in all lines except conscience?

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

Explains Making of Apple Juice

Apples not quite good enough for canning may be made into juice, states Miss Mary Lenore Moore, home demonstration agent. While this juice cannot replace tomato or orange juice in vitamin C content, the addition of a small amount of lemon juice will make up for this deficiency.

Apples for juice need be cut into small pieces or put thru a food grinder, explains Miss Moore. Add a small amount of water and heat to just under the boiling point. Run the hot juice through a cheese cloth bag. Sweeten to taste. Reheat to the boiling point and pour into hot sterilized jars. Seal and process in a water bath for 10 to 15 minutes.

Best results are obtained by working in small quantities, using a minimum of water and heating below the boiling point. Less exposure to the air improves the flavor.

Serve cold.

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, NOV. 13, 1941 NUMBER 46

L. L. C. MEETS WITH MRS. O. K. SHULL

The Ladies Literary Club of St. Joe, Indiana, met at the country home of Mrs. O. K. Shull, Wednesday evening, Nov. 5. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, and the Collect was read by Mrs. C. C. Woodcox. The president appointed Mrs. Allen Haller to act as critic in the absence of Mrs. Fred B. Leighty.

The lesson for the evening, taken from the Reader's Digest Books and entitled "How To Live On Twenty-Four Hours A Day," was presented by Mrs. Inez Hadsell. This little classic on the science of self-discipline has made thousands of converts, and old friends are always glad to meet it again. Written early in the career of Arnold Bennett, it remains one of his best-known works, and offers a miniature of the excellently disciplined method by which the distinguished English author governed his own life with such evident success.

The special work, "A Travelogue of the Southwest," was given by Mrs. Fred Hart. She told of the various things they had seen along the way and the cities they visited. She gave out folders of the important places to various members, which were read to the club. Mrs. Carl Carpenter gave a very interesting talk on "South America."

The secretary's report was read and accepted. The club voted to join the Red Cross for the coming year. After all business was taken care of the meeting was adjourned to meet with Mrs, Carl Perkins, Wednesday evening, Nov. 19. This being Bible Evening, each member is requested to give a verse of scripture as a response to roll call.

There were seventeen active members present. The hostess served chicken sandwiches, salad, pickles and coffee.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT ST. JOE

There will be a Union Thanksgiving Service held on Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at 7:30 in the St. Joe Church of Christ. The High School, the Lutheran Church, the St. Joe and Coburn Corners Churches of Christ participating. There is being planned a very worthwhile and interesting program.

This union service is being planned with the definite idea in mind of showing our thankfulness to God for our blessings by helping those who are in need. There will be a special offering taken for China Relief. Why an offering for China relief? Because the suffering in China is greater than that of all the other war-torn countries put together. The struggle has lasted three times as long, the casualties have been much more numerous and there are far fewer hospitals to serve the wounded. More cities have been burned and the number of refugees has reached an appalling total of at least forty-five million. China is becoming an aggressive nation. A great rebirth is taking place in China, and constructive measures are going on, which will enable China to make rapid progress once the war is over.

Not only is China beginning to make advance in the economic world but also in the religious world. It is said by missionaries that China is much more receptable to the Gospel of Jesus Christ now than ever before. With a leader like Generalissimo Chiank Kai-shek and a christian wife, and the special work that is being done by the churches in helping to relieve the suffering we can expect to see great advances in the Kingdom of God.

Since all the churches have united in an effort through their misson stations, hospitals and missionaries to help relieve the suffering of those who have been unduly punished and are suffering such hardships, we in America should unite our forces in helping such a worthy cause.

There are similar services being held all over the county. Consult your paper for the place, time and date and attend one of them.

COMMISSIONERS LET CONTRACT FOR ELEVATOR

C. H. Garver, of Garrett, Friday was awarded the concontract for the installation of an elevator in the court house in Auburn.

The bid submitted by Mr. Garver was for a Kimball elevator at a cost of $5,334, with an additional charge of $135 for a dial indicator. The county commissioners had the indicator included in the contract.

Two other bids submitted follow: V. M. Nusbaum & Co., Ft. Wayne, for a Warner elevator, $5,755, plus $175 for a dial indicator; and Otis Elevator Co., Cincinnati, O., for an Otis elevator, $6,758.

No bids were received for the preparation of the shaft and the time of installation of the elevator is therefore uncertain.

The elevator will be located in the southeast section of the court house and the plans were prepared by A. M. Strauss of Ft. Wayne. The elevator will be of modern type, with a cab 5x7 feet in dimensions, and it may be operated automatically or manually. The commissioners will employ an operator to be on duty during the usual hours of business in the court house. The doors of the cab will operate automatically. Metal doors will be placed at the lobby entrances on each floor of the court house. Preparations will be made to run the elevator to the basement, although the basement is not yet in use.

Upon request of the county commissioners, the county council last September made an appropriation of $6,000 for an elevator.

PUNCH BOARDS ARE OUT AT AUBURN

Mayor Lodie Potter, of Auburn, issued an order last week that all punch boards within the city were to be removed from all stores.

Mayor Potter expressed alarm over such juvenile delinquency, and he declared that such devices as punch boards only lure youngsters on to misdeeds. He criticized severely store keepers who allow school children to play punch boards.

The order came following the arrest Thursday night of three Auburn school boys, ranging from 14 to 15 years of age. The boys were trapped about 9 P. M. by a New York Central Railroad detective as they were leaving the New York Central freight office in Auburn. Confessing to previous robberies at the office, the boys told police they spent most of the money on punch boards in Auburn.

BOTH DATES CELEBRATED BY STATES

President Roosevelt's annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation, expected soon, will designate Thursday, November 20, for this year's observance. But beginning with 1942, the president has stated the traditional fourth Thursday in November will be proclaimed by him.

The week-earlier observance adopting to bring about longer shopping period between Thanksgiging and the Christmas holidays, was found not to have produced anticipated results.

Legislation has passed the house to make the fourth Thursday of November hereafter a legal holiday known as Thanksgiving Day.

Executives of two-thirds of the states and the District of Columbia have indicated their intention of proclaiming the president's Nov. 20 date as their state's Thanksgiving Day this year. In 16 other states the governors have declared they will stick to the traditional date, which this year is November 27.

HUNTING SEASON NOW IN FULL FORCE

An army of Hoosier sportsmen moved into the fields Monday celebrating the opening of the hunting season with a barrage of rifle and shotgun fire in every direction that would have routed a panzer attack. It was estimated that more than ten thousand hunters were in the field and reinforcements moved in Tuesday when Armistice Day was observed as a holiday.

Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, renewed his appeal for caution in the handling of firearms to prevent hunting accidents and fatalities and urged observance of the laws requiring permission to enter upon lands of another, requiring a hunting license, and establishing bag limits.

Monday was the first day of the open season for taking rabbits, quail, pheasants and Hungarian partridge. Reports during the Summer and Autumn indicated that rabbits and game birds were generally plentiful with every prospect for a successful hunting season.

The hunters are limited to a maximum of two pheasants (one of which may be a hen) ten quail, five Hungarian partridge and ten rabbits per day. They may possess not to exceed 20 rabbits, four pheasants (not more than two of which are hens,) 10 partridge after two days hunting and 30 quail after three days hunting. The pheasant season ends Wednesday, Nov. 19; the quail and Hungarian partridge seasons end Saturday, Dec. 20, and the rabbit season ends Jan. 10, 1942.

Additional interest was added to the hunting season by the arrival of large duck flights from the North. The open season on these migratory waterfowl will close Saturday, Dec. 13.

SPEAKS INDIANA SENTIMENT

Anti-war sentiment in Indiana is "almost unanimous" Sen. Raymond E. Willis told the senate at Washington Friday in a speech opposing revision of the neutrality act. "It is not because the people there are not willing to make any sacrifice tp protect our nation's honor or security," he continued. "Indiana has always filled its devotion to our country's safety. There can be no challenge to the patriotism and loyalty of its people. They do not want to go to war because they know democracy was never advanced by war. They know that most democracies have perished because of their entrance into war. The people of Indiana are convinced that entrance into this war would be the death knell of the republic."

BILLOW

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Billow, 77, wife of John Billow, and mother of Clifford Billow, of St. Joe, died suddenly of hardening of the arteries Thursday at 9:30 P. M. at her home, 2 miles west and one quarter mile north of Ney, Ohio.

Mrs. Billow, the former Mary Elizabeth Nahr, was born in Sandusky County. Mr. and Mrs. Billow moved to the farm where Mrs. Billow died in 1898 and had been there ever since.

She is survived by her husband; seven sons, George F., Cadillac, Mich., William Fremont, Harry H., Bryan, John F., Arthur J. and Carl, all of Ney, and Clifford, of St. Joe, Ind.; two daughters, Mrs. Nora Wherlidge, Middlebury, Ind., and Mrs. Lottie Beattie, Edgerton; 48 grandchildren, and 19 great grandchildren.

THEFTS ARE ADMITTED IN DEKALB COUNTY

The theft of sheep from four DeKalb County farms, besides numerous farms in LaGrange and Allen counties, was cleared up by confessions made in the LaGrance County jail by Frank Reed, 18, and Albert Johnloz, 20, of LaGrange, and Robert E. Miller, 20, of Wolcottville and Ft. Wayne.

Deputy Sheriff Paul Miller, of DeKalb County made a trip to LaGrange Tuesday of last week and the youths admitted to him that they stole about 16 sheep from the farm of Ira Grogg in Butler township, 17 sheep from Floyd Rynearson in Richland township, 6 sheep from Chas. Furnish in Spencer township and 6 sheep from Raymond Rhodes in the same township.

The prisoners confessed that they had been raiding farms for the last several weeks. Reports of thefts were made to the sheriffs of the counties and they enlisted the aid of state police. Two state detectives joined in the search and the arrests followed the receipt of tips from livestock yards where the sheep had been sold.

The youths went into the fields at night and hauled the sheep away in an automobile.

Maurice Kline, of Newville township, reports the loss of 16 sheep from the Lela Northrup farm in Spencer township, although no admission to the theft has been secured from the boys.

A Litany of Thanksgiving

CAN we give thanks
In a world of crisis and confusion;
Misdirected, disintegrated, disillusioned;
Worn, torn, sad and suffering;
Foolish, fervid, felonious and fearful;
Can we give thanks?

FATHER, we thank Thee for Thy patience,
Sitting in silence, withholding Thy judgments,
Watching our willfulness, yet staying Thy wrath;
Grieved by our boastings, yet tenderly waiting;
Knowing our natures, yet the Friend who forgives us,
Father, we thank Thee.

FATHER, we thank Thee
For the dawn of life's true meaning.
For the courage to face what we once feared.
For our willingness to admit our social sinfulness and moral bankruptcy.
For our confession that we have acted insanely,
knowing the consequences.
For the prayer of the faithful for a new world pattern of peace.
Father, we thank Thee.

FATHER, we thank Thee
For hearts that love and understand.
For dreams that haunt us into action.
For a hope that makes life livable.
For a faith in eternal verities.
For the open road to service and victory.
Father, we thank Thee.

RAPID AMERICAN PROGRESS
A JOB IN ONE INDUSTRY CREATES JOBS IN OTHER INDUSTRIES.

AS THE STORY GOES

There is a tale told of His Satanic Majesty deciding to give up the fight and go out of business. As the fable goes, the devil hangs high the "FOR SALE" sign with the instruments of his power put upon the auction block. For a price you might purchase deceit, hatred, jealousy, malice and depression. The last named was the dearest for according to the devil it was his most useful weapon. He explained its value. When you get a man to admit defeat you can do almost anything you want with him! Though you are of the opinion that the devil never entertained the thought of going out of business, you will probably admit there is sound reasoning to the devil's argument about depression. Defeat comes to each of us when we feel there is nothing ahead, we have come to the end of a one-way street. But most men will find a way out, will not permit their thinking to be defeated and plan for a return bout for an opportunity to stage a comeback. And few but whom are strengthened for the next fight because of the loss of the previous one. It behooves us to recall the fable of the devil's sale when we become discouraged.

NEEDING A BREAK

There isn't anyone who hasn't welcomed the recent tidings that vital and decisive measures will be taken to protect the interest of the small business man in this defense industrial plan. May the proposal prosper and bear fruit. There has been the feeling that the present emergency has placed so much business in the hands of large business that before long the small business would be squeezed dry. There could be nothing to gain in smothering small business when the majority of us are 'the little people.' It is a grave problem and serious enough to call for drastic measures. In the pattern of trade the sound principal is to work from the little business man to the big one, as it is a growing up process after all. To consider big business as the whole keynote of the pattern is courting disaster and breeding a scab on the nose of national unity. Big and little business is necessary to each other and whatever steps can be taken to protect the small business is to promote a better feeling within the country.

LOOKING BETTER

Our health is picking up in spite of all the bad news they handed us when they examined our youth for the nation's army. Since we are listening to vitamin facts and considering taking bread less pasty white, our pork as not beneath the table's dignity, our foods plainer, we are getting satisfactory results and will continue to add health to the general welfare. We have learned that if eggs are beyond our pocketbook we can get this health quality from something else that will fit our purse. Vegetables are essential to body building and so St. Joe eats vegetables. Among the lot we can always find green and yellow ones that won't strain the budget bounds. Since we are looking more at muscles today, we are putting on the table those foods that build muscles.

THREAT TO THE PRESS

The greatest threat to our vaunted freedom of the press is not the possibility of censorship. Rather it is the imposition of unnecessary economic controls masquerading as steps in the national defense interest,

So far the threat has been directed at the advertising department. The Attorney General sent a questionnaire to many advertisers to find out how much and in what ways they spend money, and for what purpose. It has been proposed in Washington that brand names be eliminated, and that articles be sold as soap, candy, or what have you. This, of course, would virtually kill advertising. And without advertising support, the cost of a newspaper would be out of reach to most buyers.

There is a very general impression that advertising adds considerably to the retail price of goods. The fact is that when it has been intelligently used to increase the sale of articles in common use, it has resulted in improving the quality and lowering the price. Some interesting testimony on that phase of advertising was given before the House Judiciary Committee by W. S. Farish, president of Standard Oil Company (N. J.,) which spends millions each year in advertising. He told the Committee:

"Although the sums expended by some companies are large, it is easy to exaggerate the part of the customer's gasoline dollar which is spent for advertising. If all the advertising expenditures of the industry were charged to gasoline alone, it is probable that they would represent less than a quarter of a cent per gallon."

As a matter of fact, a large proportion of the advertising money has been applied to other products and services. Even if it were all covered in the price of gasoline, it would not mean much to a motorist who learned that on a purchase of ten gallons, he had contributed 2½c for advertising and 60c for state and Federal sales taxes.

THE WRITING ON THE WALL

The San Francisco News, a newspaper which has always been a strong supporter of organized labor, recently said this: "We wish to see organized labor endure and continue to grow. But we know that organized labor cannot endure if the things from which it derives its prosperity and security do not endure. If organized labor is to endure, the system of free enterprise must endure. Organized labor cannot flourish if business sickens and dies. Economic peace and economic security cannot be obtained by use of force which makes their existence possible.

"Organized labor has never had such power as it possesses today. But by that same token, organized labor never has had such responsibility as it is charged with today.... What happens to the labor movement, what happens to business and industry, what happens to the thousands and thousands of small wage earners who have no interest in the politics of the labor movement, will depend on whether labor leadership becomes statesmanlike, whether it recognizes and assumes its proper responsibilities, whether it wields its power with wisdom, or with recklessness and stupidity."

Organized labor should be solidly at the forefront of those who are today fighting the trend toward socialism—a trend, which if it continues, will mean the end of free enterprise, and the end of social and economic freedom for capital and labor alike. And organized labor, for its own selfish reasons alone, should take the lead in preventing strikes in this time of emergency and danger, and should, like industry, submit its grievances to arbitration.

The racketeers in the labor movement will destroy all gains made by labor. And the working man, not the fat-salaried labor leaders, will do the paying. Cannot labor see the writing on the wall?

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

In the days of the American Revolution, John Paul Jones was accustomed to turn up unexpectedly in the English channel with his scanty fleet of small vessels, create havoc, dodge pursuers, and get away. The appearance of submarines within sight of the Newfoundland coast indicates that the Atlantic can be crossed as easily one way as in an opposite direction. The proximity of German underwater craft to continental United States is disturbing.

It is true that slipping across a dozen submarines to the vicinity of Maine, for example, would be one thing, and the landing of an invading army at Charleston, S. C., likewise for example, would be quite another. Yet the fact that Nazi submarines are working along North American shores causes the average reader to wonder what Hitler really could do in the way of attack on the United States if, Europe having been subdued, he were free to concentrate all his efforts against this country. Sound judgment dictates that there should be no let-up on and to those who are keeping him busy on the other side of the ocean.

Rear Admiral Nelles, of the Canadian navy, is quoted as saying that if subs are operating in the vicinity of Newfoundland, they will soon be seen near Nova Scotia, and consequently close to our own territory. Making due allowance for the circumstance that Canada is not inclined to minimize the peril to which the United States is exposed, the incident served to speed up Congressional action on the Neutrality Act.

The flood gates of eloquence remained open for nearly two weeks, but there is now no more upstream water to go through them. It should be understood clearly that the remarks last-foregoing are not an assault on the good old American custom of letting everybody have his say. Although the Senate took its time, as it should have done, in passing upon so important a matter, the end now is known, and ships carrying aid to Britain and to Russia are to be armed. House action within a week is expected. There will be no immediate efforts to secure a repeal of the Neutrality Act as a whole.

Shakespeare has something to say about one woe treading on the heels of another. While the citizen is still figuring on how he can pay his 1941 taxes, and indeed before he knows what the sum-total of them will be, Secretary Morgenthau is grinding his scythe for the 1942 harvest, judging by the size of the expected crop, it would be more accurate, tho less poetical, to state that he is putting the combine in order. A levy approximating five billion dollars is being discussed on Capitol Hill, the Treasury holding its tongue as to the precise amount needed.

Allegedly, the Treasury would like to have income taxes increased, and deducted from the pay envelope, a system that would put much extra work on the employer, and be humiliating to the employe. After all, the laborer, soiled or white-collared, is worthy of his hire. The plan has too strong a flavor of the old and hated company store method, so distasteful to those who have studied it or suffered under its operation. As to farmers and others conducting a one-man business, they will be called upon to file several reports per year, with a proportionate tax remittance. An increase in old age payroll taxes, affecting both parties to the transaction, is proposed, and a tax may be held out at the source of wage-payment, to be turned over to the unemployment fund of the Social Security organization.

Relaxing a trifle, a woman who had a railroad ticket from New York to Chicago, started a meal in the diner, only to be told, before the repast was finised, that the car was to be cut off at the next station, and that she would have to get out. She refused to leave, and the train had to be held about a quarter of an hour. While so much is being done to uphold Democracy in other ways, it is pleasing to note that there is someone ready to champion the rights of the drinkers of coffee and the eaters of pie.

LICENSE REQUIRED FOR ALL HUNTING, FISHING

Attention was called today by Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, to provisions of the Indiana law requiring a license to take any species of wild bird or animal regardless of whether the bird or animal is classified as a game species.

Under this statue, a license is required to hunt, shoot, take or pursue or trap any wild bird or animal; making it necessary to have a license to hunt non-game species of birds and animals. The only exception is the owner of farmland who is a resident of the state, the spouse and children living with him may hunt, fish and trap on any land belonging to such owner without a license; and the tenant of farmland and the spouse and children living with him may hunt, fish and trap without a license on the farm only upon which he resides. The same provision applies to fishing, regardless of whether the fish taken are game or non-game species with the same exceptions as to licenses and an additional exception which exempts persons under eighteen years of age from having a license to fish in Indiana.

Tigers Win Twice

The St. Joe Tigers have started off their basketball season with a win over Ashley and a win over Metz. This speaks well for the team and coach and we believe it is an indication of a successful season.

On Wednesday night, Nov. 5 about 50 students along with a number of other fans made the trip by bus and car to Ashley for the Tigers first game of the season. Although the game was rather slow because of the number of fouls called, it was still an interesting one. The Tigers took the lead in the first quarter and held it till the end of the game, winning 42-30. The Cubs lost their first game 37-14. The summary of the game follows:

St. Joe

	G	F	T
Baker	1	0	2
Drake	6	0	12
Keeler	1	0	2
Reed	0	0	0
Moore	1	1	3
Fetters	5	0	10
Bleeks	2	4	8
Sechler	2	0	4

Ashley

	G	F	T
Shumaker	3	2	8
Ford	0	0	0
Shore	2	0	4
Ladd	1	1	3
Brooks	2	0	4
Bucks	1	2	4
Franze	0	1	1
Lepley	1	4	6

In our first home game the boys had a little trouble getting started against Metz, but during the second half they found their stride and defeated their opponents 40-24. The Cubs came through with their first win of the season 19-13. The line-up of the second team contained some of the new material from the Freshman and Sophomore classes, coached by Mr. Charles Sharp. With more practice they should make us a good team for the future. Summary of the game:

St. Joe

	G	F	T
Baker	1	2	3
Drake	5	0	10
Moore	0	1	1
Fetters	4	3	11
Freeburn	3	0	6
Bleeks	3	3	9

Metz

	G	F	T
Tappen	4	1	9
Miller	0	1	1
Gallutia	3	1	7
Davis	0	2	2
Rockey	2	1	5

This year our team has the size, speed and ability to forecast a successful season. If the team continues to play the same brand of ball and exhibit the teamwork they have in the past they should win the majority of their games.

Better plan to go with us to Waterloo Friday night and above all plan to attend the next home game on Wednesday Nov. 19 with Huntertown. We assure you of an evening of entertainment.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

This country is just beginning to encounter some of the biggest and most difficult problems that a military economy makes unavoidable.

The arms program is getting into stride. Our aircraft production is at the rate of about 25,000 planes a year. Production of tanks, machine guns, army trucks and other vital necessities, is increasing fast. The two-ocean navy will be completed far ahead of the original schedule. In the next two years, unless something unexpected occurs to change the picture, we should become the foremost military power on earth.

This doesn't mean that we are doing our theoretical utmost. We aren't. Labor troubles continue to mount and undermine production. Governmental red tape, delay and indecision still hamper industry. A few segments of industry have not been able to get away from the "business as usual" point of view. There is plenty of politics in the defense set-up and there is too much divided responsibility which makes for passing of the buck and general disorder. Even so, the gigantic American production machine is moving forward, and it is successfully making the immense change from a peace-time to a war-time economy.

To some, this change means profits and expanded opportunity. To others, the change means possible ruin. In that sorry category fall thousands of businesses which have not been given a place in the defense picture, and which are now unable to continue their normal, peace-time ways.

These are the businesses which are caught by priorities. No one without a high priority rating can now obtain the basic metals. No one can build a home costing more than $6,000. There are shortages of paper, cloth, rubber, chemicals, cleaning fluids—commodities which in normal periods are excessively abundant. And legions of businesses, employing millions of people, depend on such commodities as these for their very life.

Pessimists believe that this defense program may mean the virtual death of little business in this nation. That may be an excessively dark forecast. But the hard fact remains that no one has yet been able to formulate a program under which we may obtain maximum military production and at the same time preserve our business system more or less intact.

Washington, of course, has given attention to this small business problem. There has been an effort to farm out contracts, under a sub-contracting system, so that small and middle-sized concerns may obtain a fair share of the orders. So far, however, little progress has been made. The bulk of small businesses haven't the equipment or the personnel which are needed. When you want a tremendous job done, you naturally turn to the great mass-production industries which are geared to make the largest possible quantities of goods in the shortest possible period of time. The dollar-a-year men in the defense bureaus are taken from big industries. And so small business finds it more and more difficult to obtain the supplies it must have.

If this trend continues, it is apparent that a revolutionary change will take place in the American economy. Whether that change will be for the better or worse is a matter of argument. In the meantime, it is an ironical fact that hundreds of thousands of men are being thrown out of jobs during a time when there is a shortage of suitable labor—and thousands of businesses are in danger of being shut down during a time when consumer demand and consumer purchasing power for all manner of commodities, is extremely high. The figures indicate that there simply isn't sufficient supply of many basic materials to meet the war demand and the normal demand at the same time. And the smaller enterprises of the country, which aren't able to produce the tools of war, are taking the beating.

The Army is gradually weeding out incompetents among its officers. The way the wind blows was shown when a high-ranking general was summarily retired after the army he commanded did badly in war games.

Between World War I and two, the Army was given little attention, little money, little equipment. Officers advanced when and only when their superiors died or reached retirement age. This made for a bureaucratic sort of officer who simply bided his time, played internal politics, and learned nothing.

The American Army now seems to be taking a page out of the book of the German Army. Nazi commanders are mainly young. Promotion is made on merit, not seniority. Daring and resourcefulness are rewarded. In our Army, men with the right stuff on the ball are today being jumped in rank over the heads of their elders.

General Marshall, the Chief of Staff, has little use for sterile traditions. Under him is a group of Lieutenant Generals who demand results. So many an officer is going involuntarily into retirement or to an unimportant post because he doesn't have the capacities which modern war demands.

FUR TRAPPING BEGINS SATURDAY

Hoosier trappers will open their season Saturday, Nov. 15 expecting to harvest pelts with a value of three-quarters of a million dollars by Jan. 31, Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation, reports.

This year the taking of raccoon will be governed by daily bag and possession limits, a statute enacted during the 1941 session of the General Assembly making it unlawful for any person to take, catch or kill more than two raccoon per day or for any person, not at his legal residence to have more than two raccoon in possession.

Fur-bearing animals which may be taken during the statewide open season which begins Saturday and ends Jan. 31, 1942, include: raccoon, opossum, skunk, mink and muskrat. There is no bag or possession limits on opossum, skunk, mink or muskrat. Red and grey fox, which supply many of the pelts taken by Hoosier trappers, are not protected and may be taken at any time.

Establishment of the bag and possession limits on raccoon and the fixing of a uniform open season for the entire state instead of different seasons for the Northern and Southern zones, are the changes in trapping regulations since the past season. Other laws governing this activity require that the trapper not place any trap before noon on Nov. 14; that all persons have a license; that permission be obtained to trap on the lands of another; prohibit the taking of beaver or molesting beaver dams or houses; prohibit smoking, chopping or digging furbearing animals from dens; prohibit injuring or destroying muskrat houses; and make it illegal to wear or use tree or pole climbers to dislodge raccoon or to possess pole climbers in the fields or woods at night.

Muskrats furnish the bulk of the pelts taken in Indiana during the trapping season, being found in all parts of the state along streams, ditches and lakes. Opossum rank second, skunk third, and raccoon fourth in the number of furbearing animals taken.

SUGGESTS WAY TO DRY APPLES

Apples are too important a food in the diet to be allowed to go to waste. This is the tip from Miss Bernice Kohlmeyer, extension nutritionist of Purdue University.

They provide vitamins, minerals, bulk, and an alkaline reaction. Windfalls or "seconds" that cannot be stored or used immediately may be perserved for Winter use by drying and sulphuring she suggests. Autumn and Winter varieties of apples make the dried fruit because of their richer flavor and greater palatability of the dried fruit.

For drying, apples should be reasonable mature, Miss Kohlmeyer explains. Wash, peel, and core. Cut out any bruised spots, decay, or bits of discoloration. Cutting at right angles to the core, slice one-fourth inch thick or less. To prevent darkening, drop the slices in a brine of one tablespoon salt to one gallon of water. Drain well, place on trays or pans in thin layers. Drop in a slow oven with the door slightly open to permit movement of air. Examine from time to time and if necessary, stir with fingers to correct any tendency to unevenness of drying. The time for drying will depend upon the thickness of the fruit (three to six hours.) The apples are dry enough when broken ends show no signs of moisture when squeezed between the fingers. The fruit should feel leathery, not brittle.

When the slices are sufficiently dry, store in glass or pasteboard containers. Once a day for a week remove from container and pour back and forth to allow moist and dry particles to come in contact with each other and dry more evenly. To use, soak in warm water until swollen to original size. Cook as for fresh apples.

Sulphured Apples Recipe

One peck of quartered peeled apples, two tablespoons sulphur, and a barrel or box that is tightly constructed for sulphuring process.

Place an iron kettle or crock in the barrel or box with a small shovelful of coals from cobs in the bottom. Suspend the peeled and cored apples in a basket (or two ends of a flour sack) from a stick placed across the top of the barrel or box. Drop sulphur on the live coals and quickly cover the box with a heavy cloth. It must be close enough to hold in the fumes. (Do not inhale.) Sulphur apples for one to four hours. The fruit should appear light yellow all the way through. Firm apples may require longer. If the sulphur fumes have escaped too rapidly, repeat the process. Store in a sterilized container. If desired, the apples can be sulphured for one-half hour then dried. To use: Rinse three to four times in cold water. Cook as for fresh apples. They do not need to be soaked.

AUDITOR BID IN DELINQUENT PROPERTY

Owners of about 300 descriptions of real estate in DeKalb County are affected by a new law by which the county auditor is mandated to take title the first Monday in December to property for delinquent taxes.

Owners of properties that have been advertised for sale at least twice because of delinquent taxes are edvised by County Auditor Burley Ensley to make payment of their taxes to County Treasurer Harvey Phelps by Dec. 1 in order to retain title and avoid penalties. The law stipulates that after the auditor makes a record showing the county has taken over the real estate, a 5 percent penalty is added for the first six months and 7 percent thereafter. At the end of a year the county acquires incontestible title and proceeds to dispose of the property as other county-owned real estate is sold. This procedure is to have the real estate appraised by three persons and then sell it to the higsest bidder.

State officials have notified the auditor that the real estate is to be bid in by the auditor on the first Monday in December for the taxes, penalties and interest and advertising costs already charged on the books. Personal property taxes and improvement assessments are not to be attached.

PHEASANT SEASON OVER, CAN TAKE QUAIL, RABBITS, DUCKS

With the 1941 open season on pheasants ending November 19, Hoosier nimrods can still take quail, rabbits and ducks on their hunting trips.

The quail season will end December 20 along with the open season on Hungarian partridge; the open season on ducks and geese ends December 16, and the rabbit season continues until January 10. In addition hunters may take raccoon, opossum and other furbearing animals until January 31 when the trapping season closes.

Reports since the opening of the hunting season have indicated that Hoosiers are enjoying some of the best sport of recent years in spite of the unfavorable weather which prevailed over most of the state on the opening days. While many hunters were successful in getting their limit of two pheasants, others failed to bring down these popular game birds. Quail have been found plentiful in most areas with an unusually large number of convoys in the northern part of the state. Rabbits have been numerous in almost every area from which reports have been received.

Indiana's duck hunting season is continuing better than in past years due to the difference in flights which have occurred. During the early part of the duck season hunters were dependent upon birds which had nested and been reared in Indiana. Later flights of geese were reported and some fine hunting was enjoyed. The flights of mallard ducks which usually occur during the first two weeks of November have been delayed this year and will give hunters additional sport.

Pastor Stevenson Delivers Union Thanksgiving Sermon

The churches of St. Joe and Coburntown joined Tuesday evening in a Thanksgiving service at the Church of Christ in St. Joe, and a good sized audience was in attendance. The sermon delivered by Pastor Frank Stevenson of the Lutheran Church is reproduced as follows:

Sing praise to God with all your heart; always give thanks for everything to God our Father as followers of our Lord Jesus Christ, and subordinate yourselves to one another out of reverence to Christ.—Eph. 5: 19-20.

The essence of christian living is to walk daily in the will of God. Such walking will manifest itself in singing praises with all our hearts, giving thanks to God for all things and in doing good to all men.

In this Thanksgiving service we naturally place our emphasis on the second of these manifestations but giving thanks to God is inseparable from hymns of praise and deeds of service. As followers of our Lord Jesus Christ we ought always to give thanks to God for everything in which we now rejoice.

Others around us will celebrate this day with home-comings, sumptuous meals and faint praise but they can not truly give thanks for they neither admit their gifts nor acknowledge the donor of what they now enjoy.

We know that "every good and perfect gift is from above" and we have Jesus' example of how we ought to receive all things with thanks to God. Every day is thanksgiving day for us, but today we make a public demonstration of this practice as we unite our voices in praise to God and our hands in compassionate service.

Others ought, indeed, wish to join us in giving God credit and thanks for the blessings we share—such as family and friends, happiness and health, security and silver, government and God and the four freedoms. They sense the truth that they have fared far better than they deserved or dared to hope. But they are not here today nor will they elsewhere give expression to their cool appreciation. They will be too busy enjoying their good fortune to pause for one brief hour to show their thanks to God our Father.

One Thanksgiving day nineteen hundred and twelve years ago, ten lepers stood along the road outside a town in old Samaria. Theirs was a desperate and lonely lot until our Jesus came that way and restored their flesh, nine dashed away to show themselves unto the priest. They got what they wanted and they were off to make the most of it. But one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back and with a loud voice glorified God and fell down at Jesus feet, giving him thanks—(Luke 17: 15-16) he too received what he wanted most and he received it with thanksgiving and praise to God.

On another Thanksgiving day—over three thousand years ago—God spoke a word of caution to his children through Moses saying, "Beware lest when thou hast eaten and art full......thine heart be lifted up and thou forget the Lord thy God.—Deut. 8: 12-14.

"Count your many blessings, name them one by one, Count your many blessings, See what God hath done."

As followers of our Lord Jesus Christ we ought always to give thanks to God for everything even for good in disguise. When Paul says christians ought to give thanks for everything, he means to take life as it comes. He means that we should thank God not only for the things we asked for and received but also thank God for the alterations he made in our order.

How different is this admonition from the world's way of treating trouble. When adversity falls heavy upon the non-Christian, his heart becomes bitter, he's sure now there is no God. Because the sky is black he's sure the sun, the moon and the stars are conspiring against him. He was quite willing to receive good of the Lord but he cannot tolerate what seems to be evil. Can a farmer thank God for the rain which spoils his hay? even though it did save his corn. Can a young man thank God for a broken back which leaves him a permanent cripple? Can a young mother thank God for a child whose birth has numbered her days even though he is an excellent child?

What! Must a christian give thanks for being poor, crippled, persecuted, or burdened with unexpected responsibilities. Yes—give thanks always for all things as a follower of our Lord Jesus Christ. Give thanks for adversities themselves. It would do no good to cry or complain about "the injustice of it all" besides who knows what God intends to do with that adversity that we wouldn't let him do without it.

The branches of the true vine will always be pruned, —chastened—to make them more fruitful.

Necessity is the mother of invention and fighting to overcome unsought obstacles disciplines us for greater battles. Like little birds we must be forced from the nest before we learn to fly.

The threat of persecution will drive many from the church but we ought to give thanks that the church will thus be strengthened.

If it becomes your lot to die for your faith thank God you are counted worthy to be selected for the seed of the church of tomorrow. Jesus cried out, O daughter of Zion, weep not for me—but for yourself. The apostle could sing at midnight in prison and give thanks when lead away in chains. All christians ought so to do—could you?

As followers of our Lord Jesus Christ we ought always to give thanks to God for everything— especially for what we don't have. If you think you haven't anything in particular to be thankful for, you probably don't have anything so very much wrong either. Be thankful for that.

Tell me now, is there anyone here who would willingly trade places completely with anyone else. No, you see there is so much mixed through the other fellows that you don't want at all. We can always give thanks we're not in the other fellow's shoes no matter how much they shine.

It is easy to pray for health when we are sick but do we ever thank God we haven't been sick—that is, give thanks

May we have peace, but with honor and with liberty; may we never seek war, yet may we never surrender the American way of life; may we never give up the right as Americans to think, talk, and worship, each according to his own way, yet may we be always united, a nation indivisible, in the common defense; may we enjoy the richness of our land, yet be willing to endure the hardships of free men determined to keep a democratic society. Give us peace AND freedom.

THANKSGIVING 1941

Are there any of us to question this year why we should give thanks? For many thanksgivings of the past we have gathered around the dining board and accepted the prayer as a point of the general Thanksgiving Day procedure, bowing our heads we were lightly grateful and slightly complacent with the accepted blessings of which there were so many we took them for granted as a part of living.

This year the spirit of Thanksgiving surely finds a more penitent and more grateful land than in years past. It has taken adversity and hideous examples from disrupted countries to point out to us some of our most precious benefits that are blessings enough to bring forth prayers from the least prayerful today.

There is the special prayer for dear ones who are safe and a prayer for those who have gone into keeping where crying hearts sing. Utter the prayer for daily comforts that are simple things but small blessings as your radio and newspaper, scented soap and cleansing tissue, aromatic coffee and golden butter. A national prayer of hope for unity that we might live together as a tolerant nation encompassing great expanse of territory but with churches and schools one in their stressing of those beliefs of democracy left us by the early pioneers who blazed faith into every rail fence and every town meeting as they shared their struggle, lived together in compassion and kept their ideals free that you and I might sit down in open pews, sleep peacefully in family beds, read our favorite books and meet the sod with thankful hands that strength is given man to provide these things. What less should we be grateful for this year than last?

True, there is a sorry, saddened world outside our door whose plows no longer till, whose laughter no longer rings so loudly and freely for it is hard to be happy when cold and hunger and grief bow one down. You say that the rights we enjoy here were too dearly paid for by our ancestors who too cried out in suffering as those cry out today. We frown upon counting as a blessing our civic obligations but we should be grateful to help maintain a country that gives us the principles of daily living for which those early pioneers died to obtain. There is indeed a heavy tax on peace.

As the sun shines across your Thanksgiving table, or snow flakes make a soundless journey from sky to earth, or rain traces a pattern on the pane, a bird chirps near by and a leaf cascades past your vision, be thankful hat you have the appreciation for all of this simplicity. Whatever this coming year brings to us here in St. Joe, in rough or level travelling, there is still the present to count past blessings and rejoice in the peace of this day and hour.

It would be a waste of time and money to take a Gallup poll to find out if folks still thought you could get something for nothing.

At the present tax rate, who cares whether he is a financial success?

WHY SAVE?

A man in St. Joe remarked that he was spending all he makes, for what assurance can you have that your money will be worth anything in the future, when to him there isn't indication of much of an economical future. This attitude is found in other parts where individuals feel the same way. They speak of the debt burdened future generations, detrimental economic changes that face a hard-working people. But could all of this be enough reason to forget thrift, the living today to protect tomorrow, for looking ahead and planning for a hopeful future? We are a rising generation wise to the future in lines of power, of water, steel transportation and printing, science and the arts. They have ambition and are building for the years ahead. You can't tell them that there is nothing there, to spend all today since there is no tomorrow, at least no financial tomorrow. Thrift is a part of man's make-up and thrifty he will be regardless. He has faith in thrift.

PIPE AND BOWL

The Indians, a long time back, felt that smoking a pipe in communion was essential to keep the peace. Tobacco users, and they are numerous, have perhaps recently felt a forboding of losing this smoking pleasure. This would be to many a St. Joe man almost the worst that war could offer. The faithful smoker feels, as did the Indian, that to keep the peace the tobacco is necessary, to be on hand in lonliness, a solace to the sad, a sedative to the wakeful, a warming in the cold, a pat on the back of nerves! The man who gave up smoking because his doctor ordered it, sympathizes with those nations which have lost their cherished weed. The Frechman receives his allottment on certain days. The Britisher has been reduced to a paltry number, Germany uses a substitute in her national pipes and the Spaniard who liked his strong is lucky to get any at all now. Men say they can bear up any hardship with a pipe and bowl at hand. So if army needs reduce our supply, that is the fortune of war, but it would still be a struggle to lose tobacco gracefully and willingly for most smokers.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The President's address to the International Labor Organization which was attended by 250 delegates from some 35 nations, was not as direct and as aggressive as some had hoped. In language very similar to that he has used in the past, he again condemned what he termed the misguided few in the ranks of industry and labor "who place personal advantage above the welfare of the nation." Perhaps the most telling sentence was that in which he spoke of those who use their power "to force acceptance of their demands, rather than use the established machinery for the mediation of industrial disputes." That certainly fits a good many labor leaders these days.

A great many authorities are convinced that labor is this country's Number 1 defense problem now. Cases where industry has refused to cooperate with the government and accept the findings of arbitration boards, are few and minor. Cases where labor has taken that attitude are many and major. It is probably true that the bulk of workers are willing and eager to do their share and accept arbitration. But the fact remains that a number of labor leaders in key positions are working on the "whole hog or none" principle and seem to think nothing of virtually defying the government unless they get their own way. These leaders are in a position to call strikes which could bring the defense program to an absolute stop.

It should be kept in mind that the majority of recent important labor disputes have not concerned questions of wages, working hours or working conditions. In some instances they have simply been disputes between the two major labor unions—A. F. of L. carpenters, as a theoretical example, may refuse to handle lumber cut by C. I. O. workers, and vice versa. The strike which delayed production for some time in a factory making transmission for tanks, trucks and other military vehicles, was of that character.

Other strikes have revolved around the closed shop issue. There is no question but what the big labor leaders have as their goal a 100 per cent union shop—a shop where no man can hold a job unless he joins and pays dues to a union. Strikes have been called or threatened in plants which pay the union scale or better, simply because non-union men were employed along with union men. All available evidence indicates that the public is overwhelmingly opposed to a closed shop—the latest Gallop poll, for instance, showed that those queried were more than 70 per cent against it—but the union drive to achieve it goes steadily on.

Biggest labor trouble yet is the threatened strike of railroad operating brotherhoods. In this case a question of wages was involved. The union made demands for a 30 per cent blanket wage increase. That, according to the carriers, would have meant an additional wage cost of $900,000,000 a year. The labor spokesmen disputed this, and placed the cost at $600,000,000. Whichever figure is right, the financial cost to the carriers would be several times as great as their total net income in any late year. It would be substantially greater than their anticipated net profit for 1941, which is a year of abnormally high earnings due to the vast volume of defense shipments.

The President delayed the strike by submitting the controversy to an emergency arbitration board made up of men with solid reputations for fairness and integrity in labor mediation work. The board gave the unions an increase of 7½ per cent, which, it is estimated, would cost the railroads $270,000,000 a year. The carriers at once accepted the findings even though, their spokesmen said they regarded the increase as an excessively heavy burden on the lines. One day later the leaders of the five operating railway brotherhoods rejected the plan flatly, and called for a nation-wide railroad strike beginning December 5.

Anyone can imagine what such a striks would do to this country. Transportation is the very backbone of defense, to say nothing of normal trade and commerce. Steel, lumber, aluminum, food, wire, chemicals—all the thousand and one things which are needed for arms production—could not be moved. Key munitions, airplane and tank factories obtain their raw materials from other plants hundreds and thousands of miles distant. No other kind of carrier is in a position to transport more than a fractional part of this gigantic load. If the railroads stop, natioanl defense stops.

We will know soon what is to happen. No other strike of such magnitude and such infinite importance has been threatened. Here is a case where the leaders of 350,000 already highly paid key workers in an absolutely basic industry have refused a handsome wage increase made by an official board which no one could accuse of being "anti-labor." The labor issue moves swiftly on to the climatic stage.

Repeal of the principal provisions of the Neutrality Act—those forbidding American merchant ships to be armed and to enter belligerent waters—was certain from the beginning.

The shooting war has started. And now the important thing, as the President said, is who fires the last shot.

LOCAL NEWS OF INTEREST

They had better recognize little business, or he won't speak to them when they want to become friendly.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sechler and daughter, of Kendallville, spent Sunday here wtih their son, Robert Sechler and family.

Any job is interesting if you make it so—and that's how some of the world's greatest successes were born.—Your Life.

In observance of Thanksgiving Day, the district schools of DeKalb County will not be in session Thursday and Friday, Carl F. Stallman, county superintendent, reports. For the Christmas holidays, schools will be dismissed from Friday, Dec. 19, to Monday, Dec. 29.

H. M. VanLear, of Garrett, has been appointed in the DeKalb Circuit Court as administrater of the estate of the late Lockus Van Lear, who died October 19, leaving $200 in personal property and $750 in real estate. The only heir is the widow, Esther Van Lear. The administrator filed $500 bond, with S. D. Johnston as surety.

NEW LAW AFFECTS PUBLIC EMPLOYES

Nearly 300 DeKalb County public officers and employes are affected by a new law to which attention is being called by County Treasurer Harvey Phelps.

This new law provides that "It shall be the duty of all county officials, all township officials, all school town, school city, school township officials, all city and town officials on or before the first day of June and December of each year to furnish the county treasurer of their respective counties the names and addresses of all officers, deputies and employes in their employment as offcers, deputies, or employes of their respective subdivisions of government. Upon receipt of such names and addresses, the county treasurer shall search his records to ascertain if any person so certified to him is delinquent in the payment of his taxes as shown by the tax duplicates in his office.

The new law further provides that if after the county treasurer has made his checkup any public employe is found delinquent, he shall certify the same to the official paying the employe and that official shall proceed on each pay period to deduct ten per cent for all money due the employe in excess of $15 per week and remit the money to the county treasurer until such time as the delinquency is paid. It is also provided that any assignment the employe may make for the purpose of avoiding payment of taxes shall be illegal and void.

Mr. Phelps also calls attention to the new law that provides that persons must show both personal and poll tax receipts with their applications for any state license.

LABOR USES GUERILLA TACTICS

Unions in this country are using what can be described only as "guerilla tactics" to block and delay defense production.

That is the astonishing fact produced in an article in Business Week describing what has been going on in Gary, Ind., one of the nation's major steel centers.

Gary steel plants are working at record levels. Yet steel workers are idle. Steel men, says Business Week, "call it 'union unemployment.' " Yet steel companies, with their vast payrolls, are never sure how many men will be at work on a given day. If, for instance, half a dozen cranemen fail to come on the job, a thousand men in other departments must be sent home because steel cannot be moved. Not long ago, the failure of key workers to report was responsible for a loss of steel production sufficient to have built 2,000 medium tanks or 40 submarines. This is done in such a manner that the governmnt has no precedent for acting under existing laws.

This is all part of the drive of radical labor elements to dominate this country—its industries, its government, its people. It has become almost a commonplace for labor leaders, drunk with power, to defy the highest government officials, including the President of the United States. A few of these leaders are putting their own ruthless ambitions ahead of their country's safety.

Either Congress will pass legislation which will make sabotage of defense impossible, or we will have a system of labor dictatorship which will make Hitler chortle with glee.

FACING IT

With the advertising of various brands of goods used by the boys in the army, we noticed a gift suggestion recently that made us think back to 1912. What a long way we have come since man first performed the ritual of shaving by means of the straightedge. He felt then that this type of keen blade was a healthy cry from those dark ages when man used all manner of crude instruments to cut hair from his face. During 1912 a child could well wonder if he would ever be so skillful as daddy. Then the stropping and slap of blade on leather and the proceeding gliding of the thin edge over the face, slowed down as at the start of the World War the popularity of the safety razor set in due to the kits of the enlisted men containing this sort of razor. Since then the safety has been the stand-by. But advertising makes us wonder whether today's soldier boy isn't leaning toward the electric shaver, if he can afford this electric machine to mow 'em down. On the face of it we have covered much territory as we continue to live in this machine age, right here in St. Joe.

KEEP 'EM FLYING
U. S. ARMY

"KEEP 'EM FLYING———YES, KEEP ME FLYING TOO!" gobbles this popular national native symbol as he eyes the future with considerable trepidation, notwithstanding the embrace of glamorous Miss Beulah McKnight, well-known chantreuse of Columbus, Ohio. "Tom," a patriotic bird, has an all consuming desire to assist Army pilots, but preferably in some "ground unit!"

THANKSGIVING

In a world seemingly saturated with hate, with costs of living skyrocketing; sons, sweethearts and buddies in a mechanized army; wars and rumors of wars surrounding us, there is bound to be a certain hollow sound to the word THANKSGIVING. Yet we were just reminded of the oft-told tale of the philosopher who thought that his was the most unfortunate lot yet drawn by man. Things had gone so badly for him that he was walking the streets minus a pair of shoes. However he had only walked a block when he discovered a man minus a pair of legs. It was ever so.

All too many of us concentrate on our misfortunes and take our blessings for granted. We always manage to remember the rainy days but few of us recall how many days the sun smiled on us just last week, We painfully remember paying our income taxes but never give a second thought to the countless services rendered by our government.

All of us have reason to be concerned about the future. And yet, if we could have photographed the minds and hearts of men a century ago—two centuries ago—ten centurnes ago—we have a sneaking suspicion that the pictures would be hard to distinguish one from another. What could have been more uncertain than the future of those first celebrants of the Thanksgiving Feast—A new, frozen, unexplored, uncivilized continent was to be their home! Yet Thanksgiving to them was meaningful. Nary a trace of a hollow sound echoed along the barren shores of Plymouth.

So, this Thanksgiving Day, as the tender white slices of turkey are heaped on our plates, let's enjoy every mouthful and not fret because we had to pay seven cents a pound more than last year. Americans—and that means ALL of us—have a big job to do. Let's give thanks that we have the heart, the courage, and the resources with which the job CAN and WILL be done.

We must be doing something to be happy.

UNION THANKSGIVING

without knocking on wood as a foolish precaution. Indeed, we make our selves more susceptible to an ill by constantly fearing we will get it. Let's give thanks we're well and leave well enough alone.

It's easy to ask God for food when we are hungry but do we ever thank God we are hungry? One doesn't have to be an Epicurean to appreciate the taste of food, but what good is food if we're not hungry for it? How could we give thanks for turkey if we were never hungry.

We are far more negligent in thanking God than we are in asking for favors and blessings we want. Because we lack a few things we wanted we forget we got what we needed. We ought to take a lesson from the founders of our Thanksgiving Day—from the Indians who annually kept the day regardless of the harvest and from the Pilgrims who gave hearty thanks over clams and cold water. What do we have which we haven't received and from what have we been delivered because we deserved it? We don't have war, wo don't have floods and we are far from famine yet these are the common ills of our brethren.

There are a lot of things we can be thankful we don't have at all—Thank God we are neither rich nor poor. Thank God we still have enough unfinished business to keep us busy in this world. Thank God the burden of our sins was washed away. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so."

The pharisee stood proudly in the temple giving thanks that he was not as other men were extortioners, adulterers, and unjust men but let us humbly thank God we have been kept from temptation and delivered from evils which have broken other men.

As followers of our Lord Jesus Christ we ought to give thanks to God for nothing at all. To daily give thanks for everything to God will cultivate our gratitude until no circumstance will find us without thanksgiving in our hearts.

To daily give thanks for everything to God will give us a disposition like the whistling boy who couldn't tell you why he is so happy but he just is. That is the very best thanksgiving in all the world—a happy heart through every changing day.

Because we as christians have peace with God it is possible for us to be thankful for everything or for just nothing at all. We can sing hymns of praise when our hearts are grieved. We can be "as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things."—2 Cor. 6:10.

Let us then sing praise to God with all our hearts giving thanks for everything as followers of our Lord Jesus Christ—for evident blessings for good in disguise for things we don't have and for nothing at all, and subordinate ourselves to one another out of reverence to Him.

I have every reason to be thankful tonight. I have wife and child, health and home, food and clothing, radio and car, freedom of speech and peace with God and man—who could ask for anything more? And yet my heart is heavy and my joy suppressed for I have received bad news concerning my family. Yesterday one brother was drowned, another was blasted out of this world without warning, still another died of shock when they tried to amputate his leg. I had a sister, too. If she is still alive, she's trudging along some road made dusty by the tread of many feet. She has no home, she has no food. Her children have died one by one along the way. Her once round face so drawn, her eyes have a peculiar slant, but she's a christian even as you or I. All she has left this side of God is hope that help will come from me before she too has died. Some call her a Chinese woman. We've taught her she is a child of God. She's your sister, too.

Hear what the word of God saith: "Let brotherly love continue. Be not forgetful to entertain strangers for thereby some have entertained angels unawares. Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them, and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body." (Heb. 13: 1-3.) Hereby perceived we the love of God because he laid down his life for us we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. But who so hath the world's goods and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him.

Let us manifest our christian faith in singing praises with all our hearts, in giving thanks to God for all things but let us not forget to show it also in humbly doing good to all men out of reverence to Christ.

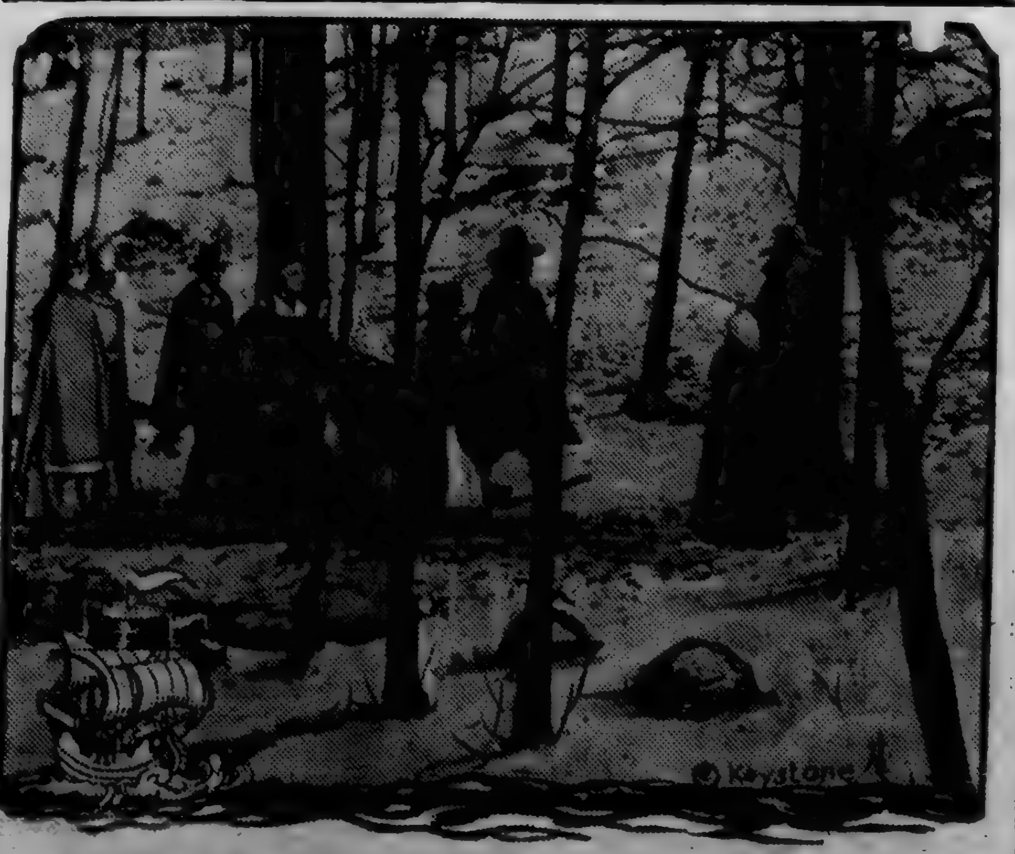
ON THEIR WAY TO GIVE THANKS



The photograph, posed after the famous painting "Pilgrims Going to Church" and "The First Thanksgiving" by Boughton, shows the sturdy founders of Massachusetts going to church to give thanks to the Almighty for the bounties bestowed on them. The picture is supposed to have been illustrative of the early spring of 1621, on the day that Governor Bancroft had set aside as a day of prayer and thanks.

Tigers Lose One

The St. Joe Tigers lost their first one of the season to the Waterloo Wildcats. It was a hard fought game all the way and the score doesn't do justice to the fight put up by the team. The floor was strange and quite a bit larger than the one on which the boys practice, and therefore, they had some difficulty in finding the basket; and its the baskets made that get into the scoring column.

The summary follows:

LIONS DINED IN LUTHERAN BASEMENT

Seventeen members of the Lions Club were served their dinner Monday evening in the basement of the Lutheran Church, where they witnessed the showing of a film entitled "Oil for Aladdin," produced by the Shell Oil Co., and sponsored by their local dealer, M. H. Hollabaugh.

The picture had to deal with the scientific research, in determining what uses the crude oil can best be put to, when refined and the many by-products derived.

Due to the changes being made in the manner of handling expenses on the Wabash, the club will take the matter up with the express company and see whether it can be made B. & O. delivery, thus rendering a much better service to local patrons.

A committee composed of Lions Ridgway, Leighty, Rectenwall and Paschen, was appointed to consider a Christmas program and to give their support to any group who has undertaken this in the past.

The zone meeting will be entertained by the club the first of the year and representatives from six clubs will be in attendance.

Lion Arthur Robinson has been made a member of the finance committee, supplanting E. DuWayne Kinsey.

The next meeting will be held December 8 in the Home Economic Class Room at Spencerville. Each member is to bring a guest and the response to roll call will be something of interest to the business profession of the Lion responding.

SAFE DRIVING "TIPS" ARE ISSUED BY STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION

Ten "tips" for safe driving on Indiana highways were given Hoosier motorists today by S. C. Hadden, chairman of the State Highway Commission, in the hope that observance of these suggestions would reduce the number of weekend holiday traffic accidents on the state highway system.

As adopted by the National Safety Council there rules are:

1. The most important single cause of accidents is speed "too fast for conditions." Adjust driving speed to conditions of the road, weather, traffic, your car and yourself.

2. Keep a safe, clear stopping distance ahead. At night drive so you can stop within the clear, illuminated distance ahead. Reduce speed when the road is slippery.

3. Never slow down suddenly except in emergency and even then try to do it without endangering other motorists.

4. Observe official speed limits on streets and highways. Remember that these are maximum limits for good weather and average traffic conditions.

5. When the weather is bad when the road is slippery, or when traffic is heavier than usual the law requires that you reduce speed. Speed even lower than the posted limits is illegal when too fast for existing conditions.

6. Use the speed of other vehicles as a guide on a busy highway. Keep up with the traffic but don't drive much faster or slower than the average.

7. Passenger comfort is a guide to a reasonable maximum speed under normal conditions. Never drive so fast that passengers feel uncomfortable.

8. Look well ahead continually while driving and keep close watch for "hidden" hazards. Size up the situation as far in advance as possible and regulate your speed accordingly.

9. In approaching curves and turns drive so that you will never have to decrease your speed while making the turn.

10. Approach intersections and other hazardous points at a speed which permits you to have full control of your car. When signs designating speeds are posted at approaches to intersections be sure to slow down to this speed before or by the time you reach the intersection.

The State Highway Commission of Indiana Mr. Hadden said, endorses these suggestions and urges their observance by every Hoosier motorist.

LICENSE PLATES TO START AT 10,001

License numbers for cars of the general public in the state will start with 10,001.

This number will be on the automobile of James L. Tucker, father of James M. Tucker, secretary of state.

The secretary announced he had awarded the number to his father, a Salem attorney, to end the pressure of demands for the distinction. Numbers start at the high figure this year to eliminate the demands for low figures, which in the past have cost the state thousands of dollars in handling.

This may be unpleasant news for J. H. Armington in charge of the Indianapolis weather bureau, who has had the number 10,000 the last two years. The number has been eliminated.

Applications for licenses will be mailed out after Christmas, a later date than usual. However, motorists can buy licenses after January 1, and have until March 1 as deadline.

All state-owned cars will bear low numbers, starting with No. 1, as at present. In addition, members of the general assembly will receive low numbers with special letter designations denoting their membership in the legislature.

FEDERAL TAX ON EACH AUTOMBILE

Tentative treasury plans for collection of the new $5-a-year federal automobile use tax has called for the mailing of bills to an estimated 35,000 000 automobile owners by a commercial publishing concern.

Although no final signatures have been affixed, the contract has been drawn up to have this work done by R. L. Polk & Co. for about $400,000.

The concern would compile the list of automobile owners from state registration lists and mail out bills payable either at internal revenue offices or postoffices.

Under the law recently enacted, automobile owners would be required to pay $2.09 for a sticker good from February 1 until July 1 of next year. Then a sticker would be required at a cost of $5 for the following twelve months.

There is nothing ugly about the duckling that is roasted nice and brown and banked with cranberry sauce and potatoes and gravy.

The least truthful of remarks is idle gossip, idle rumors and idle curiosity.

Many young people never discover how to make education count for as much as it costs.

It seems that there hasn't been a lot of worrying about a surplus corn crop this harvest.

How can we please the world when we have such a hard time satisfying our friends around us.

The youngster who delights in snowballs and ski-pants never figures he will ever go to Florida to keep warm in the Winter.

The picket of all pickets was the chap stationed in front of a drug store who, when he ran out of cigarettes, went inside the store and bought some.

About the only things not having a special week named for them, according to a News reader, is poinson oak, dandruff and fallen arches.

A man on his way to Florida was arrested for using fictitious license plates, and not able to pay the $5 fine and costs. He was asked if he was going to live on sea-weed and salt air after he got there.

With things so topsy-turvy, perhaps we would get a better perspective if we would stand on our heads to view it.

ON WASTE

Someone in a St. Joe store has no doubt mentioned to you that he has felt the defense pinch on the paper sack stock. Maybe your dry cleaner has spoken of the price of paper covers he puts over your suits, and meanwhile, waste paper lies all around the house being discarded heedlessly by all. Since almost 72 per cent of the country's annual paper consumption is destroyed we must call a halt to our individual waste. We may wind up by campaigning for paper collection as we did for aluminum, but we should stop our wastefulness without a campaign. By saving paper we are only conserving an essential material that we would sorely miss were we without it in its thousands of useful forms. We should train ourselves to avoid normal carelessness and this is essential in a man's make-up. Thirty-three states have adopted a slogan, "Save, Simplify, Substitute," and they are using special drives to promote it. Folks in St. Joe might repeat these words daily and profit from them.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Space in national newspapers, radios and on screens, point to the obligation of true sons to come to the aid of their country by purchasing defense stamps. Now America hears another plea for buying stamps and as is usual the response will be magnificent. This season one's thoughts turn Christmasward, as through hamlets the streets are being gaily decorated, stores displaying holiday wares, social whirls scheduled, choirs practicing Christmas anthems as the spirit grows stronger with each incoming mail that carries a Christmas seal on its cover. Each seal bears a message in the name of humanity portraying a need and naming a worthy cause in the fight against tuberculosis. There is the chance that personal shopping might make you overlook the chance to purchase these seals on sale from Nov. 23rd through Dec. 25th. Let's not forget it in St. Joe.

MORE IN FAITH

In a Kentucky army camp a chaplain leader notices the increased interest and activity in religion. Having no national statistics but convinced in his belief due to 24 years in this army work and watching the trend in religious guidance through those years, we feel the chaplain is on the right track. His assistant chaplains in the camp, 32 of them, agree with him. It is a bright note and an encouraging sign. There is need for religion and faith in training to kill to protect. This chaplain found during 1917-18 the average facilities for worship in army camps was "hit and miss," but today the army having learned the importance of religious training for its troops, is erecting chapels to care for these boys in a regular churchly way. This chaplain's announcement of increased faith in his Kentucky camp isn't just a matter of geography. Surely it is a general trend, a hopeful note from all army camps. May every Mother's son seek and find that satisfaction which any religion holds for its followers.

SHOPPING EARLY

Have St. Joe shoppers learned their lesson from Christmas shopping in the past? Trampled toes, ribs nudged, tired bones, fringed dispositions, have all tested endurance thru the years at Christmas shopping time and each year you have insisted it wouldn't happen again. You were late and fighting your way down the aisle found choice merchandise was sold before you arrived. Wiser buyers found the best selections earlier. We understand that this year the sales are expected to be especially heavy and that means more of a late rush. You realize you get better service in selections, salesmanship and delivery. You know there will be shortages in salespeople, in trucks for delivery, that merchandise will be higher and consequently the average buyer will take more time making selections. This holds good in buying your Christmas tree in plenty of time. Get a fresh one, not one of the straggly, scrawny ones that won't hold needles until New Years. Get fresh evergreens by using the principle of shopping early here, too. We can't reform you from your ways if you actually prefer this last minute business, but maybe if you would try the other way just this once you might realize we are only thinking of making your Christmas a merrier one. Whatever we say, the stores will be jammed the day before Christmas, the frenzy just as great as every other year, salespeople too tired to say Merry Christmas to their family. But don't you help to contribute to all of this.

TRED SOFTLY HERE

A recent item tells of the tactlessness of some American manufacturers in dealing with our South American neighbors. For some time we have urged strengthening the ties for promotion of trade with them. Since the war South America has had to do much buying from us and business here has taken advantage of their need. So trade grew until along comes a shortage of products here at home and the manufacturers are not able to supply the demand abroad. What happens is that in many cases the businessman abruptly informs his S. A. trade that he can't meet their demands because of domestic needs. This calls for tact, a refusal needs diplomacy in explanations since we have worked hard to create this market and a good-neighbor feeling between the two countries. But many business houses are to busy to be tactful. There was a similarity between this report and a complaint made by a St. Joe man just the other day, regarding the attitude of business now that it was so rushed with orders. He mentioned the independence of many concerns who used to diligently seek your patronage, who tried to sell you since you were helping to keep them in business. Along came a flood of orders, enough to keep them going without your trade. And so what happens to South America happens here at home. Courtesy and cooperativeness strengthens ties between nations and neighbors. Business has a code and must follow it in order to prosper. You can avoid offense at home and abroad by using diplomacy and consideration when you have to refuse orders. Remember this market, you may need it badly at sometime in the future. Don't let big business get the big head.

THE FALSE PROPHETS

The alleged "oil shortage" on the Eastern Seabord provided a perfect example of a politically created crisis which had almost no foundation in fact.

The unnecessary rationing of gasoline has been abandoned, and it is reported that reserve stocks of oil, far from dwindling, are on the increase. In the meantime, however, the public was subjected to needless inconvenience and worry.

Now it looks as if the so-called "electric power shortages" which are periodically forecast with scare headlines, fall into the same category as the non-existent oil shortage. The nation has been told for a decade, by promoters of socialized power that a serious deficiency of power in major industrial areas was imminent. It has been told that civilian consumption of power would probably have to be severely rationed. It has been told that the power industry has failed to keep pace with demand.

What is the truth of the matter? It is plain enough. Not one really serious power shortage has put in its scheduled appearance. In every important industrial area, needed electricity is available. Even in the defense "boom towns" where industrial development for military purposes has taken place at an incredible rate of speed, power is being quietly and efficiently provided. And more than 90 per cent of that power comes from private utilities. In short, while a few politicians cry "shortage," to promote government ownership of the industry, private enterprise goes ahead and does the work. While the utilities are subjected to every known form of political vilification, they are spending hundreds of millions to build for the demands of tomorrow.

There is, of course, a purpose behind these periodic political denunciations of private industry for alleged failure to meet emergency needs. That purpose is obvious—to destroy the faith of the people in the private enterprise system, and to lead the people to the point where they will accept widespread socialization of industry. The politicians who denounce industry loudest and oftenest are the politicians who are most lustful for more power, more authority, more pork

Before the guests arrive the hostess takes old Christmas cards and cuts each one into a number of pieces. She removes one piece from each card and as each guest brings in the gift she takes one of the removed pieces and slips it under the cord on the package. When time for gift exchange the guests are each given an envelope containing the cut pieces of the card. They must put the card together and then go to the pile of gifts and find the one missing piece that is on one of the gifts.

BURLEY ENSLEY,
Auditor DeKalb County.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The kindred problems of inflation, taxation and cost-of-government are causing many a congressional headache these days. Few senators or representatives seem to have yet decided what can be done to help solve them.

Prices are now going up with extreme rapidity. President Roosevelt recently said that inflation has set in and other major figures in the government have said the same thing before. A legion of economists have urged that Congress take steps to control prices. But so far the lawmakers have shown amazing ability in dodging the issue. Price-fixing is an extremely ticklish proposition. It would directly affect millions of voters. If it is to be successful, in the opinion of most authorities, it must be accompanied by wage-fixing. So, from the point of view of men who must depend on votes to hold their jobs, it is dangerous medicine. On top of that, there are a thousand and one different proposed schemes for price control, and no one knows which might be workable.

We have only just begun to suffer the burdens of taxation that war and defense spending will make inevitable. The new tax bill is the heaviest in our history. Yet it is designed to produce less than $4,000,000,000 a year in additional revenue, and defense and aid-to-democracies appropriations now total $70,000,000,000. The President has said that the government's cash income must be increased, and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has urged a bill which would impose on both individuals and businesses a tax load infinitely greater than that they are now carrying. The feeling grows in official circles that some form of payroll tax may have to be levied, and that this may be acomplished by a law to compel forced savings. Heavy taxation is urged as a weapon against inflation on the ground that it reduces purchasing power and lessens the ability to buy. The bill which Mr. Morgenthau recommended involves a straight 15 per cent tax on all salaries and wages.

The cost-of-government issue is coming into the limelight now. The hard fact is that the war spending has been piled on top of record-breaking non-war spending in which no important cost reduction has been made anywhere. For instance, appropriations to aid farmers, youth, reliefers, and others are still at the depression peaks. Leading congressional fighter for non-defense economy has been Senator Byrd of Virginia. Mr. Byrd is a 100 per cent supporter of the anti-Hitler program and at the same time he believes that the regular cost of government should be pared to the limit. He is head of a senate committee which is now trying to find ways and means to reduce the non-defense budget. Secretary Morgenthau recently appeared before this committee and testified that, in his opinion, very large cuts could be made in practically all non-defense departments. He did not estimate the total cost that could thus be saved. However, sometime ago he forecast that a reduction of at least $1,000,000,000 a year was possible. Other authorities have estimated that a cut of $2,000,000,000 or more is within reason, in non-defense spending.

Congress has been almost entirely occupied with foreign policy during the past year, at the expense of domestic policy. In a time such as the present with public attention focused on a war which extends over three-quarters of the world, it is easy for Congress to take the line of least resistance and do little or nothing. But the heat is being turned on now, and some of the turners are men high in Administration circles. This country has not yet adopted a fiscal policy, a wage policy, or a price policy suitable to the times. We are far behind England in that respect. It looks as if Congress must really get down to cases and grapple with economic problems which are of direct concern to every citizen of these United States.

The tone of the German press has undergone a curious change. For instance, in a recent article propaganda director Goebbels seemed actually pessimestic as to Germany's chances. He didn't say that in clear words, of course, but the intimation was that the Reich had a mighty tough job on her hands and that victory was far away.

It is generally believed in military quarters that the blitz technique has finally failed. It worked with France, Poland, the Low Countries and elsewhere. But it didn't work with England. And it isn't working with Russia.

The war is becoming more or less stabilized. It is turning into a war of resources. Hitler's prime concern now is to organize German-controlled Europe into the vast producing machine that the Nazi armies need. And the democracies' prime concern is to outproduce him in all fields.

Mr. Churchill's recent statement to the effect that the British air force is at last equal to Germany's is not regarded as braggadocio by those who have access to the facts. England has done wonders in building up air power, and American aid is substantial and increasing. The democracies are gaining ground now—but they have a long way to go still. Hitler's land forces are still the best equipped and best trained on earth.

They are every place but where they should be. Why not make a library of your own by purchasing inexpensive scrap books, several of them but all the same size. A subscriber says she pastes favorite jokes and cartoons in one, favorite recipes and household hints in another, attractive scenes, paintings reproduced for every one's enjoyment, ideas for making over clothes and such all goes into the third book. In her fourth she pastes book reviews, poetry, special bits of prose which appeal and so on. The fifth is her garden scrapbook which is crammed full of clippings on this wide subject. Luella Wyatt, Auburn, has again sued Norman A. Wyatt for a divorce in the DeKalb Circuit Court. Mrs. Wyatt filed a complaint for a divorce in July, 1940, but dismissed it last September. The new complaint charges non-support. The couple married June 19, 1909, and parted Oct. 1, 1941. The plaintiff states that she owns the property where they live and that her husband has no right there, but that he returns and occupies a room, refusing to leave. She is asking for an order restraining him from molesting her.

A subscriber suggests this fun for receiving gifts at a Christmas party. Each guest brings an inexpensive gift and probably one that will lead to laughs when opened. Before the guests arrive the hostess takes old Christmas cards and cuts each one into a number of pieces. She removes one piece from each card and as each guest brings in the gift she takes one of the removed pieces and slips it under the cord on the package. When time for gift exchange the guests are each given an envelope containing the cut pieces of the card. They must put the card together and then go to the pile of gifts and find the one missing piece that is on one of the gifts.

Preaching to all people all over the United States without leaving his room, may sound strange, but that's what Griffith Casler does. Installed in his fifth floor dormitory room at Moody Bible Institute, Casler has a small telegraph sending and receiving set, licensed as station W2KFR. With a telegraph key in his hand and an open Bible on the table, Casler spends his spare time talking to ameteur radio operators in all parts of the country. "Talking about methods of approach," he says, "wait until you try approaching some man by means of dots and dashes; it's difficult to do." Casler, who learned the code while he was employed by a radio firm in New York, is now at the Bible school studying for the ministry.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT ?

Again the Christmas season's here
Again the Christmas chimes ring clear,
"More blessed 'tis to give" they say
"Than to receive" on Christmas Day.

I start out shopping with my list,
I careful am that none I've missed,
So I'll buy first for Cousin Joe,
Some lovely gift—he's got the 'dough'—
I really hope he'll not forget
I need a nice new parlor set.

Next Cousin Bill—he's on relief,
So, I'll give him a handkerchief,
But rich and 'ritzy' Uncle Tim,
I must get something nice for him.
He knows my fur coat's out of date,
A stylish mink would suit me great.

The girl that cleans my house in Spring
I must give her some little thing,
Her father's sick, her mother's frail,
I'll send to her a scrubbing pail.
Since Philip's fortune's on the rocks,
I'll just send him a pair of socks.

I like to buy for great Aunt Ann,
The very best gift that I can—
She always gives such lovely things,
Like strands of pearls and diamond rings,
A card I'll send to Uncle Pete,
He has hard work to make ends meet.

And Marjie's poor, as all can see,
She never sends a thing to me—
Last year I sent a powder puff—
I'll scratch her name, enough's enough.
But Helen sends me something nice,
So I must duplicate her price.

Oh! Ring glad bells of Christmas—chime!
Ring in a glad new Christmas time,
Ring out the old commercial plea—
"I'll give to you, you give to me!"
Ring in a time when love will sway
The hearts of men on Christmas Day,
When ringing, swinging, all shall hear,
Your Christmas message, loud and clear,
"More blessed 'tis to give" you'll say,
"Than to receive" on Christmas Day.

A SOLDIER'S GIFT

And so you are trying to find a gift that will please a soldier boy and you need help! Now what would be a nicer present than a subscription to his home town newspaper, for there isn't anything that keeps a fellow in such close touch with local affairs except a letter from the family. There are some attractive gifts suggested as printed stationery and tempting food boxes containing crackers, cheese, nuts, hard candy, tooth paste and razor blades. These are practical gifts for soldiers and don't take up much room won't spoil and aren't heavy to carry. But personally, if we were in the army and you asked us what would be our choice our vote would go for the home town newspaper. Maybe we are prejudiced but maybe the soldier in question is too!

SMARTER SHOPPING

A St. Joe shopper mentioned that she found more parents and friends buying sensible toys for children this year. There is certainly an array of educational games and puzzles, such varied displays of mechanical wonders to keep hands busy of those young who love to build, the advanced chemistry and photo developing sets that lay tempting the interested youth, all kinds of books to encourage concentration and lay a ground-work for a pleasure that should follow a man all the days of his life—reading. Surely this year if never before, those who buy gifts for children should carefully chose a toy that will be substantial for with a little time and thought one can purchase toys that will out-last the holidays. Money should be spent wisely and to make a child realize there are so many unfortunate ones who have much less than he and so grateful for what they do have. Those gifts which have been made, appreciate them the most for realize that extra effort and kindness has been expended when a present is made by hand.

THEN REPLACE THEM

There is usually discussion in St. Joe around this time as to the advisability of cutting so many trees for Christmas. A man with an axe destroys in a few minutes what nature has taken years to accomplish. The man who has watched and cared for a tree in his yard, has planted it there and promoted it with loving care, then that man appreciates the waste of seeing precious trees piled high in bundles, tied and harnessed to await the buyer who loads a tree on the running-board of his auto, rides it home where in glory it graces the scene through New Years, thence to a brush pile to await complete destruction. Think of their beauty as they waved their branches in some forest tract. Midst their sisters they lived and breathed the woodsy air, felt Winter's snow and Summer's warm sun. Just last year a farmer killed a man and the man's wife because they had stolen his evergreen trees. This is no reason to kill but trees should be respected. Law protects birds of the air fish of the water, game in the forest, but doesn't do much about killing our trees. The way out of this situation is to have a living Christmas tree, and all will be happy again.

IN ALL THIS TURMOIL

Let us keep the people's health in mind. Tuberculosis is still the principal cause of death between the ages of 15 and 45, the period of greatest economic importance.

During the past year only one-third of the young men called for service were accepted as being physically fit. Among those rejected were many cases of tuberculosis. What about the entire population—children, women and older men?

Your purchase of Christmas Seals is a voluntary one, not determined by the size of your pocketbook, but by the size of your heart. How typically American that your contribution should be on a voluntary basis! What a privilege it is to be approached with the thought of "You Can Help" instead of "You Must."

Let us remember of less fortunate neighbors at this time with our generous purchase of these little Seals.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The great British drive into vital Libya could not have come as much of a surprise to the German and Italian garrisons. It had been rumored for weeks that the campaign was brewing, and it was known that Britain had been sending tremendous quantities of supplies to Africa. However, it is a distinct possibility that the Axis powers were surprised by the number of troops involved, and by the quality and extent of their equipment. It is probable that this is the first time in the war that Empire land troops have met Axis land troops without being definitely inferior so far as mechanized equipment is concerned.

The Libyan drive is providing a good test of American war materials. The 600,000 Empire troops engaged are largely equipped with American tanks, planes and other weapons. Trustworthy reports from the front cast great credit on American design and manufacture. It is said that the American tanks are definitely superior to German and Italian tanks of comparable size. Their armor is tougher, their fire power is as good or better, and their tracks permit going in terrain and under weather conditions which stop Axis machines. The American Army has a General on the scene in the role of military observer, and he will be able to bring home very interesting and informative news.

Britain's purpose in shooting the works in Africa is manifold.

FIRST, it is of definite aid to Russia by placing a strain on Axis troops and resources. A new front has been opened. Germany will not be able to move troops and equipment from Africa to help on the Eastern front. Instead, she may have to divert resources of men and material from Europe to Africa.

SECOND, the African campaign answers the Churchill government's critics, who have been demanding more action. A sweeping British victory would do a great deal for Empire morale.

THIRD, it helps place Britain on an offensive, instead of a defensive, war basis. In other words, she apparently no longer feels that she must keep all resources as intact as possible for purposes of self-protection. She now feels that she can carry the war to the enemy on a major scale.

FOURTH, and most important, from a military strategist's point of view, is the possible effect of the Libyan campaign on Italy. If the campaign achieves complete success, it will give the British possession of invaluable Mediterranean bases. These bases can and no doubt will be used to wage naval and air war against Italy on a terrific scale. In addition, a workable naval blockade could be established to prevent Italian shipping from leaving or entering home. Some authorities are confident that these methods would in time knock Italy completely out of the war, and force her to sue for peace.

On the Russian front, it is apparent that Hitler is getting farther behind schedule all the time. In addition, he is taking tremendous losses which may prove disastrous in the long run. The Russians claim a great exaggeration. But there is no question but what casualties have been far heavier than Hitler's generals, who figured on a two-month Russian war, anticipated. In addition, the Russians have taken or destroyed vast quantities of tanks, planes, field pieces, etc. The resistance of the Russians, soldier and civilian alike, is writing a new and heroic chapter to the military annals of history.

The Allies have certainly not won this war. But their gains in strength since the awful disaster at Dunkirk are nothing short of miraculous. Little more than a year ago it looked as if England was beaten, and that no force capable of even slowing the Nazis, much less stopping them, remained. Time has proven otherwise. And today, Time works against Hitler at last.

Judging by the tone of the government-inspired Tokyo press, one wonders why Japan went to the expense of sending special envoy Saburo Kuruso over here. The papers say with monotonous regularity and uniformity that all hope of maintaining peace in the Pacific is gone, and that war is inevitable.

Japan's peace offers to this country have been Hitler-like—in other words, she will accept peace if she is given everything she wants.

One school of experts thinks that Japan may be stalling for time—that she is bluffing on the one hand and talking vaguely on the other, in order to keep the United States from definite action now. Every day that passes obviously makes it a harder job to unseat her from her position of military power in Asia. However, every day that passes also makes Japan weaker economically.

This government is giving absolutely no ground to Japan. The African attitude, in effect, tells Nippon that if she insists on conquest she will have war with us.

LAW AND ORDER OR GANGSTER RULE

When union heads refuse to abide by the decision of mediation boards, they are digging free labor's grave. If due to the ruthless tactics of a few labor leaders, the mediation principle must be abandoned, all that will be left for Congress to do will be to pass uncompromising laws which will assure the continuance of defense production, and make strikes against the nation's safety impossible.

Labor would do well to read and ponder a statement made by Dean Wayne. L. Morse, of the University of Oregon. Dean Morse headed the President's emergency board which was created to pass on railway labor's demand for impossible wage increase. Here is what he said: "The call for the railway strike is absolutely unjustifiable.

"The officials of the union and their lawyers admitted on the record of the case that they had a fair and judicial hearing. If they go through with their threat of strike, they will sacrifice the judicial processes guaranteed to them by the Railway Labor Act—which will be much more costly to the future interest of railway labor than the temporary financial benefits which they seek to gain through a strike. It is my judgment that a strike of railroad labor at this time will jeapordize the very hige place it has up to now enjoyed in public esteem."

Courts and mediation boards and laws are useless if powerful labor groups can defy judicial decisions and menace the safety and welfare of a whole nation by the gangster threat of "pay up or else!"

If we are to retain law and order in this nation, instead of descending to a state of anarchy, both sides to labor controversies must accept the conclusions of courts and mediation boards. Otherwise we will have rule by brute force.

If mediation boards are not backed up 100 per cent by the government in such cases as the railway wage controversy, it is futile to hope for fair and legal settlement of difficulties which may arise in the future. Labor must learn that this nation cannot be blackmailed into capitulating to any and all demands. Basically, the problem is this: "Are labor pressure groups or the government going to run this country?" And no one need doubt what the answer of the American people will be to that.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

President Roosevelt fully intended to spend Thanksgiving Day in Warm Springs, Georgia, and may yet do so, since there are two Thanksgiving festivals this year, if one cares to pass from state to state and from turkey to turkey, so to speak. Next year, matters will be back on the old orthodox basis. For the first time in four years, the President observed the occasion in the White House. The critical stage of war affairs and the tension produced by the strike situation, made it desirable that he keep close to his advisors and to first-hand sources of information. There was a family gathering and the customary feast, an observance practically like that carried out by less prominent citizens of the land.

General Weygand, lately removed by Petain had due regard for his chief, and a sincere desire to serve the Vichy government; yet the French possessions in Africa were the apple of his eye, and he was strongly averse to having them taken over by Axis powers or anyone else. The shelving of General Weygand indicates plainly that France has no intention of making a great sacrifice in order to retain her African holdings. She may even end up as an ally of Germany and Italy in the Dark Continent.

The State Department has issued a statement that in view of the recent action of the French government regarding General Weygand, American policy toward France is under review, all plans for economic accistance to French Africa having been suspended. The Department adds that it remains to be seen how far Hitler will attempt to take over by force, or threat of force, the sovereignty and control of the French empire. This is taken by some to indicate that an open break with Vichy is coming. It is improbable that the mere ousting of Weygand will be made the ground for so drastic an action as a severance of diplomatic relations with France. Yet, as the statement released by the State Department clearly states, there is reason for keeping a close watch on what France does in the future.

Mussolini's chestnuts are decidedly in the fire, in Africa, and Hitler is making a concealed effort to pull them out, using France as the tool. Not that Hitler cares what becomes of the Duce, but control of the Suez Canal is something to think about. The degree of force that Britain puts into the Libyan drive will depend on how badly Russia needs English help. It is not probable that British activities in Africa will be pushed, unless there is clear evidence that Russia can hold her own until Spring, or do even better than that.

The Red Cross is making its annual call for funds, and the President has expressed the hope that the conclusion of the drive will see eighteen million persons entitled to wear the well known badge of membership. The money collected at this time will be expended solely for the benefit of the United States and its citizens. The need is great, and is likely to increase. In spite of the many demands that are being made, the Red Cross should not be slighted. Practically the only adverse criticism that one hears regarding the organization is that much money is spent in salaries and wages. The same argument could be applied to prove that the Union Pacific Railroad, or even the federal government itself, could be operated by help that is willing to work for nothing.

MISS HOUSER

MISS IDLE

Revival meetings at the Spencerville Methodist Church December 8 to 21.

Each evening at 7:30.

A revival of spirituality is the power of God with definite control over the mind and heart of a church, community, or a nation. In the popular sense, a revival of religion in a community is the arousing, quickening, and reclaiming of the more or less backslidden church members, the conversion of sinners, and active interest in world wide missionary endeavor.

There is too little desire, interest, faith, and warmth of divine love in the church today. Let all christians of all churches feel free to attend the revival, or if you have not accepted Christ as Personal Lord And Savior—you are definitely invited to the revival. Also we will pray for your conversion to God, faith in Jesus Christ, and restoration to His favor.

TUBERCULOSIS TESTS

Tuberculosis caused the death of one teacher in the Johnson County, Ind., schools and the retirement of another. Two hundred and twelve pupils in the schools where these teachers had been employed submitted to tuberculosis tests and seventy-nine of them showed positive reactions. Additional examinations in an Indianapolis hospital are planned when X-ray tests will be given in each suspected case.

Indiana has a new law requiring each teacher and school janitor to undergo tuberculosis tests. If it had been in force a year or two ago the Johnson County situation might have been avoided. The law is intended as a protection for teachers as much as it is for pupils. Tuberculosis, if discovered in time, can be cured. Physicians regard it is an infectious disease and as such it should be eradicated from the schoolroom as quickly as is the case in other ailments that may be transmitted from one to another.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC. 11, 1941 NUMBER 50

PATROLMAN MURPHY TALKS TO LIONS CLUB

Patrolman Murphy talked to the Lions Club members and their guests, Monday evening, at the Spencerville school house, where dinner was served to thirty-two at 6:30.

He began his remarks by saying that we as a people are wrought up over the declaration of war, because of the cost in lives of young men as well a sdollars, but seldom do we consider the cost in the toll of lives in Indiana caused by careless automobile drivers, and Indiana drivers killed 3,000 people in the last 18 months.

Only 4 per cent of the accidents are unavoidable, and the 96 per cent are due to the slackness of the drivers. A man may fail in business, the speaker said, and may be able to stage a come back in later years, but a failure to do the right thing in driving a car, may result in the death of some person, and here there is no possible chance for a come back.

A driver of an automobile must learn to concentrate and be able to act quickly. Speed is one of the principal causes of accidents, not being able to control the car within the given time, to avoid a crackup.

Indiana has 59,000 miles of paved roads, 12,000 miles more than any other state, thus increasing our possibility of accidents just that much more.

The deaths on Indiana highways are on the increase, when in 1940 there were 1,385 killed and thus far in 1941 there have been 1,500 fatalities. Along with this record of slaughtering 150,000 cripples were made in the nation besides the thousands of hospital cases treated. Automobiles kill more people than guns in Indiana, because there were but 23 murders last year in our state.

Chairman Lion Sechler appointed Willard Hurni, Arthur Lyon, Don Keller, and L. W. Yeiser as the Christmas program committee for the December 22nd meeting to be held at the Akins Tea Room in St. Joe.

The Club will participate in some form of providing baskets for worthy citizens at the holiday season, and has been given over to a special committee for handling.

GILLIE PLEDGES LOYAL SUPPORT IN WAR CRISIS

Unflinching support of America's war effort against the Japanese was pledged by Rep. George W. Gillie, of Indiana, in a speech in Congress on Monday at the extraordinary joint session of the House and Senate.

Congressman Gillie's remarks follow:

"Mr. Speaker, Japan's cowardly attack in the Pacific leaves us with no alternative but to strike back with every resource at our command.

"Americans are traditionally a peaceful people, slow to anger and slow to take up the sword. But this natural aversion for war should not be construed as weakness, for once aroused, once an enemy threatens our homes, our institutions or our way of life, no people are more to be feared.

"Mr. Speaker, the American people are aroused today—aroused and united in a demand for vengeance against our common enemy.

"As a member of Congress, as a Reserve Officer, and as a plain citizen anxious to do my bit, I pledge my sincere, loyal and unflinching support of America's defense against aggression in the Pacific."

CARL WALTER WILL BE RELEASED SOON

Carl Walter, former clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, will return to his home in Auburn within a week or two after serving a little more than a year of a two to twenty-one term for embezzlement.

A copy of the executive order issued by Gov. Henry E. Schricker for the state commission of clemency was received by County Clerk Murray A. Steele Tuesday. The order stated that the application for a parole was granted for the reasons that the applicant's record at the Michigan City prison was good; that he had no previous convictions; that the trial judge had no objections to his release at the end of one year, and that the trial prosecutor recommended that the petition be granted.

The clemency commission recommended that the parole be effective when suitable arrangements are made for Walter's release, with the understanding that he make regular reports for a period of two years and that he remain in the jurisdiction of the proper officials.

Walter received his sentence Nov. 25, 1940, after he entered a plea of guilty. He had vanished in July, 1940, and state accountants who were called in discovered a shortage. A civil suit was filed against the missing clerk and the surety company that furnished his bond. He returned in November and surrendered to the court. The civil suit was settled when the surety company paid the county $6,571.

COUNTRY AROUSED AT ATTACK OF JAPAN

Citizens of DeKalb County were shocked and amazed when the spectre of the United States in a war again became an actuality Sunday with the announcement that the Japanese army and navy had made an attack on American possessions in the Far East.

In general, the reaction was calm, but groups of citizens gathered to listen to latest news bulletins over the radio. Everyone seemed greatly surprised that the Japanese would boldly attack the United States without warning, but a certain grimness and determination settled upon people's faces.

The immediate effect of the war news upon the community was the concern of many people for relatives and friends now living in the combat zone.

Several DeKalb County men will be recalled to the army although they had been released under the 28 year age limit law.

A food shortage shouldn't be hard on lots of American women, who have spent years trying every diet they have heard about.

Is it better to go slower and reach where you wanted to stop, or faster and just get going?

It has been a long time since we have heard anyone remark that radio is still in its infancy.

A woman will insist and prove she is the head of the house, until it comes time to stoke the furnace.

With the present strike situation, one of the best places to start working on democracy is right here at home.

With all these potions on the market that help to restore beauty it is surprising you ever see a wrinkle any more.

I pity no man because he has to work. If he is worth his salt he will work. I envy the man who has a work worth doing and does it well.—Theodore Roosevelt.

According to many a young lady, it would be mighty hard to put a stop to something that started back with Adam and Eve.

A coal strike that hits a man hardest is when he strikes the bottom of the coal bin in the basement.

THE HARD WAY

Long ago when the farmer carried his grain to the mill to be ground for flour, he put the wheat into a bag and threw the bag over the back of his horse. In order to balance the load on the saddle, the farmer would put STONES in the other end of the sack. So they went to the mill—until somebody had a better idea. He started to balance the load on the horse by using wheat in both ends of the sack instead of the stones, which were useless weight. So simple that you wonder why they didn't think of it in the beginning. But right here in St. Joe many of us are carrying stones around in our sacks because we haven't stopped to think of a more efficient way of doing the same job, an easier and more efficient way to do work that becomes a pleasure instead of a task. Let us check and see if we can't get rid of those stones in our sacks.

WATCH FOR COLDS

With the increased amount of work and the number of people who are engaged in it, the usual warning at this season regarding common colds, should mean something. Since colds cause a greater loss of time from work and school than any other ailment, the warning against them should be of importance in all of our homes. There are a few general rules that can be followed that might help in preventing them. A cold can persist in hanging on and becoming severe in its nature, when you find your home treatment has failed. Then consult your physician. Remember that during times like today an influenza epidemic is very apt to occur and such a prediction has already been made for this Winter. At the first sign that you have a cold, watch your diet by eating light, nourishing food and drinking plenty of water and fruit juices. Stay away from folks who have colds. If you are especially run down you are more apt to catch cold so get plenty of rest. Health officials suggest the way to build up the system against colds is to include milk, eggs, fruits and yellow vegetables on your diet. So go to it—and stay well!

WALK MORE

Have you noticed whether you are saving gasoline in your family by doing more walking and if you are taking better care of the family auto than you formily did? They tell us that as a whole we are using our legs more and tires less since we have heard so much of shortages and high petrol prices in foreign countires. It didn't make much difference whether we drove a rattling jalopy or a polished streamlined number, we climbed into it to go to the corner grocery. Seems that today's Americans aren't much for letting their feet guide them. Our sturdy ancestors had the idea that walking was good for you, that it led to a longer life by keeping the body fit and the spirit improved. Perhaps today we might start to take a brisk half-mile in our stride. Have an hour of working the legs and perhaps adding a year of improved health to our physical condition.

A PROUD YEAR

Out West stands an edifice that is a symbol of modern rehabilitation methods which work! In Texas is a Federal Reformatory for Women which is one of the only two such institutions maintained by the government. This one houses the woman prisoners convicted west of the Mississippi and last month it celebrated its first anniversary with a perfect right to do so since, with no outside walls, no guards nor cells, there have been no escapes or attempted breaks. Something holds them. Perhaps it is because there isn't the strong arm method and the hardened criminal attitude employed. The heads are civil service employees who use scientific means of making the inmates ready to resume cititzenship. They must be people of high calibre who willingly study an inmate's personalitty, type of work she will like, further her hobbies, give her all sortts of handiwork and have a fully equipped library at her disposal. Inmates live in dormitories, each woman in a separate room. In the dining room are tables for seating four at each close at hand are classes in cooking and dressmaking, a business trainintg school, manufacturing shop and a modern beauty salon. The inmate, or resident as they are called, is studied for her fears, her moods, likes and aptitude for work. So with all of this in this newest in correctional institutions, it is no wonder it is serving its purpose so well.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

Irrespective of what steps are taken to curb strikes in defense industries, it seems a virtual certainty that it will be a long time before the labor problem is solved. There is too much at stake, too much to be gained, to make a quick and easy settlement possible. The big labor leaders are driving for power now, and their opposition is digging in for a long campaign. The obvious goal of labor is the 100 per cent closed shop. Industry in general is absolutely opposed to that, and so, according to recent Presidential statements, is the government. So far as the public is concerned, a late Gallup poll indicated that the closed shop is favored by one citizen out of six.

A great many people think that the wisest present strategy would be to delay matters until the emergency is over. That, for instance, is the point of view of Wendell Willkie, who said that no effort to effect either the open shop or the closed shop should be taken now—that, instead, an attempt should be made to freeze matters as they stand at present. One pending congressional bill has that as its objective. But there is room for doubt that such a policy of relative inaction is workable today. The temper of Congress, of the people, and of the labor leaders may make a real showdown inevitable before long.

In the meantime, there is a growing feeling that the stand taken by labor is rapidly becoming untenable. The closed shop idea, carried to its inevitable conclusion, means a labor monopoly. They would, for example, be immensely more powerful than the President. The head of the government, even in these days of crisis, can be checked by Congress and the Courts, and the Constitution itself places definite limits upon his freedom. And in actual practice, the members of major unions often have absolutely nothing to say about policy and union management.

Many friends of labor, as a result, are beginning to have qualms. In a recent column, Dorothy Thompson, who has always been pro-labor, said: "The closed shop. . . . gives the union organization an immense club over the workers, for they connot express their opposition to union policy or officials either by resigning from the union or withholding their dues. They cannot strike against the union. And once the closed shop is instituted, it is almost impossible to revoke. . . . There can be no groups in this country that are above the law and above the community. The very fact of the growing power of unions demands that they accept social disciplines."

"Social disciplines," of course, is simply one way of saying government regulation of the unions. That is very likely to come in the long run. The government, in that case, would be the dominant factor in all labor-industrial relations. It would protect the worker against exploitation by his employer on the one hand, and it would protect the employer against union racketeering on the other. But it is obvious that many a moon must pass before this goal can be reached. And the immediate question is what can be done to keep production going.

The President, perhaps, has the right formula. There is no doubt that he forced Mr. Lewis to accept arbitration and call off the captive coal mine strike because it was clear that public opinion was overwhelmingly behind him. At a press conference he said that public opinion would prove the deciding factor. Unless we throw the Constitution overboard, abolish the courts and adopt a Hitler-like forced labor system we can't make a man work if he doesn't want to, and by the same token a man should not be prevented from working if he wishes to. Troops can be ordered to break strikes—but troops can't run the machines and get the products out. Public opinion, on the other hand, can certainly make labor leaders think twice before defying the government, ignoring the findings of unprejudiced boards of mediation, and calling strikes that imperil defense.

There is much criticism of the failure of the government—Executive and Congress alike—to take a really definite stand. The signs indicate that the Executive and Congress are now taking heed of that criticism. Congress knows that defense strikes must be stopped. And the people, with this country facing all-out war on two oceans, want planes and ships and tanks and guns. The labor leaders may have at last bitten off more than they can chew.

Home Broken Into

The Clay Coburn home was broken into last week, ransacked and a box containing papers was removed from the home, leaving only a deed and will for the family. A window was discovered broken on Thursday by Hugh Neiland, a neighbor, and Roy Koch was called and made the repair. When Leroy Coburn came home last Saturday from Jackson, he discovered the things in the house had been disturbed. The tin box referred to was found Sunday morning along the back fence, but was empty.

THIS IS OURS

This is the month marking the 150th anniversary of the Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the Constitution which comprises the most fundamental rights of American citizens. Today we pay more heed to those laws that give us our freedom and especially to the first amendment which says: Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances. And this one amendment covers those privileges which we hold so dear and which we are trying to safeguard today as never before in our day. For 150 years this government has lived and preserved its being through the principles of the Bill of Rights. It is indeed the soul of the Constitution and as such we cherish it, for sorry is the fate of a soulless nation. Many of them that are trying to survive with only the bare framework of government to sustain them. Man must have a soul to live with himself and his fellows and so must a nation. We must cherish our Bill of Rights as only a good and wise people would hold on to that ground which supports them.

SPENCERVILLE GIRL HIRED AS COUNTY NURSE

Ralph Griest, of Garrett, president of the DeKalb County Red Cross, announced that Miss Josephine A. Fisher, of Spencerville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fisher, had been hired for the position of county Red Cross nurse. She was notified of her appointment Tuesday of last week and she commenced work Wednesday morning.

Miss Fisher received her nurse's training at the Methodist Hospital in Ft. Wayne, graduating in 1936. Since that time she has practiced private nursing and last Winter was a nurse at an army camp located in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Miss Fisher will reside in Auburn. She began visiting schools throughout the county Monday of this week. The Red Cross room in Auburn will be open on Thursday afternoons and all day Saturday.

Mrs. Florence Sinninger, of Butler, formerly the DeKalb County Red Cross nurse, resigned last Summer and enrolled in Indiana University at Bloomington. She was awarded a scholarship following her Summer work and returned to the university this Fall. There had been no one serving as nurse since Mrs. Sinninger's resignation.

Why not see to it this year that those birds that are about your yard have their Christmas dinner? Don't forget they are your firm friends when gardening time comes along. So cheer their day by putting out suet, pork, cheese, red pepper and vegetables. Add raisins and grapes, a cookie and some chicken feed for your bird's menu. They will chirp for you their appreciation and Christmas greeting.

To decorate your tree try using the pine cones picked up in the woods, heating them in the oven to give them a lovely glossy brown color and then tying them on the trees branches in realistic maner. Or tip each of the cone's edges with a bit of white or silver paint to look as though they were brushed with snow and when tied to the green boughs becomes a beautiful decoration with only concealed lights to give the touch of color. Do not put lighted candles on the tree for safety's sake. Watch the electric load on each circuit and be careful of strong lights close to the inflammable ornaments.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Miller of Rt. 1, Auburn, announce the marriage of their daughter, Betty, to Wayne Bowser, son of Mrs. Ivan C. Bowser, of St. Joe. HOOSIERS CELEBRATE THE 125th BIRTHDAY OF THE STATE THURSDAY

Hoosiers from the Great Lakes on the North, to the Beautiful Ohio River on the South, and East and West, with a focal point of celebration at Corydon, first state capital, will observe the 125th birthday of the proud State of Indiana, Thursday, December 11.

A news summary of the state-wide birthday party follows: Governor Henry F. Schricker and Lieutenant Governor Charles M. Dawson will head a pilgrimage to the Corydon state shrine Thursday. They will be accompanied by high officials of the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the Government. Secretary of State James M. Tucker will be toastmaster at the Corydon birthday celebration, which will be broadcast over a state-wide radio network.

Under arrangements completed by Dr. Clement T. Malan, state superintendent of Public Instruction, public schools throughout the state will recite Indiana poems by Sarah T. Bolton, William Herschell, James Whitcomb Riley and other Indiana poets. They will sing "On the Banks of the Wabash Far Away," and "listen in" by radio to the Corydon observance. All Hoosiers have been asked by Governor Schricker to rededicate themselves to the principles of freedom, upon which the state was founded, in connection with the Corydon birthday party.

The Corydon observance will begin at 2:00 P. M., CST, Thursday, Dec. 11, and last one hour. The broadcast will be from 2:30 to 2:45 P. M. thru details worked out by Gene Pulliam, Jr., of Indianapolis, in connection with the Governor's office, the Superintendant of Public Instruction, and the Indiana Division of Public Publicity.

Radio stations broadcasting the Corydon program will include: WIRE, and WISH, Indianapolis; WEAO and W45V, Evansville; WBOW, Terre Haute; WAOV, Vincennes; WIND, Gary; WOWO and WGL, Fort Wayne; WGRC, New Albany, and probably others.

Patriotic women of Corydon will serve a fried chicken, cottage cheese, and buttermilk dinner to visitors in the Masonic Temple at 1 P. M. in connection with the celebration.

With the United States at War and the civilized world aflame with deadly conflict to determine whether democratic ideals of government shall survive, the observance of the 125th birthday of the Great State of Indiana at Corydon, site of the First State Capitol, on Thursday of this week, takes on added significance. It was the same ideals of freedom for which we fight today that led the pioneers to carve the State of Indiana out of the wilds of the Old Northwest Territory.

Governor Henry F. Schricker, who will head the observance at Corydon, has called upon all Hoosiers to rededicate themselves to principles of freedom and democracy. It is fitting that the observance of Indiana's 125th birthday should take place at Corydon.

Corydon, peaceful rural town of less than 2,000 people, is rich in history. It is the birthplace of the Hoosier state, scene of the first constitutional convention, and seat of Indiana's government for nearly a decade. Corydon, an important milestone of Indiana history, is located in Harrison County, on Roads Nos. 62 and 135 and is a state memorial.

The observance will be held in the shadow of the old state house. The Corydon state house was constructed in 1812 by a stone mason by the name of Dennis Pennington. This building was erected originally to be used as a court house for Harrison County. It stood proudly in a sparsely settled frontier town of "eight or ten buildings beside many others that are ordinary," according to the words of a traveler, recorded in 1819.

In 1816 the constitutional convention fixed the seat of government at Corydon. The capitol remained at Corydon until the latter part of 1824, that period having been fixed by the first constitution. In 1824 the state capitol was removed to Indianapolis, the center of the State, and as it developed later, the crossroads of the United States. Interesting stories have been handed down through the years as to the picturesque shifting of the state of government.

A cavalcade, imposing, for the time, of four great four horse wagons, laden with the state's effects, including the printing outfit of a state printer, took about ten days to travel the 125 miles to Indianapolis. About 1913 the late Evan B. Stotsenburg, of New Albany, then a member of the state senate, requested a historical investigation with the purpose of acquiring the building as a state memorial.

Four years later an act of the General Assembly brought this about. Corydon, scene of the birthday party, is on a par as a memorial with the First State Capitol building of the Northwest Territory standing in Harrison Park in Vincennes. Both should be visited as shrines near to the heart of every Hoosier.

A "lot of water has gone over the dam" in stirring chapters of proud Indiana achievement since President James Madison on Dec. 11, 1816, affixed his signature to papers that officially admitted the Hoosier state to the Union. The United States today is fighting for survival of "the American way of life" and freedom that this country has chosen, the same as pioneers fought in the early days of state settlement. It is fitting that Governor Schricker would lead in devout reconsecration of all citizens to these principles of freedom, on the 125th birthday of the state.

Indiana Onion King

"The greatest tear jerker of all time," was the unofficial title which Gov. Henry Schricker gave Charles G. Brucker, Pulaski County farmer, who this year produced 1,716.91 bushels of onions on an acre of soil. Officially, the Governor is crowning Brucker "Indiana Onion King," and presenting the trophy awarded annually by the A&P Tea Company to the Indiana muck farmer with the highest per acre onion production. The award was made at the Northern Indiana Muck Crop Growers Association meeting at LaPorte.

CONSERVATION CLUB PLANS ACTIVITIES

Thirty members of the local Conservation Club enjoyed weiner sandwiches and coffee Saturday night at their first Winter meeting, held at the Town Hall.

While the price has been lowered by the state to all clubs brooding game birds for release in their communities, the club voted to engage in brooding pheasants again next year. The matter of constructing a hatching pond was discussed and plans which had previously been made were ordered tabled temporarily. The purchase of live coon for release was talked of and will be discussed at the January meeting.

M. M. Dalbey, of the Butler Club, made a talk on conservation, and asked that members attend their meeting on December 17, when speakers would appear on the program and talk on the late developments affecting conservation. Their meeting will be open to the public and held at the school building.

M. E. Storer, the treasurer, made an encouraging report. The club had a total receipt for the year of $381.29 and a disbursement of $140.97, which gives a balance of $240.42. The pheasant project netted the club $68.26, and they released 175 birds at 10 weeks old.

Plans for the annual pest hunt were started with Walter Stewart and Carl Carpenter to head one group and Ray Hadley and Wm. Keeler the second group. Both sides are now active in securing new members for 1942.

Beginning on Christmas Day and continuing until New Year Night the annual pest hunt will be in full swing with the following schedule of points:

CHAS. CAMPBELL FOUND DEAD IN OFFICE

Stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage while in his office at Butler, Charles W. Campbell, prominent citizen of that city, died suddenly about 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The body was found lying on the floor two and a half hours later by Otis Fisher who is associated with the Knisely National bank in Butler.

Calvin Hawkins, of Auburn, acting deputy county coroner, believes that death had occurred at approximately 3:30 o'clock. He said Mr. Campbell apparently had suddenly become ill, had taken off his glasses and laid them on the floor. Mr. Campbell's death came as a shock to his family and friends, as he had been in apparent good health. He suffered one previous attack about three years ago, but it was light.

Mr. Campbell was born Aug. 10, 1877, in Butler, and spent his entire life in that community except during the time he attended Tri-State College at Angola. He was a graduate of Butler high school and after completing his work at Tri-State College he returned to Butler. There he entered the office of Judge William P. Endicott, now of Auburn, who was an attorney in Butler at that time. After several years in that office, he was admitted to the bar.

Aside from his legal business, Mr. Campbell also acted as insurance agent and he was Butler city treasurer for two terms. He was in partnership with Capt. H. C. Springer, attorney, until last Spring, when he was appointed manager of the auto license branch in Butler. He was a member of the Methodist Church and the K. of P. and Masonic lodges.

Surviving are the widow, Mary; four children, Ralph and Homer Campbell, of Fort Wayne, Miss Dorothy Campbell, of Fort Wayne, and Miss Alice Campbell, in school at Franklin College; one brother, R. C. Campbell, of Butler; a sister, Mrs. T. C. Fralick, of Chicago, and a half-sister, Mrs. Clyde Bolinger, of Ft. Wayne.

The body is at the Phelps funeral home in Butler, where services will be held at 2 P. M. Thursday, Rev. G. F. Hubbartt of the Methodist Church officiating, and burial in Butler Cemetery. Pall bearers will be Judge W. P. Endicott and Otto Gengnagel, of Auburn, and Capt. H. C. Springer, Harry Miller, Jesse Oberlin and Ed Graf, all of Butler.

NOW IS THE TIME

We are all meaning to do it but keep putting it off! Under here we stick a clipping, clippings fall off the table when you dust, open up a magazine and out falls a clipping. They are every place but where they should be. Why not make a library of your own by purchasing inexpensive scrap books, several of them but all the same size. A subscriber says she pastes favorite jokes and cartoons in one, favorite recipes and household hints in another, attractive scenes, paintings reproduced for every one's enjoyment, ideas for making over clothes and such all goes into the third book. In her fourth she pastes book reviews, poetry, special bits of prose which appeal and so on. The fifth is her garden scrapbook which is crammed full of clippings on this wide subject. Try this scheme yourself for a hobby and for keeping clippings together. See these books at News office.

J. Glenn Miller, of Denver, Colorado, a former St. Joe and Newville boy, is here for a few days as guest in the Harry Kees home and of friends of former years. ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY. DEC. 18, 1941 NUMBER 50

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY SCHEDULED FOR FRIDAY

On Friday night, December 19, the Junior Class of St. Joe will put on their class play, "Comin' Thru The Rye," and comedy by Charles George.

In a little town named Rye, on the mid-Western plains, lives old Silas Stonebraker and his lovely daughter, Libby. They run the local hotel or what is left of it, for they are slowly but surely facing poverty. Several days before Christmas, the Westbound bus is stalled in a snowdrift at the edge of town and the roads ahead are blocked by the storm.

So into the hotel come all the passengers; and what an odd assortment they are! They range from the very comic to the tragic. Among them is one of the most likable characters, a breezy, bright ex-sailor, James Kearney, on his way West. He has never taken any girl seriously until he meets Libby. His feelings in the matter are returned, but a local swain, Harvey Keyser, feels that he holds prior claim upon Libby's affections, having helped her father financially on several occasions.

Some of the more amusing characters are two college girls on their way home from school for Christmas; Trixie Angel, a girl with a pet dog that is the bane of all the passengers' existence; Jessie Weatherby, a village lady of uncertain age, who hopes eventually to become Mrs. Silas Stonebraker; Mrs. Humphrey Mearson, a woman with a huge appetite, and her romantic daughter, who is quite enamored of Jim, causing Libby some anxious moments. The play is a delightful study of how one small incident can affect and change the lives of others completely. A swell play, full of comedy.

The cast is as follows: Silas Stonebraker, Frank Drake; Libby Stonebraker, Frances Reidenbach; Harvey Keyser, Harold Wilmot; Lily Turner, Alice Stone; Jessie Weatherby, Patricia Maxwell; Sheriff Haskins, Eugene McBride; James Kearney, Roger Hadley; Mrs. Humphry Mearson, Betty Nicholls; Rosamond Mearson, Estella Hart; Trixie Angel, Wilma Haynes; Ronald Tanner, Engene Baker; Rosalie Reed, Candace Loftus; Monica Morrison, Mary Ellen Rude.

Admission for the play will be: Adults, 30c tax included and Students 20c tax included. The play will begin at 8:00 and there will be an orchestra prelude at 7:45.

APPLE BUTTER IS BECOMING FAMOUS

The Leighty Orchard made a shipment of 45 gallons of apple butter to Baltimore, to be used in the B. & O. dining car, also a shipment of 9 gallons to Devil's Tower, Wyoming, to be used partly in a forest ranch. The greatest distance any shipment has gone is near Bangor, Maine. This home made farm product is extremely high class and has won for the orchard a wide circle of regular customers. The sales this Fall have exceeded all previous records likewise, they have made more gallons than previous years.

THE SHEPHERD AND HIS LAMBS

We are little lambs so small,
But the Shepherd guards o'er all
As we go about our play
In and out from day to day.

He's our Shepherd, good and true,
Guarding over me and you.
He was once a child like you and I,
But for our sins He had to die.
So on this Christmas Night we come
To show Him that we love Him too.

Children as we older grow,
Let us like Him be,
Showing love and kindness,
To the little one like me.

Mrs. George Dancer.

The eradication of pests and thieves alike would be a good thing, but the law will be required to run down the thieves.

LEGION AUXILIARY NOTES

Walter Whitehurst American Legion Post Auxiliary No. 283

The Auxiliary of Walter Whitehurst Post, No. 283, held their Christmas meeting at the country home of Mrs. Berneice Wilder on Tuesday evening. Following the business meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her committee, Mrs. Fern Place and Mrs. Blen Moore.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283
Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month. ....

The Walter Whitehurst Post of the American Legion is planning to send Christmas gifts to all young men in the armed service of the United States who come from the territory covered by their membership. The gifts will be sent out by the end of this week, and anyone knowing the address of a service man will be doing a service by sending his address to the News Office or Ralph Sechler, Commander of the local Post. Also if any one wishes to contribute toward the purchase of gifts, they may send their contributions to either of the places mentioned above.

For several years past the Legion has given a Christmas treat to the youngsters of the community, but owing to existing circumstances it was deemed best to pass up the local treating in favor of Gifts for Service Men.

Defense committees are being set up by all American Legion Posts throughout the country and the local committee is made up of the following men: Roy George, Leon Kees, Roy Reidenbach, Byron Miller, and Lehr Wilder.

The placing of the lights on the living Christmas tree in the Strouse yard, was completed Wednesday, and the public will again have the pleasure of enjoying the pleasant and cheerful sight.

MADE TRIP TO FORT KNOX, KY.

Mrs. Foster Gee and son, Eugene, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cook, of Auburn, spent the week end with Gerald Gee at Ft. Knox, Ky.

All roads leading to the Fort are guarded by two soldiers with "tommy guns." We had to show a letter that we had received from Gerald before they would let us pass. We drove all around the Fort and Gerald explained each building. We saw several chapels, theatre, hospital, post office, recreation hall, hundreds of trucks, tanks, and motorcycles, also a large department store.

They have three guest houses where the guests of the soldiers can stay. Each one has about 30 rooms and they were all full at noon on Saturday.

We ate our supper at the A. F. R. T. C. Service Club. They served 300 suppers that night. Saturday morning there were 1800 soldiers left for Ft. Louis, Washington. They didn't know they were leaving until Friday afternoon.

There are single and double rooms in the guest houses. The furniture is all made of cherry. Our room had two single beds, a stand, chest of drawers, a large mirror, one chair and a place to hang your wraps.

A Guest.

CHECKING OVER

A very wise suggestion reaches this desk which we pass on to every reader who has a hand in this American scene staging its defense drive on the country's farm lot. Since agriculture is responding so eagerly to the call there will be a lot of extra work put upon farm machinery and equipment. So there comes the suggestion for using this Winter as a time to repair and recondition farm machinery that it will be ready for the coming demands for heavy duty. The manufacturers of farm machinery expect to be able to have those needed parts of steel at hand, but you can't tell what Spring will bring and you may find that delivery on orders will be difficult to fill. Farmers have already been warned that new machines and equipment for the coming year is to be curtailed, so this idea of spending Winter checking over the farm equipment and being ready for the farm battle front, is a sensible one our News readers will agree.

THANKS TO THE P. O.

We shouldn't be so excited over the holiday spirit and the thanking of friends and relations for gifts and cards, of fallen pine needles, that we overlook that special department of service connected with our government which has earned our words of gratitude for service rendered. To the Postoffice Department, for efficiency under fire, for special handling and for delivery of the goods! We thoughtlessly mail our cards at the last minute, carelessly address a parcel in improper addressing or wrapping and figure that this efficiency will be taken care of by the postoffice very effectively. And they probably will—but let's stop long enough to thank them for it. We are having an especially busy mailing business, the increase in regulation mailing due to extra gifts and more money spent for shopping has kept the postoffice employees at it hot and heavy this Christmas. We do not lack appreciation but we might forget to mention to our St. Joe postal employees our thanks for a job well performed.

OLD LICENSE PLATES

Breathes there a garage in St. Joe which can't show some old auto license plates tacked to its walls? There are some that look like they have been papered with numbers and this couldn't happen any place else but in our country where we have, in the past, been able to afford such a waste of metal. But no more. Five of the states are trying to work out some plan to erase this yearly need for brand new license plates and consequently for tons of steel. California has a plan to fasten some sort of strips over the old plates with new information, only new registrants receiving new plates. This will save the state up to $130,000 and also the saving of precious metal. Kentucky figures on a five-year license plate while Delaware makes her plates with changeable inserts for the year's altered dates. Before another year passes 1942 you will find many other states thinking of new ways.

THE INEVITABLE HAS HAPPENED

The unprovoked attack of Japan on American possessions simply marked the occurrence of the inevitable. For many months, most authorities have been convinced that we could not avoid formal participation in the war that now engulfs all the continents. The big question was when and where the spark would be ignited. The Japanese militarists, spurred by their Axis comrades, have answered that question for us and for the world.

The American people enter this war with a sense of grim and bitter necessity. No thinking man wants war. It is to the great credit of our government that it did everything possible, within the bounds of our national honor and interests, to maintain peace. That effort failed through no fault of those who administer our governmental affairs. It failed because the ruthless conquerors of our time are bent on world domination. Nothing less can satisfy them. It is all or nothing. And so, at last, the democratic world is allied in arms against the totalitarian world in the greatest war history has ever known.

Here in America the task is clear. The American people will support their government to the limit, and they will make whatever sacrifices prove necessary. The issue of intervention versus non-intervention is as dead as last year's news. The isolationist leaders, displaying that patriotism which characterizes all true Americans, however different their opinions, have pledged their full support to the President and the nation. From this time on, it is the job of all to show that world that a free America is more than a match for any adversary.

The soldiers and the sailors who fight in this war carry into battle a traditional freedom. They are not the unthinking, "heiling" subjects of a dictator. They are not slaves, living and dying like puppets at the whim of a master. They have been reared in the freest of all great nations, under the ideals which Lincoln called, "The last, best hope of earth." They know what they are fighting for. They know how precious freedom is. And they know the sorrowful truth that blood must be shed if freedom is to to be preserved.

Back of the fighting men of America will be a production machine unparalleled on earth. Labor and industry will not shirk the gigantic task that time and circumstances have given it. The price of failure would be the death of freedom. The days ahead will be hard and bitter, but no one can doubt what the eventual end will be—victory for freedom, for a way of life that respects the dignity of man.

It is all there in one word—freedom. Freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of worship, freedom of enterprise. These are what we possess, and these are what we are fighting to save and to perpetuate forever.

Advertise Your Business

American industry is ready for this war. Go down the roster of our great private enterprises—the railroads, the power systems, the steel mills, the motor makers, the coal and metal mines, the oil wells and refining plants, the airplane factories and the rest. American enterprise represents a veritable miracle of preparedness. And now the tempo of production will be stepped up again and again. There can be no "business as usual," "strikes as usual," or "politics as usual," from now on.

Let there be no despair. Let there be instead, uncompromising determination. War has been forced on us. It has been forced on us by a nation to which we offered firm friendship, economic co-operation, aid in solving its problems—everything, in short, except the right to pillage and destroy and conquer. Now our enemies will learn how free men, backed by the limitless resources of our free enterprise system, can acquit themselves in battle.

NAVY ANNOUNCES MODIFICATION OF PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS

A relaxation of physical standards for enlistments in the U. S. Navy and the Naval Reserve is announced by the Navy Department. In commenting on this action, the Navy Department announcement stated that numerous men who in past months have sought to enlist and have been rejected on the basis of minor physical defects will, because of the modification of physical standards, be encouraged to re-apply for enlistment in either the regular Navy or the Naval Reserve for the duration of the emergency.

The Navy Department has requested that any person knowing of young men who had been barred from enlistment in the Navy or the Naval Reserve because of minor physical reasons should bring this modification in physical requirements to the attention of these young men.

Applicants with varicose veins will be acceptable under the changed standards, this varicocele condition to be corrected, if the condition is painful, at the Naval Training Stations to which the new recruits are sent. Hydrocele, another defect that formerly ruled out numerous applicants, will be corrected, if necessary, after enlistees arrive at Traniing Station. Applicants suffering from hernia will be accepted provided their I. Q.'s are 75 or better. Recruits suffering from hernia will be treated at the Training Stations and will be enrolled for schooling during their periods of convalescence.

Other physical defects which formerly prevented men from being accepted as recruits, but which now are waived, are seasonal hay fever; correctible nasal deformities or nasal deformities of such a degree as not to interfere with duty; undernourished and underdeveloped applicants, providing the condition is not due to organic disease; and minor surgical defects which can be corrected within a month. Applicants who possess 18 natural serviceable teeth, with at least two molars in functional occlusion and not more than four incisors missing, will be acceptable. Dental treatment will be given at the Training Station.

Any applicant who has been rejected bcause of any of the defects noted above is urged to re-apply for enlistment in the Navy or Naval Reserve immediately.

All applicants accepted with defects requiring correction will be hospitalized. After correction of these defects recruits will be returned to their Training Stations at the earliest practicable time.

These modified physical standards will apply for all applicants for enlistment in either the regular Navy or the Naval Reserve with the exception of applicants for enlistment in classes for prospective commissioning.

This Week in Defense

While its envoys discussed with Secretary of State Hull means of maintaining peace in the Pacific, Japan's forces attacked the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines, Wake and Midway Islands, Guam, Hong Kong and Malaya. In the attacks on American possessions there were approximately 3,000 casualties, one battleship and a destroyer were sunk, several other U. S. ships severely damaged and a large number of planes put out of commission.

Stating that "always will we remember the character of the onslaught against us," the President asked Congress to declare a state of war exists between the U. S. and the Japanese Empire. Following Congress' affirmative action, Germany and Italy—in accordance with their agreement with Japan—declared war on the United States. Almost immediately Congress declared war on the European members of the Axis.

Addressing the nation by radio, the President said "it will not only be a long war, it will be a hard war....Not only must the shame of Japanese treachery be wiped out, but the sources of international brutality, wherever they exist, must be absolutely and finally broken....With confidence in our armed forces—with the unbounding determination of our people—we will gain the inevitable triumph...We will win the war and we are going to win the peace that follows..."

The President announced he had instructed the Army and Navy to take all steps necessary to U. S. defense. The War and Navy Department announced that the Army and Navy had beaten off attempted Japanese troop landings in the Philippines, sunk a 29,000-ton Japanese battleship, a cruiser and a destroyer, scored hits on the battleship KONGO; that Marine garrisons at Midway and Wake were holding out; that Navy Secretary Knox had flown to Hawaii.

Both the Army and Navy announced enlistments at a record level. The War Department asked Congress for legislation to register all men 18 to 64 years old and to permit use of men 18 to 45 for military service. Selective Service Director Hershey said it may be possible to raise the number of selectees in service from the present 800,000 to about 3,000,000 without using other than the 21-28 age groups. If Congress approves the induction of those from 28 to 35, now registered but deferred, another 1,000,000 might be raised, Gen. Hershey said, SS national headquarters directed all local boards to reclassify ex-Service men who have been deferred because of prior service.

Congress passed legislation removing the ban on U. S. Army men from serving outside the hemisphere. Congress also granted the Army and Navy permission to hold enlisted men for the duration.

Civilian Defense

Following air raid alarms in San Francisco and New York, the Office of Civilian Defense ordered all Pacific and East Coast and District of Columbia air raid volunteers on the alert. OCD Director La Guardia announced enrollment of 950,000 air raid wardens and other volunteers and called for three times the exsisting permanent fire personnel, plus one air raid warden for every 500 persons.

The War Department asked all Governors to be "on the alert" with home guards and State troopers available to meet any situation; instructed special protection services to protect arsenals, factories and storage depots against sabotage.

Director McNutt of Defense Health and Welfare Services asked Governors to complete mobilization of State health and welfare services. He also issued a call for young women to enroll in schools of nursing to meet critical shortages of professional nurses for the Army, Navy and civilian requirements.

Communications

The Navy initiated censorship on all outgoing communications and forbid publication of any naval information that might be of value to the enemy. The Army restricted information of troop movements except when announced by the War Department. The Maritime Commission requested the press, radio and other news channels to refrain from publishing information about merchant vessels in any waters.

The President authorized the Defense Communications Board to designate radio facilities of the nation for use, control, inspection or closure by Federal agencies. The Federal Communications Commission prohibited operation of amateur radio stations in all U. S. Territory.

The Army and Navy announced casualty lists will be withheld from publication in order to avoid giving aid to the enemy in determining where and when and how many losses the U. S. had sustained. Families of casualties, however, will be notified immediately whenever possible.

Lend-Lease To Continue

The White House issued a statement that "the Lend-Lease program is and will continue in full operation...."The statement said "It was the German hope that if the U. S. and Japan could be pushed into war, that such a conflict would put an end to the Lend-Lease program." Germany and Japan, the President said. "are conducting their military and naval operations in accordance with a joint plan.... The American people must realize it can be matched only with similar grand strategy...."

Aid To U. S.

The State Department asked the Pan-American Union to call a conference of Western Hemisphere nations in Rio de Janeiro in January. By December 12, Great Britain, Canada, Costa Rica, Guatemala, Australia, Belgium, China, Cuba, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Free France, Greece, Haiti, Honduras, Netherlands Indies, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Panama, Poland, South Africa, and the Soviet Union had either declared war on Japan, severed relations with that country, or expressed willingness to cooperate with the United States.

Production

Under Secretary of War Patterson called for production of all munitions on a 24-hour-a-day basis. The SPAB issued a declaration that the defense program had been replaced with a victory program. OPM Director Knudsen told his press conference the victory program calls for 1,000 heavy four-engine bombers a month and a 168-hour week for the plane, tank, gun, ammunition and shipbuilding industry as fast as men, materials and machines are available. Director Odlum of the OPM Contract Distribution Division, speaking in New York, said war production will double in 1942. Civilian Supply Director Henderson cut auto production to 60 per cent of December last year.

The President invited industry and labor leaders to meet in Washington December 17 to reach an agreement to prevent labor disputes.

Civilian Supply

The President told his press conference the very great shortage of metals will necessitate use in war production of at least 50 per cent of the metals now going into civilian use. The Secretary of Agriculture issued a statement "we enter this struggle with greater reserves of food, feed and fiber than at any other time in our history."

OPM Priorities Director Nelson prohibited sale of new auto tires from Dec. 11 to Dec. 22 to stop a "buying wave" which started after Japan's attack. Price Administration Henderson placed ceiling prices on flashlights, bulbs and batteries and asked purchasers of "must" items in coastal areas threatened by air raids to report all profiteering. He also asked for a nationwide campaign to conserve and accumulate waste paper.

Economic Defense

The Economic Defense Board prohibited exports to Japan and Japanese occupied territory, to Japanese nationals all over the world, and to China—except for shipments to the Burma Road via Rangoon. The Board also stopped exports of all rubber until further notice except in connection with Lend-Lease and to U. S. forces.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau ordered a halt to any commerce or communication with Japan or her allies, ordered all borders closed to Japanese and froze all assets of Japanese nationals or businesses.

Stating that defense expenditure increases will have to be matched by increases in purchases of defense bonds and stamps, Mr. Morgenthau ordered an intensive sales campaign.

Aliens

The President designated by proclamation all nationals of Germany, Italy and Japan as "enemy aliens" and authorized the Justice Department to take into custody those considered dangerous. The Justice Department requested that all State and local officials leave the handling of aliens to Federal authorities to prevent persecution of law-abiding and peaceful enemy nationals. All but 2,303 of the 1,100,000 Axis nationals of the U. S. were allowed to remain free subject to arrest on the slightest provocation, the Department said. The others, considered dangerous, were taken into custody and will be placed in concentration camps supervised by the Army.

This Recipe Will Popularize Your Cookie Jar

CREAM ½ cup butter. Add 1 cup brown sugar and cream together thoroughly. Add 2 tablespoons unsweetened chocolate (melted), 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, and 1 cup nut meats (chopped), and blend thoroughly. Mix together and sift 1½ cups bread flour and ½ teaspoon soda and add to the mixture alternately with ⅓ cup milk, beating well after each addition. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350°) 10 to 12 minutes. Now try this recipe for cleaning the cookie sheet, remembering that all cookies leave a few crispy remains after baking. Rinse the cookie sheet with hot water, then sprinkle it with the safe, dirt-chasing cleanser which is made with seismotite. Rub gently with a damp cloth, then rinse and wipe dry.

SPENCERVILLE LOSES TO HICKSVILLE TEAM

Scoring an easy 34 to 24 victory Friday evening, Hicksville high school varsity downed Spencerville. Hicksville reserves also registered a decisive 41 to 15 win over Spencerville.

Hicksville started a second team which saw Spencerville draw away, 11 to 6, in the first quarter. The varsity then took over, gained a 13 to 12 halftime lead and outpointed the invaders 10 to 7 and 11 to 5 in the last two periods.

JAP GOODS BEING TAKEN FROM COUNTERS

Japanese merchandise has been removed from the counters of all major variety stores in Indianapolis on instruction from company executives.

In most cases there was not a great deal of Japanese-made stock on hand, for, as the manager of one downtown store said:

"We didn't have much on hand, principally because we quit buying from Japan two years ago. Our executives told us today that 99 percent of our merchandise is American made."

Some Japanese goods came in Job-lot purchases, it was explained.

Officials of the G. C. Murphy company, in Indianapolis, received the following telegram from executive offices:

"Remove all Japanese merchandise from sale immediately. Notify local variety store managers, newspapers and the retail merchants' board regarding your action."

Messages in a similar vein were received by managers at the F. W. Woolworth Company stores and the S. S. Kresge Company. And clerks immediately went into action clearing the shelves and counters of any articles bearing the phrase "Made in Japan."

It is presumed later instructions will be received to destroy the merchandise after inventory is made.

Independent stores handling similar merchandise are reported to be following suit, if they have not already done so.

And if New Years calendars happen to appear with the unpopular slogan on them, their fate may be the same as those that were delivered to a Traverse City, (Mich.) executive. He destroyed 5,000 that cost 10 cents each.

ANOTHER BUTLER MAN DIES OF HEART ATTACK

While on his way to summon aid in pulling his automobile from a ditch Saturday morning, George C. Bechtel, 72, of Butler, died suddenly of a heart attack.

Mr. Bechtel's car slid off the slippery pavement on U. S. 6, two miles east of Butler about 9 A. M., and the car was thrown into a ditch. He was unable to drive the machine back onto the road, so he started for a nearby farmhouse to telephone a garage for help. A motorist picked him up, and before he reached the farmhouse, Mr. Bechtel suffered a sudden attack and slumped down in his seat dead.

The deceased was born on a farm southeast of Butler and had lived in that vicinity all his life. He was a member of the United Brethren Church. He was a carpenter in Butler for a number of years, but was forced to retire a few years ago because of ill health. Mr. Bechtel had suffered previous heart attacks and underwent a major operation about a year ago.

Surviving are the widow, Anna, and one son, Earl Bechtel, of South Bend.

Santa Claus expresses his delight in receiving so many fine letters in this issue of The News, and he has promised to do his best in meeting as many of the wishes of his little friends as possible. Because of the demands for toys being extremely heavy this year he expresses a deep concern over being able to supply many of the metal and rubber toys this year, as his factory supply is running low and then too, he has been asked to give much of his material to the manufacturing of defense products. If Santa fails in some of his orders, we are sure the children will feel that he knew best.

Merry Christmas

Today we have great need of this reprint, an inspiration for all News readers, regardless of age. No editor could do better than this, the right words in 1897 and the right words in 1941 embodied in this lovliest of Christmas editorials. A little New York girl wrote a letter to the New York Sun and was answered by a member of the Sun's editorial staff, Francis P. Church. This answer, "There is a Santa Claus" has since that time found its way year after year to the pages of the nation's Christmas news editions as signifying what we mean by the spirit in Christmas. This is the first time in our own paper and with us read and love this reply to a child who sought—and bountifully received.

"Dear Editor: I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is not a Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in the Sun it's so.' Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?

Virginia O'Hanlon, 115 W. 59th Street."

The memorable reply of Francis P. Church:

"Virginia; your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehended by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no child-like faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man nor the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God; he lives and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the hearts of childhood."

THIRD GRADE

St. Joe, Indiana
December 17, 1941
Dear Santa,
Will you bring me a Jack and Jill book? I want a ball too. Don't forget the children that won't have any Christmas. I would like to have you take them something this Christmas. Will you?
Your friend, Jean Perkins.

Dear Santa:
How are you? I am fine. I want a sled for Christmas. I want a pair of skates a set of dishes and a red, white and blue flag. I want a doll too. Don't forget the children over in the war countries.
Your friend,
Bernice Argerbright.

Dear Santa Claus,

AN old-fashioned Christmas . . . the kind of a Christmas that helped make the gay 90's gay . . . yes, the kind of a Christmas that the old family album could tell about so eloquently—that's the kind of a Christmas we wish for you and yours.

We're grateful for your patronage during the past year, and hope for a continuance of our pleasant relations.

CHRISTMAS in "the good old days" knew no bounds of joyousness. It is particularly gratifying to us that we number among our steady customers many who have been loyal since "the good old days."

To all of these, to all who have made our friendship since, and to all who read this message, we wish that good old-fashioned kind of Christmas which comes to mind when we think of "the good old days."

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY WELL RENDERED

The Junior play "Comin' Thru The Rye" has been written into the pages of successful events of the St. Joe schools. With only four weeks of work the cast of thirteen, under the direction of Mrs. Esther Hampel, put on a very capable performance. All parts were well cast and each carried his line and character throughout.

Frank Drake as the proprietor of the hotel of Rye gave a vivid portrayal of the grouchy old man, who in spite of his growls had a very warm heart underneath it all. Pat Maxwell perfectly impersonated the old maid of Rye, who tried all during the play to win the heart of old Silas, but failed in a way. However, we believe with the persistence shown, Silas must fall sometime.

The two leads Libby and Jim, were capably handled by Frances Reidenbach and Roger Hadley. Libby carried us thru the varying emotions of worry, fear, love, sympathy, disgust and joy. Jim always furnished us with a breezy carefree disposition; and after he met Libby, with a serious, sincere businesslike attitude.

Mrs. Mearson and her daughter, Rosamund, represented by Betty Nicholls and Estella Hart, gave us a true picture of the would be society of Denver. Rosamund was always very much attracted to the ex-sailor and for a while very nearly had him; at least, she had Libby thinking so.

Wilma Haynes, as Trixie, kept us amused at the actions of a woman wasting all her affections on a dog. Other comedy and a bit of college life was added by Candace Loftus as Monica and Mary Ellen Rude as Rosalae.

Another comedy part was furnished by the Sheriff, Eugene McBride. The tragedy and mystery of the play was furnished by the suspect, quiet Tanner, who desired to be alone, played by Eugene Baker.

Lily Turner, the giggly, silly girl of Rye gave us many a laugh as she tried desperately to take Harvey away from Libby. Harvey, Harold Wilmot, was the local swain of Rye, who when he found he could not have Libby, took Lily and tried to get his revenge by buying the mortgage on the hotel and putting Silas and Libby out in the street.

However, Jim comes to the rescue with the money and wins back the hotel and Libby as a bride.

Music at the beginning and end of the play was furnished by the Concordiers, swing band of fifteen members. In between acts music was furnished by the girl's quintette and boy's chorus.

VOL. LVI (56 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC. 25, 1941 NUMBER 52

Lions Club Have Big Xmas Party

Rev. Erby Messimer Delivers Talk on "CHRISTMAS."
Club Backs Defense Bond and Stamp Sales--To Remember Needy on Christmas Day.

Seventeen members of the St. Joe Lions Club enjoyed a Christmas dinner at the Akins Tea Room Monday night and among the Christmas plans adopted were to furnish baskets to people of the community who were considered deserving of special remembrance at this season of the year, and the committee will make the delivery on Christmas Day.

A special committee was appointed to prepare the program for January 12.

The club sponsors an ad in The News today, to encourage the public in the purchase of savings stamps and defense bonds. Please turn to this ad and learn who the boosters are in the Valley.

Lion Hurni, member of the special committee, introduced Mr. Erby Messimer, pastor of the Christian Church, who spoke on "Christmas," and the address follows:

To the worldly element Christmas is a day of Merriment. It is a day set aside to celebrate some important event which the world has not as yet learned of its true significance. Therefore, a day of merriment is held by indulging in great feasts big parties, gingered with liquor, wines and beer, Christmas proms and dances. In the business world the pre-Christmas season is largely a time of commercializing and every available means is used to induce the public to buy.

To the Christian, Christmas means more than a day of merriment, or a time of commercialization. It is the day a blessed event took place. The greatest gift of all gifts made its first appearance. It is a memorial day of the Birth of Christ.

The Jews had been looking for this great event to happen. They knew their prophecy concerning His coming and could readily tell Herod where the Christ was to be born. This is shown by the sureness with which they answered. Mt. 2: 1-6. "And when he had gathered all the chief priests and Scribes of the people together, he demanded of them where the Christ should be born. And they said unto him, in Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by the prophet, and thou Bethlehem, in the land of Juda are not least among the princes of Juda: for out of thee shall come a governor, that shall rule my people Israel." They had been looking forward to the coming of the one who should bless all nations from the time of thepromise to Abram. Gen. 12: 1-3.

There were many prophecies given in the Old Testament pointing to this event. There are more than fifty prophecies telling the minutest details of His coming, and of the things that would happen to Him, including His birth at Bethlehem, His death on the Cross, that they would gamble for His garments, and that He should be buried in a rich man's tomb.

There are more than seventy-five prophecies as to His character and His offices, such as that He should be the "Most Holy One," "a prophet like unto Moses," and that He should be the "Messiah," "Redeemer," "Great High Priest," "Lord," "Savior," and "King of Kings."

However, with all the prophecies concerning the Christ and the Jews knowledge of them they for some reason or reasons failed to understand this birth in Bethlehem. Perhaps it was because of their expectancy of an earthly king that would rule the Jews, yet one wonders how they could be so deceived as to think a king just to them and for them should be a blessing to all the nations of the world.

Perhaps it was their pride, and the lowliness of the Chirst that caused them not to accept Him or maybe it was fear of the two leading religious groups of their day, the Sadducees and Pharisees, or could it have been their befuddled minds because of the traditions of their fathers? Whatever it might have been we know that they did not receive Him as their King and missed their greatest blessing to themselves and mankind.

The wise men, who it is thought by some to have been converts to the Jewish faith, and who did not have the presence of any religious groups, and no tradition to interfere with their faith, had been looking for the appearance of the Star in the East.

Immediately upon its appearance they set out to find the place where the child was to be born. Naturally they went to the capital or chief city of the country to find out the exact place where the young King might be found. It was no doubt quite a surprise to many of the Jews, and certainly to Herod.

Herod was very much interested in the place of birth and the whereabouts of the child for he dared not let even a child threaten his throne. It wasn't his desire to worship the child that produced the statement in Matt. 2: 8 but his desire to destroy the Christ as he had destroyed many of his own kinsmen and even his dearly beloved wife because he feared the loss of his throne.

Upon receiving the answer as to the exact place the wise men set out to find the "King of the Jews," and when they were come nigh unto the house, they saw the young child with Mary His mother, and fell down and worshipped Him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts: "gold and frankincense, and myrrh."

What a profound faith in the Christ child. But why shouldn't their faith have been great? All the astrology they knew had pointed to the Christ. All the Bible prophecies they knew led them to know that surely this was the Christ. The fact that they were able to find the child by the help of the chief priests and Scribes who knew the scripture was more evidence to them that they were right and so their great faith.

"And there were in the same country (the same country where Jesus was born) shepherds abiding in the field keeping watch over their flock by night." Luke 2: 8. The shepherd is thought of as one who is gentle, kind and very considerate of his flock. We see the Psalmist picturing God as a Shepherd. Ps. 23. Jesus speaks of the sheep knowing their shepherd and being not afraid. Again He portrays the Shepherd who lost the one sheep and searched diligently until he found it. Thus the men to whom the angel appeared, and announced the birth of the "Saviour which is Christ the Lord."

One might marvel at the fear of the shepherds who no doubt were good men, men who had taken the opportunity they had for thought and meditation upon the coming of the Christ, and who were anxiously awaiting his arrival. But the question might be asked what would a group of Christians do if the Lord appeared suddenly in person or the glory of the Lord was to be shown as it were to the Shepherds.

It can be presumed that they would be sore afraid or that they might be rendered speechless as were the disciples at the Mount of Transfiguration. Mark 9: 6.

However, despite their fear, the shepherds were able to reconcile themselves and receive the message and hear the angel and the multitude of Heavenly hosts praising God, and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good will toward men."

This was a great experience for the shepherds and they immediately set out to see this thing that had come to pass. "And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the child." Luke. 2:17. They returned to their fields praising God because they had seen the things as they had been told.

To the Gentile world, (the world out side of the Jewish nation.) Christ's birth was a "light to enlighten them." Luke 2: 32. Up until the coming of Christ the Gentile world was in darkness. God had chosen Israel as His people and had given them His attention in order that they might produce the Christ. Now that He was come all people ought to receive Him. Certainly He does enlighten those who do receive Him.

A renewal of the true Christmas spirit would be well for the world today. It would be well for all people to relive this occaasion. It seems that in this scientific age people feel their independence of any higher power. This ought not to be. Some of the greatest scientists are believers in God and trust in Him and His Word for much of their knowledge.

God is the giver of all good and perfect gifts. James 1: 17. The fruit of the Spirit, which is spoken of in Gal. 5: 22-23: love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, could be given only by God. The greatest gift ever given was the "Son of Man." Matt. 16: 13, and it was given by God. John 3: 16.

Let all people sing together "Joy to the World the Lord is Come."

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

EXTENSION SCHOOLS TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

Muck Crops and Fertility—January 20, 1942.

Farm Machinery Repair School—January 30, 1942.

Dairy Cattle Breeding — February 5, 1942.

Farm Planning School—February 10-11, 1942.

Sheep School — March 3, 1942.

The Muck Crops and Fertility school is a one day school, where the latest information on the production of major muck crops will be presented.

Roscoe Fraser and George Enfield will be the Purdue Extension Specialists giving this information. A discussion of varieties, management practices and fertilizer treatments will be given. The treatment of soils other than mucks will be discussed briefly.

The Farm Machinery School scheduled for January 30, is of particular interest at this time. Since there is a possibility of a limited supply of repairs, is especially important to get machinery in tip-top shape for the coming year. With our limited supply of farm labor for next Summer it is most important that we efficiently use the farm machinery we now have on the farm. The school will help do this.

A Dairy Cattle Breeding School scheduled for February 5, will be in charge of E. T. Wallace, Purdue Dairy Extension Specialist. This is a half day school where the Breeding of Dairy Cattle will be discussed and will include sire selection, breeding analyses of herds, foundation cows and dairy cattle breeding programs. There will also be a detailed discussion of sire improvement, including illustrated material on the care and housing. This school fits in with the Food for Defense program, since the increased production of dairy products is especially important at this time.

The Farm Planning school scheduled for February 10-11, is a two day school and the purpose of this school is to give instructions in planning the organization of a profitable farm business. A local demonstration farm will be secured for this school. Those in attendance will work in teams, using the new printed booklet "Planning the Farm Business" to plan the organization and operation of this demonstration farm. During the latter part of the period those present will be given assistance with their individual situations. Those farmers interested in enrolling for this school should do so in advance of the day of the school. Now as never before, it is important for farmers to plan their farm business for maximum efficiency. This school will help those farmers participating.

The Sheep School is a full day school and will be held March 3. This will be the third year in succession that a sheep school has been held. Discussions will be held concerning equipment for sheep production, Winter feeding of the breeding flocks, Summer pasture, utilization and other breeding, feeding and management problems.

From Coast To Coast

John Leighty called at News office Monday and remarked that he had just received two orders for apple butter in the mail that day that came from the East and West Coast, from Pullman, Washington and Dedham, Mass. The last one contained a note for him to send some to Mrs. V. K. Henderson at Oak Park, Ill., and it so happened that Mr. Henderson and Leighty were school chums back in 1887-1890 at Terre Haute. This was a pleasand coincident and the order was promptly filled.

THE MERRIEST CHRISTMAS

. . . that is the kind of an old-fashioned Christmas we are wishing you now.

In 1942—at the latest by 1943—one-third of the nation's capacity will be engaged in the production of arms and will thus have ceased as effectively to produce for civilian consumption as if it had shut down. The Supreme Court declared in effect that labor unions now enjoy sweeping immunities from the anti-trust laws that apply to every one else.....It is now legal for a union to boycott and ruin an employer for the crime of dealing with another union, even though that union has been certified by the Labor Board and the employer has no choice. Racketeering, violence and chaos will continue to grow and flourish in the labor movement as long as this state of the law is permitted to exist.—The New York Times.

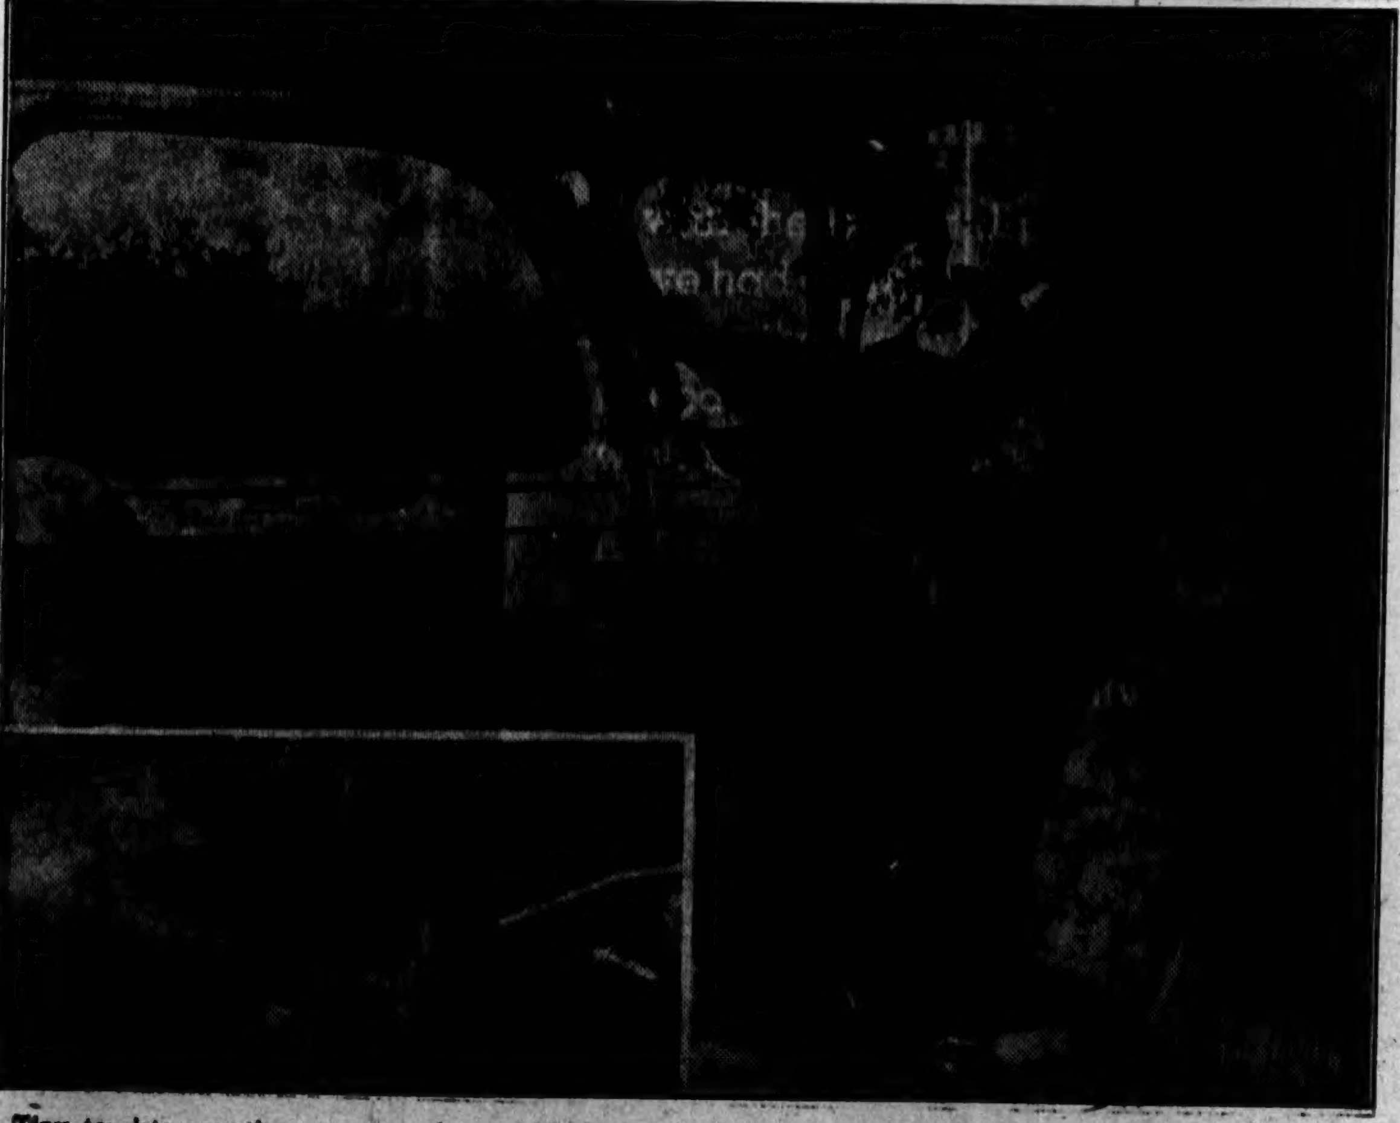
Safety Assured for Tiny Tourists



Tiny tourists sometimes grow restless on long motor trips and their limitless energy and curiosity require double checking to insure that every safety precaution is being taken by their parents. With the entire rear compartment of the family Chevrolet as his personal playground, this youngster assumes a favorite perch that ordinarily would be dangerous. However, a simple adjustment, easily made by Chevrolet mechanics, converted the rear door handle to a safety-action handle, which "free wheels" and does not open the door. After the lock is adjusted to safety position, as indicated in the inset, the lock button is depressed and the inside handle then will not open the door, rendering it "child-proof." Release of the lock button enables the driver to open the door as usual.

GATHERING IN THE CHRISTMAS TREES

An official estimate by Government departments in Washington indicate that 5 million evergreens are expected to be cut this year from American forests and woodlots to use as Christmas trees.

In the olden days our predecessors on this continent used to cut their own Christmas trees, but today they are a big business and a well-organized million dollar industry.

The balsam fir accounts for 60 per cent of the holiday trees; spruce accounts were about 25 per cent and Douglas fir about 10 per cent. New England and New York states furnish most of the trees for the Eastern market. Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota supply Chicago, Detroit and other large cities in the middle West. Oregon, Washington and California look after their own state's needs and have markets as far South as Texas. It is estimated that more than 250 carloads of Christmas trees are shipped annually to New York City.

It has been suggested that "father should be left alone when he is discovered on the floor Christmas morning, "running his daughter's train or taking apart Junior's toys. A nationally known radio broadcaster speaking from Washington on the night that war was declared said there was more interest in the Capital over Christmas shopping than in the war with Japan.

$10,000.00 IS NEW QUOTA FOR COUNTY RED CROSS

Auburn's quota tops the list—$3,600, and Garrett is asked to raise $2,400. The other quotas set are as follows: Waterloo, $800; St. Joe, $200; Ashley, $200; Spencerville, $200; Corunna, $120; Butler Township, $240; Keyser Township, $240; Richland Township, $300; Fairfield Township, $300; Smithfield Township, $300; Grant Township, $200; Wilmington Township, $300; Union Township, $180; Jackson Township, $120; Concord Tp., $120; Franklin Tp., $300; Troy Tp., $100; Stafford Tp., $100, and Newville Tp., $100.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

A letter received from Wm. H. Husselman, County Roll Call Chairman, gives St. Joe another increase in total amount contributed. The letter says: "Final figures on the recent Red Cross Roll Call Drive reveal that the sum of $47.95 was raised in St. Joe.

Next Wednesday, 15 young men will leave DeKalb County for Ft. Benjamin Harrison, making up the first call for men since war was started between the United States and the Axis powers. Harold Hollis Baker, of northwest of St. Joe, being the only boy from this section of the county called at this time.

Upon the application of Geo. McCann, the Knisely National bank of Butler, was appointed in the DeKalb Circuit Court as guardian of Josephine, James, Marshall and Martha Jean McCann heirs of Mildred McCann. The property consisting of $626.94 in cash and the guardian was authorized to invest $600 in U. S. defense bonds.

U. S. A. IS MORE RESOURCEFUL THAN IN '14

The World War changed a good many things as is shown by the fact that there is plenty of domestic pigment production of printing ink in our country, whereas in 1914 America had to depend upon Europe for approximately 95 per cent of its pigment colors. Now we have 90 per cent of all we need right here in the United States. When the World War broke out the United States was in a bad way because of dyes suitable for cloth and textiles. Today the United States leads the World in the production of the best dyes.

ROSA HIGH WILL CASE SETTLED AT $500

When Albert Yoder and the trustees of the Rehoboth Methodist Church agreed to pay H. M. Phillips and Mrs. Alice Farver, of Auburn, $500, the latter agreed Friday morning to dismiss their suit contesting the will of their sister, the late Mrs. Rosa High, of Jackson Township.

The trial of the case was started Thursday morning before a jury in the DeKalb Circuit Court and several witnesses were heard. In compromising the complaint, the court costs were charged against the estate. The value of the property left by Mrs. High was about $2,000. She stated in her will that she had helped her relatives during her life and that she desired that half of her estate should go tto Mr. Yoder for services to her and the balance to the church as a memorial to her and her husband, Samuel M. High. She stipulated that the trustees of the church should use the money as they deemed best. The trustees at this time are Mr. Yoder, Charles W. Armstrong and Floyd Watson.

The prospects were that the trial would require three or four days, as each side had a large number of witnesses. Those on the stand late Thursday afternoon were B. F. Bailey, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Yoder, and Mrs. Charles R. McCormick. The latter is the former Rachel Shull, of near Auburn, and now resides at Muncie. She was a witness to Mrs. High's will in February, 1940. She expressed the opinion that the old lady was of sound mind. Mr. Baily bought Mrs. High's farm and told the jury of his conversations with her.

Mr. Phillips related his experiences with his sister in the later years of her life. He said she had never helped him financially, but that he loaned money to her. He believer she was of unsound mind when she made the will, he said. Mr. Yoder told the jury he had been a friend of Mr. and Mrs. High about fifteen years and he related how he had aided Mrs. High.
